GOLD PRICE HIKED BY U. S. PURCHASE, MARKETS RESPOND

Government Places Metal Price at $31.36 an Ounce, 27 to 36 Cents Above London; R. F. G. To Use Debentures in Buying.

DAILY QUOTATIONS ARE TO BE POSTED

Securities and Commodities Score Further Gains Despite Considerable Profit Taking.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—(AP)—America was well embarked upon the Roosevelt policy of higher prices through a managed currency tonight with the commodity markets responding strongly to the economic stimulus of the chief executive's program.

High officials of the government met and fixed the price of Reconstruction Corporation purchases of newly mined gold at $31.36, a figure 27 to 36 cents higher than the price paid on the London exchange. Then, they sat back to watch the results. They were pleasing.

Commodities led a general advance. Wheat was three to three and one-quarter cents higher. Corn gained two to three cents. All stock groups closed firmly 1 to 5 points higher.

Still on Gold. The theory behind Mr. Roosevelt's idea was that by raising the price of domestic gold above world prices, he could influence domestic commodity quotations upward. The basis of the latter, economists pointed out, was gold despite America's departure from the gold standard.

For the present, it was said on good authority, the economic factors involved in the plan will be reviewed daily, and each morning the day's gold price will be announced. The basis of the latter, economists pointed out, was gold despite America's departure from the gold standard.

Today's figure was set by Chairman Jesse H. Jones, of the R. F. C.; Henry Morgenthau Jr., representing the president; and Donald Acheson, acting secretary of the treasury.

Receive Information. The three met in Acheson's office at 9:40, received the latest foreign exchange quotations and the London gold rate. After a quarter-hour deliberation, newsmen were called in and Jones read the following statement:

"The Reconstruction Finance Corporation will accept subscriptions today for its 90-day debentures payable in newly-mined gold, recovered from natural deposits in the United States and any territory subject to its jurisdiction at the rate of $31.36 per ounce of fine gold."

The method of payment brought a new departure in R. F. C. financing. The past, the corporation has obtained cash for its operations by selling the debentures, unsecured bonds, to the treasury. The gold transactions carried the debentures to the general public for the first time.

Jones said the gold mining industry could easily convert them into cash. Meanwhile, treasury experts worked on a plan under which the debentures would be issued at a premium sufficient to cover a bank's discounting charge, so that the sellers of

Great Motorcade Brings Plea for New Paved Road Through North Georgia

One of the largest highway paving seeking delegations in the state's history Wednesday received from Governor Eugene Talmadge and Chairman J. J. Mangham, of the state highway board, assurance that route No. 9, between Atlanta and Neel's Gap, will be completed within the course of a year. The delegation, composed of citizens of five north Georgia counties along the route, was not only the largest, but one of the most colorful ever to appear at the capitol. It brought its own band and its own singers, who played and sang in the manner which has made north Georgia famous. Above are some of the scenes as the motorcade, 1,000 strong, called upon the governor. In the upper left are "Curlew" Johnston and Fiddlin' John Carson, famed violinists, the former a full-blooded Indian. In the middle photo the governor is shown receiving a beautiful silver tray from his visitors, the tray being presented by Miss Rebecca Otwell, daughter of Mayor Otwell, of Cumming. In the upper right are Charles Reed, member of the Hill Billy band, which furnished music for the visit; Governor Talmadge and Clark Howell, editor of The Constitution, who joined in the appeal for the highway. Below is shown a section of the big crowd.

WIDE SCOPE SEEN FOR COTTON LOAN

Plan May Be Extended To Cover Staple Held on Option by Farmers.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—(AP)—The farm administration said today it is giving "serious consideration" to a proposal that the privileges of borrowing 10 cents a pound on cotton be extended to bales held on option by farmers who participated in the acreage reduction campaign.

Three southern senators, including Chairman Smith, democrat, South Carolina, are advocating this move. The South Carolina senator was joined in his request by Senators Bankhead, democrat, Alabama, and Thomas, democrat, Oklahoma.

Smith yesterday telegraphed President Roosevelt this would be "simple justice" to farmers who responded to the cotton plow-up campaign. He said it would put "between $40,000,000 and $50,000,000 in circulation."

Smith's telegram, together with the pleas of Bankhead and Thomas, were referred to the farm administration. The government recently announced its 10-cent loan program for farmers who still have their cotton.

Graf Leaves Akron Bound for Chicago

AKRON, Ohio, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Soaring majestically upward, the veteran sky voyager Graf Zeppelin took off at 11:35 p. m. (E. S. T.) for a hop to the Chicago world's fair after a night and day stopover here on the long journey from Friedrichshafen, Germany.

Heavy Frost, Mercury Drop to 36 To Bring Breath of Winter Today

The first substantial frost of the season, accompanied by a low temperature of 36 degrees, rising gradually to 60 degrees during the day, was predicted for this morning by the weather bureau Wednesday. Today's expected low mark, only 4 degrees above freezing, will be the lowest since last March.

Frost has been reported once before this fall, but only in outlying districts.

George W. Minding, the forecaster, said the cold snap would be brief. A change to warmer conditions, he said, has taken place from the Pacific coast eastward to North Dakota. There were freezing temperatures Wednesday morning in Kansas, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio. Wednesday's tem-

R. F. C. Loans Will Aid Nashville NRA Merchants

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—(AP)—The reconstruction corporation today authorized a loan of $100,000 to the Southern Mortgage Company, of Nashville, Tenn., which will re-lend the money on short term notes to aid merchants who are co-operating with NRA.

This is the first commitment made by the corporation to mortgage loan companies for this purpose. The Nashville company was formed by three mercantile organizations and two manufacturing plants to take care of their short term needs.

WIGGIN GIVES UP $100,000 PENSION

Chase Floated $40,000,000 in Bonds With Cuba "Broke," Probers Find.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Albert H. Wiggin, for years head of the Chase National bank, today gave up his retired pay of $100,000 a year because of criticism resulting from the current inquiry into the financial house's operations by the senate banking committee.

Wiggin's letter to the bank board was put in the committee's record without comment by Ferdinand Pecora, its counsel, in an interruption of his investigation into Cuban dealings of the $2,000,000,000 banking firm.

While the bank's board met in New York to accept Wiggin's proposal, Pecora, a vice president, developed that it floated $40,000,000 in Cuban securities in America with knowledge of a Cuban treasury deficit.

Turning momentarily from the securities issue, Pecora during the day touched on efforts at building the

Paved Highway to Neel's Gap Is Promised Big Delegation

Talmadge, Mangham Tell North Georgians Route No. 9 Will Be Completed Within Year; 1,000 in Motorcade.

Completion of the paving of state route No. 9, between Atlanta and Neel's Gap, within a year was assured Wednesday after a great motorcade, composed of residents of the five counties along the route called on Governor Eugene Talmadge and Chairman J. J. Mangham, of the state highway board.

Already $100,000 of the state's $1,000,000 federal emergency highway fund has been allocated to the highway for work where nothing thus far has been done and the balance will be allocated from state funds early next year, Chairman Mangham informed the more than 1,000 citizens of north Georgia who made the trip to Atlanta in behalf of the highway.

As Governor Talmadge previously had told the delegation, it will be impossible because of federal regulations to complete the road out of federal funds, Mr. Mangham informed the group. He added, however, that early next year the department would have enough state funds on hand to push the project early next year and push it through to completion.

The work will be done in blocks and the entire task finished just as soon as it is humanly possible.

BANK LIQUIDATION PROGRAM PUSHED

Hope That Georgia State Banks Will Share Fund Expressed at Meeting.

Hope that state banks as well as national banks of Georgia which have closed since January 1 will share in the Reconstruction Finance Corporation program for liquidation of assets was given Wednesday by R. B. G. Clay, president of the Fulton National bank, who is chairing the sixth federal reserve district liquidation committee.

Mr. Clay's committee held its first meeting here Wednesday and made plans to begin paying off depositors of the closed banks within 30 days, where possible, the funds to be provided by the R. F. C. in exchange either for a lien or sale of the assets.

The committee chairman said he had received instructions from C. B. Merriam, R. F. C. board member in charge of the liquidation program, to arrange a conference between Attorney-General M. J. Yeomans and Assistant Attorney-General D. M. Parker, assigned to the state banking department, and attorneys of the R. F. C., at which a plan "suitable to Georgia" would be worked out. Mr. Clay said the conference would be held in a day or two.

Meanwhile members of the committee, representing the states comprising the sixth federal reserve district,

BANK ASSESSMENT HALTED BY COURT

Empire Trust Shareholders Fight Payment of 100 Cents on Dollar.

A temporary order restraining R. E. Gormley, state superintendent of banks, from collecting 100 per cent assessments from the stockholders of the closed Empire Trust Company, was issued late Wednesday by Judge G. H. Howard in Fulton county superior court.

The restraining order will be made a temporary injunction today, Judge Howard said, which will be framed for the protection of both depositors and stockholders until the case comes before a jury.

Edgar Craighead, Preston Arkwright, H. M. Atkinson, and Frank Shumate were the stockholders who sought the injunction to prevent their being forced to pay the full amount of their holdings.

Judge Howard said that it would be necessary for a jury to decide on the amount of assessment to insure proper protection for the 3,200 depositors.

Superintendent Gormley assessed all stockholders 100 per cent on May 23, 1933. The bank closed its doors in March, 1933. Gormley contended the full assessment was necessary for payment of the depositors within a 12-month period, as required by law, and that even 100 per cent would be

WISCONSIN JOINS IN MILK STRIKE

From 16,000 to 20,000 To Co-operate in Farmers' Holiday Drive.

By the Associated Press. The strike of the National Farmers' Holiday Association gained support in Wisconsin last night when the state's co-operative milk pool voted to join the non-buying, non-selling movement.

The Wisconsin organization will join the strike at 12:01 a. m. next Tuesday. Membership of the pool has been estimated between 16,000 and 20,000. In central Wisconsin more than 100 creameries and cheese factories already have closed to co-operate with the strikers.

Violence flared for a brief moment when Athens (Wis.) pickets threw ashes into a creamery churn and poured kerosene into the vats of two Marathon county cheese factories.

President A. W. Cameron, of the New Mexico holiday group, called on its members to join in the strike immediately.

In other states, however, little visible effort to enforce the holiday was apparent.

HOLLIDAY, MCGILL TO OPEN MEETING

Southern Political Science Association To Convene Tonight.

Delegates to the sixth annual session of the Southern Political Science Association at the Piedmont hotel will begin registering at 5:30 o'clock this afternoon for the three-day program involving a wide range of discussions by prominent educators.

Tonight's program starts with a dinner at the Piedmont at which President R. H. Holliday, of Cox College, will preside, and Ralph McGill, sports editor of The Constitution, will talk on present conditions in Cuba, where McGill spent a hectic vacation during the first runnings of the Machado overthrow. Discussion will be led by Mose Harvey, of Emory University.

Dr. Ruth L. Higgins, of the Woman's College of Alabama, will serve as chairman at a round-table and speaking program on the subject of international relations at 8 o'clock tonight. Speakers will include Kender C. Frazer, of the University of North Carolina, on "The League of Nations and Disarmament"; R. G. Howe, of the University of Alabama, on "Danger Zones on the European Map"; and D. E. Fleming, of Vanderbilt University, on "Nationalism vs. Internationalism in the Foreign Policy of the United States."

Discussion of the three phases of international relations will be heard from R. H. McLean, of Emory; Bessie C. Randolph, of Hollins College, and Roberta Hodgson, of the University of Georgia. The annual banquet of the association will be held at 6:30 o'clock Friday night with Dr. Cullen B. Gossnell, president, and Professor Thomas H. Reed, of the University of Michigan, as the principal speakers. Dr. H. J. Pearce Jr., of Brenau, will preside.

Prize Bridge Tournament Entrants Must Qualify Before 6 P.M. Friday

By WHITNER CARY. As the time draws near when the Atlanta bridge talent faces the barrier for the first session of the three qualifying rounds in the pair tournament, which will send the winners to Cincinnati in December to play in the national contract bridge championship, the bridge atmosphere becomes more and more heated. By Friday evening at 8 o'clock, when the initial bid is made at the Henry Grady hotel in the first qualifying round, the air should be so torrid with excitement and hope that refrigeration may be required to cool the assembled multitude.

These are hard times and people like to play bridge. They have all wanted to meet the experts of this country. Not many bridge players have the money to journey to a national championship where the crack eastern and western players can be seen in action.

The Constitution, the leading southern paper in things pertaining to bridge, has made it possible for three players to get their wish of meeting the experts. All they have to do is win the pair or individual tournament and this paper, in conjunction with the Henry Grady Bridge Club, will see that their transportation is paid to Cincinnati and return, their entrance fees paid in the pair event of

WORK CAN START WITHIN 30 DAYS; 500 TO GET JOBS

Special Agency To Undertake Construction and Then Lease Project to State on Fifteen-Year Amortization Plan.

$250,000 OF TOTAL IS OUTRIGHT GRANT

$1,300,000 Will Go for Buildings and Equipment and $200,000 To Be Allowed for Land.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS. WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—In keeping with assurances given Governor Eugene Talmadge during conferences with officials here last week, Secretary of Interior Ickes, national public works administrator, today announced an allotment of $1,500,000 for building the proposed new state prison in Tattnall county, Georgia.

As a means of circumventing provisions of the Georgia constitution which limit the borrowing power of the state, construction of the prison will be undertaken through a special agency to be set up by the public works administrator and then leased to the state on a basis whereby the cost of the project will be amortized in 15 years.

Thirty per cent of the cost of labor and materials going into the project, amounting to upwards of $250,000, will be treated as an outright federal grant, it was said.

The national public works board formally approved the Georgia application yesterday, but announcement of its action was withheld until this afternoon, following further conferences over details with Hugh Howell, of Atlanta, chairman of the state democratic executive committee, and the attorney designated by Governor Talmadge to present the state's application for the funds.

$200,000 for Land. Of the amount allocated for the new institution $1,300,000 will go for building and equipment, while $200,000 will be allowed for land. Already the state has acquired a 6,000-acre tract near Reidsville as a site for the prison.

State Chairman Howell, who arrived in Washington this morning, said he planned to remain here until the contract has been signed. As a part of the project, the necessary by the leasing method adopted, it is contemplated that the government organize a special corporation under the laws of the United States, which permit immediate incorporation, for handling construction details.

Mr. Howell, who was naturally elated over the action of the public works administration, said work could

Ansley Golf Greens No Pasture, Talmadge's Cow and Bull Learn

By L. A. FARRELL.

The fairways and the greens—particularly the greens—of the Ansley Park golf course are the pride and joy of affable T. L. Gunn, the club's generalissimo. You can have his last time, even his shirt, but stay off of those greens if you are out taking a stroll and be mighty careful when you're playing that you don't mar the turf.

For years Mr. Gunn has nursed his club's greens, almost fondled them. And how his big heart does swell when he hears them praised by golfers, which is often.

Not far distant is the executive mansion where everyone knows Gov-

Wedding Rings Used In Latest NRA Racket

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—(AP)—A chieftain with a new idea passes out wedding rings to his girl employees. The NRA complaint bureau is investigating a garment shop proprietor who is said to have bought a stock of wedding rings for his employees who work overtime on Saturday night. When investigators appear, the girls are told to slip on the rings and pose as bosses' wives.

Ernest Eugene Talmadge is keeping a cow and other stock, which includes a baby bull, said stock being under care of Leonard, the mansion's man-of-all-work, who takes just as much pride in his charges as does Mr. Gunn in his greens.

A day or two ago Leonard, with the cow and the baby bull tethered to his stately right arm, left the mansion grounds in search of favorable pasture for his herd. After walking a few blocks he espied the golf course with its beautiful rolling fairways and the greenest of the green greens. Here, if ever, was a pasture Utopia if ever there was one, and thither Leonard took his proteges. Never in all his pasture hunting had anything like this ever been encountered.

Leonard turned the cow and the young bull loose near the No. 1 green and they very promptly showed him how they liked his choice of pasture.

It wasn't long before some of Mr. Gunn's ever-watchful assistants dashed into his office and reported that his life work was about to be ruined.

Out rushed Mr. Gunn and in a few seconds he had told Leonard just what a terrible thing had been done. Leonard didn't seem particularly interested in the fate of the greens, but he certainly was distressed about the fact that it wasn't really a pasture he had found after all.

The last seen of Leonard he was herding the cow and the baby bull back toward the executive mansion and Mr. Gunn was herding Leonard. And that's the story of the first and last roundup in Ansley Park.

INDIANA MILITIA TO HUNT CONVICTS

Federal, State Authorities Join for Round-Up of Desperate Band.

REGISTRY IS URGED FOR MACHINE GUNS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—(AP)

The justice department is giving serious consideration to the possibility of seeking to reinforce its anti-gangster drive with a presidential order requiring registration of all machine guns.

Particular attention is given to the possibility of ordering the confiscation of all machine guns found in the possession of known gangsters, whether a particular violation of the law may be attached to them or not as the basis for such action.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 25.—(AP)

Governor Paul V. McNutt said today he was considering plans for employing the Indiana national guard in an effort to round up a band of convicts believed to have been involved in several recent bank robberies and the slaying of an Ohio sheriff.

But even as officers were planning their moves two more Indiana banks were robbed, one at Fillmore and another at Modoc. Today's bank hold-ups were the third and fourth this week and money taken brought the total loot for the three-day period close to $80,000.

Authorities were uncertain whether Fillmore and Modoc holdups were committed by members of the gang of convicts that fought their way out of the Michigan City prison September 26 and a few days later were joined by John Dillinger, alleged bank robber, delivered from the Lima (Ohio) jail by three men who shot and killed Sheriff Jess Barber.

Officers are positive, however, that Dillinger and Harry Piedmont, identified as the trigger man in the slaying of the Ohio sheriff, had a part in Monday's robbery of the Central National bank and Trust Company at Greencastle, which netted the hold-up band loot of approximately $75,000. It is considered likely, too, that Pierpont may have had a part in yesterday's holdup of the Western State bank at South Bend, when $1,500 in cash and a $1,000 in Liberty bonds were taken.

Prizes Awarded.

CHICAGO, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Three prizes of $100 each for poetry published in Harriet Monroe's "Poetry" magazine during the past two years were announced in the November issue today.

Improvement in Grocery Trade Is Reported by Q. S. S. Executive

Improvement in the physical setup and financial condition of individual grocers is better in Atlanta than in any other city, and Atlanta is considered the backbone of the Quality Service Stores organization, H. F. Swann, of Roanoke, manager of its sales promotion, who was here Wednesday, said.

"The general tone of business is improving," he said. "Gross sales are decidedly up, and Atlanta, which is our largest group, with over 200 units, we consider the backbone of our organization. The condition in Atlanta is due largely to the work of L. A. Welch, secretary in charge of advertising, and Jack Maziar, secretary in charge of buying."

Just now Q. S. S. is engaged in developing its warehouse system more completely.

Mr. Swann is here on a special trip to the Georgia territory. Q. S. S., he said, is now the largest group of individual grocers in the country, having 2,600 stores covering Georgia, the Carolinas, Virginia and West Virginia, Tennessee, Kentucky, Ohio, Maryland and Pennsylvania. Stores are being organized in Indiana.

Early End Predicted For Revolt in Siam

BANGKOK, Siam, Oct. 25.—(AP)

Government forces predicted early success today for their efforts to quell a 13-day-old revolt after a rebel leader had been killed.

Phya Sri Siddhi Songram, an aid of Prince Bowadaj, commander of the insurgents, was slain by a sergeant after a stiff fight.

Government troops subsequently claimed to be holding their own against the rebels.

JOBLESS TO RAISE FOOD ON FARMS NEAR BIRMINGHAM

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 25.—(AP)

Relief for scores of jobless through a farm colony was announced today with an initial federal appropriation of $1,000,000 made available for immediate work.

Dr. M. L. Wilson, director of the subsistence homestead section of the national recovery act, today outlined the plan under which between 300 and 500 families will be made partially self-sustaining on farm plots to be established within a 15-mile radius of Birmingham.

Each family, under the plan, will be placed on a 10-acre plot on which a four or five-room house, equipped with lights and water, will be constructed. The plot will be stocked with a cow, pigs, chickens, fruit trees and seed.

None of the food raised will go to the market, the family being limited to providing its own subsistence.

The plots are limited in size so that they can be tended during times of unemployment, or days off under the 40-hour industrial week.

67-Year-Old Motorcader Makes First Visit to City

Among the 1,000 members of the Route Number 9 motorcade which visited Atlanta Wednesday in the interest of completion of the road was 67-year-old Louis Fields, Lumpkin county farmer who has lived all of his life in north Georgia and who never before has visited Atlanta.

Mr. Fields was given a private audience with the governor.

"I saw some grand sights in Atlanta this morning," the north Georgian said. "Those street cars are funny things. I never before saw one of them."

After the meeting at the capital broke up, Mr. Fields and his north Georgia friends went on a sight-seeing tour.

Chinese Bandits Free American Missionary

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 25.—(AP)

Dr. Niels Nielsen, an American missionary held by Chinese bandits since April 11, telegraphed the Danish Missionary Society from Hsienyu today that he had been released.

Dr. Nielsen, whose home formerly was at Minneapolis, is attached to the Danish Lutheran mission at Hsienyu.

First reports of the kidnapping were received April 12, last, at the American consulate in Mukden, Manchuria. Hsienyu is about 110 miles south of Mukden.

After repeated efforts from many quarters to obtain his release, the Japanese foreign office announced September 9 that Japanese police had established contact with the gang that abducted the medical missionary.

No mention was made of the circumstances of his release in Dr. Nielsen's telegram today, however.

S. C. SPECIAL SESSION MAY NOT BE CALLED

COLUMBIA, S. C., Oct. 25.—(AP)

Prospects for a special legislative session to authorize state projects under the national public works program grew dim Tuesday when Governor Blackwood said sentiment appeared to be against it.

Judging from expressions of different members of the general assembly, the governor said, "it appears that the special session will not be favored."

SENATOR'S BROTHER ACCUSED OF LIES AGAINST WOMAN

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Robert Barbour, millionaire New Jersey manufacturer, is expected to come here tomorrow to answer a perjury indictment growing out of a former actress' accusations that he struck her with a whip.

Barbour, head of the Linen Thread Company and brother of United States Senator W. Warren Barbour, of New Jersey, was indicted yesterday after a long grand jury inquiry.

Miss Nina Martini, 25, sued him for $100,000 last June. She charged that Barbour, who is 50, weighs 300 pounds and is more than six feet tall, whipped her repeatedly in a midtown apartment in September, 1932. She said she suffered a physical collapse and retired to her home in Rome, N. Y.

On August 14 Barbour complained to District Attorney Crain that Miss Martini and her lawyer were trying to defraud him through the suit. A grand jury, after investigating, dismissed Barbour's charge and indicted him.

BUSSES ON RAILS WILL BE TESTED ON COTTON BELT

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Dissatisfied with its experimental operation of highway buses paralleling its lines, the St. Louis Southern (Cotton Belt) railroad will place two of its buses on its own rails next Sunday on regular runs.

A converted highway bus and a foreign-made gasoline car will make their debut simultaneously at Dallas, Texas, and Jonesboro, Ark., in an experimental effort to co-ordinate bus and train service. The buses will make opposite runs, one of them operating on rubber-cushioned wheels and the other on regulation pneumatic tires within flanged steel wheels.

The railroad has obtained permission from the interstate commerce commission to charge 2 cents a mile on the buses, with a 10 per cent reduction for round trips.

The Cotton Belt began the bus experiment it now is abandoning in 1928 paralleling nearly all of its passenger lines with highway buses. The two converted highway buses have a speed of 64 miles an hour, while the foreign-made car is capable of 80 miles an hour.

MISS MARIE C. HASTIE DIES IN PHILADELPHIA

Miss Marie Clinton Hastie, 61, member of a prominent South Carolina family and a sister of Mrs. W. W. Memminger, of Atlanta, was found dead in her hotel room in Philadelphia, Pa., Wednesday morning.

Death was ascribed to natural causes. Miss Hastie was en route to Atlantic City, N. J., when she became ill Tuesday and stopped at the hotel for the night. She resided in Charleston, S. C., and her family is widely known throughout the state. A brother, C. Norwood Hastie, is the owner of the famous Magnolia gardens, South Carolina shore place.

Mrs. Memminger is the wife of Dr. Memminger, rector of All Saints' Episcopal church, of Atlanta. Funeral services for Miss Hastie will be held Friday at Flat Rock, N. C., where burial also will take place.

COMPLIANCE BODY IS SET UP FOR NRA

Staff of Recovery Administration Reorganized Into Four Units.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—(AP)

Formally ordering reorganization of NRA's staff today, Hugh S. Johnson created a new compliance division which will have charge of enforcement of permanent codes throughout the country.

Johnson will head this section of NRA himself, pending appointment of a permanent director. He will likewise act as chairman of a national compliance board which will be the final NRA agency to act upon charges of violation before those which duty adjustment of differences are turned over to the federal trade commission or the attorney-general for punitive action.

Today's order also set up a trade association division under Thomas S. Hammond, of Chicago, whose job will be "to prepare plans for and to advise the organization of industry for industrial self government."

Important in the enforcement setup was an order for procedure by which complaints will not be referred to the code trade authorities by regional officers unless specifically ordered by Johnson himself, so the administration will retain a maximum of policing control. During creation of a permanent regional organization, district managers of the department of commerce in two-score principal cities will be charged with receiving and seeking to dispose of all complaints of code violations in their respective areas.

The remainder of the NRA staff, grown large in the task of rushing through codes for industries, ranging from the basic coal, steel, automobile, petroleum, lumber and textile manufacturers to small subdivisions, was divided into four units which will be in charge of Deputy Administrator K. M. Simpson, Malcolm Muir, C. C. Williams and Arthur D. Whiteside.

Each will have a number of the 17 other deputy administrators under him, together with a complete staff of legal, economic, industrial, labor and consumer advisors permanently assigned to each section.

Simpson will have charge of metals, coal, automobiles, shipping and related industries; Muir, construction, machinery, lumber and metal products; Williams, chemicals, leather and miscellaneous manufactures; Whiteside, trades and services, ranging from banks to barber shops, textiles and clothing.

MINNESOTA GOVERNOR RESIGNS NRA POSITION

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 25.—(AP)

Governor Floyd B. Olson resigned today as NRA enforcement officer for Minnesota.

He did so because other agencies had been set up to handle the code compliance work he has been doing since August 8, Olson said the NRA would continue to have his enthusiastic support.

CALIFORNIA GROWERS OF COTTON TO BE AIDED

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 25.—(AP)

Financial aid to cotton growers, enabling them to pay higher wages to striking pickers, has been promised by the Federal Land bank, of Berkeley.

If strikers and growers agree to accept the report of the arbitration committee which set the price for picked cotton at 75 cents a hundred pounds.

The strikers originally demanded a 40-cent increase to $1 a hundred pounds.

SARRAUT SEEKING FRENCH CABINET

"Father of Empire" Gets Call Over Chautemps, Radical Leader.

PARIS, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Plump, bald Senator Albert Sarraut, the "father of the French colonial empire," sought tonight a way to set up a stable ministry in the face of an unbalanced budget.

M. Sarraut, one of the most powerful newspaper publishers in France and a noted expert on wines, got the call above the radical party leader and former premier, Camille Chautemps. Today he consulted his friends and political leaders before definitely accepting the commission to form a cabinet.

He wanted the support of 29 right-wing socialists who split with the veteran leader Leon Blum and voted for the resigned premier, Edouard Daladier, whose government was overthrown on a project to balance the budget and protect the franc through new taxes and economies.

With the help of right-wing socialists, he sought the assurance of enough votes from the center to make a majority. His task admittedly was difficult.

With President Albert Lebrun, M. Sarraut canvassed the situation and tentatively accepted the job, subject to the advice of his friends, with whom he examined prospects of getting a majority to further the center view, wrecked by the left cartel.

An official announcement at the palace said: "M. Sarraut has accepted this mission."

"The situation is sufficiently serious and sufficiently confused," he said, to require preliminary consultations.

"I am not going to lose time, but I have no intention of breaking a speed record. I am accustomed to working seriously and methodically."

GOLD PRICE HIKED BY U. S. PURCHASE, MARKETS RESPOND

The gold might receive the full announced purchase price, $31 to $31.09.

Today's price of $31.36 compared with a London price that fluctuated from $31 to $31.09, as the foreign exchange value of the dollar in pounds changed during the day. Yesterday, the domestic price quoted by the treasury under a system now discarded was $29.80.

This system called for a price based directly on the world market quotations with insurance, handling and shipping charges deducted. At the resulting figure, the treasury and federal reserve system had been receiving newly-minted gold for sale to domestic industries and for export. The price ranged from a high of $32.28 on September 20 to a low of $29 on October 15.

It was disclosed on excellent authority that President Roosevelt had no immediate intention of carrying out the second section of his "managed currency plan." This involves buying and selling gold on the European market with a resulting influence on foreign exchange.

The chief executive, it was said, is keeping his future plans strictly to himself, regardless of insistent inquiries from the New York financial centers as to what may be expected. The administration is working toward a definite and clearly-defined objective, it was explained, and this has been given to the public.

Restore Prices.

Mr. Roosevelt's gold policy, as outlined in his address of Sunday night is first of all to restore the dollar to a level that would give the farmer and manufacturer profitable prices and thus encourage business expansion with a consequent increase in employment. When that objective has been attained, he said, the next step would be to stabilize the dollar that its purchasing and debt paying power would not change through the ensuing generation.

Mr. Roosevelt was represented as well pleased with the public response to his plans. He has received more than 2,000 telegrams regarding them and only a few were described as critical. A New Englander wired: "Don't like your speech. Don't understand it."

A westerner said: "Think you are all wrong. Silver is the only proper medium of exchange."

The idea of issuing an executive order, announced by Jones, was later abandoned. Treasury officials were busy throughout the day, however.

Bank Liquidation Board Maps Program Here

Plans for liquidation of the banks closed in the sixth federal reserve district since January 1 were mapped Wednesday at a meeting of the district liquidation committee at the Federal Reserve bank here. It was announced that payments to depositors of the closed institutions with funds provided by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation would begin within 30 days. The members of the committee are shown above.

COMMODITY PRICES GIVEN SHARPEST LIFT OF MONTH

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Buyers prompted by the R. F. C.'s first boost in the gold price gave the speculative commodity markets the sharpest lift since September today.

The aggregate advance in the New York Stock Exchange was smaller than either yesterday's or Monday's, but many issues finished $1 to $5 a share higher in the most active trading of the week. In the bond market, a few of the gilt-edged issues, including United States government obligations, however, as most foreign gold bonds boomed, in response to the inflationary aspects of lifting the gold price.

Grains were among the leaders of the rise in commodities, with wheat in the Chicago pit registering an extreme advance of about 4 cents. Corn and oats pushed up about 2 cents, and rye 4 cents. Cotton, as most New York finished 70 to 90 cents a bale higher, spot copper advanced 1-2 cent a pound, bar silver 1-8 cent and gold, raw hides futures about 1-2 cent a pound, and tin 3-4 of a cent.

Several markets slid off from the day's best levels in the late trading, particularly stocks, many of which lost about half their advance. Many speculators found the indicated rate of advance of the gold price more conservative than they had expected, and hastened to take profits.

The aggregate advance in speculative commodities, however, as measured by Moody's daily index of 15 principal sensitive staples, was the sharpest since September 18. This index indicated that commodity prices had recovered the loss since October 5, with the December delivery, which dipped under 70 cents a bushel little more than a week ago, closing at 88 cents.

HEAD OF A. B. A. OPPOSES INFLATION MOVEMENT

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Francis Marion Ivy, of Houston, Texas, president of the American Bankers' Association, told the Louisiana Bankers' Association here today that "a great majority of the thoughtful bankers of the country today would favor inflation of the currency only as a last resort."

"On the subject of inflation there is a difference of opinion among thoughtful bankers," he said. "I have had opportunity to sound sentiment of bankers on this subject. Many have been small bankers, many large. They have represented every different type of banking. Some have been from the city and some from the country and I can tell you I believe the great majority of thoughtful bankers of the country today would favor inflation of the currency only as a last resort."

"There is, of course, a wide difference between credit expansion and currency inflation. The first is a sound and altogether desirable. The president... has never been regarded as an inflation partisan and he has been slow to say the least in using any of the power given him by congress."

GOVERNOR BRYAN HOPES FOR MORE "BASIC MONEY"

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 25.—(AP)—Hope that President Roosevelt's gold purchase plan would mean "more basic money" was expressed by Governor Charles W. Bryan today as he echoed the more money pleas voiced by his brother, William Jennings Bryan, 37 years ago.

The governor said the silver issue declined after his brother failed to win the presidency of his free coinage campaign of 1896 but the only reason was because of "the discovery of a great deal of additional gold and improved processes of refining."

"Gold," Governor Bryan said, "thus served the need for additional money and for a number of years the silver question was not acute. Conditions are now arising which it seems to me

LONDON BANKERS WATCH AMERICAN EXPERIMENT

LONDON, Oct. 25.—(AP)—America's start in the gold buying business was watched carefully by London brokers and bankers today, but it had little effect on the London gold market.

Brokers pointed out that President Roosevelt's experiment deals specifically with newly mined gold recovered from natural deposits in the United States and that so long as only such gold is dealt in there is likely to be little effect felt here.

Gold shares on the stock exchange rose sharply in anticipation of possible results of the entry of America into the gold market on their price and output.

GERMANS SEE ATTEMPT TO DOMINATE MARKETS

BERLIN, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Financial circles in Berlin regarded the American gold policy today as another attempt by America to dominate world markets.

They declared a further depreciation of the dollar will follow increased gold prices in the United States, with a subsequent aggravation of the struggle for world markets, in which Germany would be the loser.

Official circles considered how they might meet American dumping, while exporters believed that British sterling must follow the dollar because Great Britain will try its best to keep a hold on international markets.

PARIS EXCHANGE EXPERTS CONFUSED BY MOVEMENT

PARIS, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Exchange experts in Paris frankly admitted today they were confused as to the real intent and effect of American purchases of gold.

The fixing of the price at the same level as the one at which the dollar was being quoted in foreign markets caught some speculators short.

Their rush to cover themselves boosted the dollar rate temporarily, but later trading took it down to 16.95 francs (U. S. $1.00) from 17.00 francs (U. S. $1.00).

Speculators received a shock with the announcement that the United States government was buying gold at $31 a fine ounce because they had expected a price of about $30.

HEAVY FROST SEEN IN ATLANTA TODAY

Miami and the southern portion of Florida were looking for fog, with partly cloudy conditions. The rest of the south was expected to be clear.

Locally today's low mark will be the coolest since last March, and Wednesday was the lowest since April 21. There is no indication of rain.

The fall until recently had been unusually dry, but heavy rainfalls virtually made up the deficiency. Today's frost will give the first rainfall touch of autumn to foliage.

SEVEN DROWNED AS WINTER GALES HIT NORTHERN AREAS

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Seven men were reported drowned and one hunter was missing as winter weather, accompanied by gales and heavy snow storms made a premature visit yesterday.

Shipping was generally at a standstill as heavy seas lashed a fog-shrouded north Atlantic seaboard. Snowfalls blanketed New York mountains and the Superior region.

Seven log rollers who took refuge on a small island because of the rising waters of the Salmon river were swept downstream to their deaths, according to word received at St. John, N. B. State troopers denied snow shoes to trudge through heavy drifts near Elizabethtown, N. Y., in efforts to find Ted Benson, a hunter.

The storm in New York blocked roads, marooned autoists and broke communication lines. In northern Vermont several thousand dollars in property damage resulted from the snow.

The fall at Duluth was 12 inches, the heaviest October snow in 47 years. Other Minnesota cities also reported snow and Nebraska had its first freezing temperatures of the year. In North Dakota the thermometer registered as low as 14 above. Chicago and Cleveland saw snow flurries.

From Halifax came word that the Atlantic gale halted departure of vessels. The Swedish liner, Drottningholm, crawled through heavy seas, behind schedule. The American trawler, Adventurer, out of Boston, showed through the storm from the fishing banks, its engines straining, to rush Fred Thomas, her engineer, to a hospital to be treated for pneumonia.

In Canada, parts of Quebec and Ontario were caught in snow, sleet and rain storms.

Western Maryland had snow flurries and temperatures of 30 above while farther south in Dixie temperatures of around 36—considered "cold" there—were forecast.

FURTHER RECESS IS ASKED ON ARMS

Conference Today Will Pass on Plan for Close
Until December 4.

GENEVA, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Adjournment of the world disarmament conference until December 4 was recommended by its steering committee today.

Simultaneous reports, originating in German circles, were current that Chancellor Hitler's government would announce the conditions for Germany's return to the arms discussions and the League of Nations after the November 12 plebiscite, called when her intention to quit both councils was announced.

A member of the bureau, not the League of Nations, and not the four-power western European peace pact, must handle disarmament when Rene Massigli, the French delegate, insisted before the steering committee that all disarmament discussions must be held exclusively in Geneva.

Arthur Henderson, the British chairman of the conference, said in a speech that it would be disastrous to adopt a policy which could be interpreted as unwillingness to complete the task of disarmament.

The proposal for a recess, subject to the approval of the conference at a session tomorrow, was made with the understanding that a recognition of discussions in December depends on the progress made in the interim, either by private conversations or through a special committee.

A member of the bureau, or steering committee, said the group believed the conference should continue, but without placing Germany in an unfair position in any way.

American Ambassador Norman H. Davis, head of the United States delegation, has not decided on his immediate plans, but it was considered likely if adjournment is voted that he will go to Washington to confer with President Roosevelt.

Col. Robert Van Horne New McPherson Head

Colonel Robert O. Van Horne, now assigned to the University of California, at Berkeley, has been ordered to take over command of Fort McPherson in the near future. Colonel Van Horne has become a brigadier general on December 1. He succeeds Brigadier General George H. Estes as commander of McPherson. General Estes having been transferred to Fort Benning, at Columbus.

Colonel Thomas S. Moorman is acting commander of Fort McPherson pending arrival of General Estes' successor. The definite date of Colonel Van Horne's arrival in Atlanta will be announced later, it was said.

14 Banks Involved.

In all there are 14 banks in Georgia involved. Eight national banks will share in the program immediately and it is hoped that part of the fund will be made available for the six closed state banks.

Mr. Clay said that he had laid the whole Georgia situation before Merriam and had received authorization to call the conference of attorneys to work out the program. Under the general plan of the R. F. C., state banks superintendents in charge of the closed institutions is to make loans in the amounts fixed by the appraisal boards and approved by the committees. However, Georgia's constitution prohibits the making of loans by its state officials and it will be necessary either to make an out-let for the assets of the closed institutions or to permit the banks to reopen and to make the loans direct through the banking superintendent.

R. E. Gormley, state superintendent of banks already has announced that any plan approved by the committee will be agreeable to him.

Those attending the conference here Wednesday in addition to Mr. Clay and his associates at the Fulton National, Vice Presidents Ronald Ransom and W. V. Crowley were:

J. D. O'Keefe, president of the Whitney National Bank, of New Orleans; for Louisiana; J. T. Walker Jr., president of the Atlantic National Bank, of Jacksonville, for Florida; Marshall Hunter, president of the First National Bank and Trust Company, of Macon, for Georgia; D. B. Harris, vice president of the Hamilton National Bank, of Chattanooga, for that part of Tennessee in the sixth federal reserve district, and Frank W. Foote, president of the First National Bank, of Hattiesburg, for Mississippi.

Walter Henley, president of the Birmingham Trust and Savings Bank, the Alabama representative on the committee, was unable to attend the meeting here.

PURCHASE AND PROFIT

LETTER TO HOOVER CITED IN SHIP QUIZ

Sale and Resale of Vessel at Huge Profit Under Inquiry.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—(AP)—The names of former President Hoover and several of his cabinet members were brought into testimony again today before the special senate committee investigating mail.

Taking up the Colombian Steamship Company, Chairman Black, democrat, Alabama, questioned C. H. C. Pearson, vice president, closely as to whether he had conferred with Andrew Mellon, then secretary of the treasury, during negotiations for purchase of ships from the shipping board. Pearson said he did not see Mellon or anyone representing him.

The questioning centered on the purchase by the Colombian company of the steamship Haiti from the government for $10,000 and its sale a couple of years later, in 1928, to the Ocean Dominion Steamship Corporation, known as the Aluminium Line, for minimum consideration totaling $205,000.

The committee chairman said the government paid $1,000,000 for the vessel and spent more than the $10,000 Colombian purchase price in repairs.

The committee brought out that an agreement to stay out of competition with the Ocean Dominion Line for a specified time, was part of the sales contract.

Before turning to the Colombian company, the committee questioned H. H. Bond, former assistant secretary of the treasury, on his activities in support of the Black Diamond Steamship Company's fight with the United States Lines for purchase of the Black Diamond vessels from the shipping board. Earlier in the hearings a letter was produced in which Bond wrote Mr. Hoover setting forth why the Black Diamond should be given preference.

Bond said he conferred with Robert P. Lamont, then secretary of commerce, and Walter Brown, then postmaster-general, before he delivered the letter telling why the Black Diamond should be given preference personally to the president. He told the committee he worked only as an attorney, and did not lobby or use "influence."

City Jail Fire Trap, Fire Chief Charges

Chief O. J. Parker, of the Atlanta fire department, and Henry Carter, head of the bureau of fire inspection, Wednesday characterized the police station as "a fire trap of the worst kind" after an inspection tour.

They began at once preparation of a report which will be filed with Fulton county grand jury urging the necessity for a new station.

The old building is unsafe in the event of a fire of any proportions, according to the findings of the fire officials.

"Given a little headway, the fire would spread rapidly and prisoners would be caught like rats in a trap," Chief Parker said after surveying the old building. "Many of the windows have been stripped with tin to keep out cold air and rain. Prisoners would have little opportunity of escaping with their lives."

Clayton County Man Slays Self With Gun

J. S. Kimball, 43, who resided and operated a store on Riverdale road, in Clayton county, shot and killed himself Wednesday with a shotgun. He was a brother of Dr. W. A. Kimball, of Atlanta.

Mr. Kimball was found dead in his store Wednesday morning by relatives. He died of a shotgun wound in the chest, self-inflicted, according to a verdict Wednesday afternoon by the Clayton county coroner.

Surviving are his wife, two daughters, Mrs. Paul Hughes and Mrs. E. B. Estes; two sons, Ralph E. and Ernest King, of Atlanta; four sisters, Mrs. E. L. McCrory, Mrs. Fred Allman and Miss Martha Kimball, of Atlanta, and Mrs. E. L. Barrett, of Panama City, Fla., and his brother.

Funeral arrangements are to be announced by H. M. Patterson & Son.

EMMETT PADEN DIES AT JULIETTE HOSPITAL

Stricken ill while driving a freight train, Emmett P. Paden, Atlanta engineer for the Southern railroad, died Wednesday morning at Juliette, Ga.

Mr. Paden took his train out from Atlanta and was apparently in good health, it was said. He was taken ill as the train approached Juliette and was removed to a friend's home, where he died within a few hours. It was thought death was caused by a heart attack. The body was brought to Atlanta Wednesday afternoon and funeral arrangements will be announced by H. M. Patterson & Son.

Mr. Paden, who was 55 years of age, resided at 305 Wellington street, S. W. He had been connected with the Southern for more than 30 years and was well known in Atlanta. He was a member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and of the Gordon Street Presbyterian church.

Surviving are his wife; a daughter, Miss Louise Paden; two sisters, Mrs. Walter H. Cheshire and Miss Minnie Paden, of Atlanta, and three brothers, R. S. Paden, of Atlanta; E. A. Paden, of Ensley, Ala., and W. L. Paden, of Wilmington, N. C.

SHELDON G. VAN DYKE DIES IN BALTIMORE

The body of Sheldon G. Van Dyke, former Atlantan, who died Tuesday at his home in Baltimore, will be brought to Atlanta this morning at 9 o'clock, and arrangements for the funeral will be announced by H. M. Patterson and Son.

Mr. Van Dyke resided here for many years but 20 years ago removed to Baltimore. He was a traveling representative for a national rubber concern.

He was a brother of Mrs. Clifford Anderson, of Atlanta; the uncle of Mrs. John Elzer, and the brother-in-law of Miss Gertrude and Miss Irene Singleton, all of Atlanta.

Also surviving are his wife; a daughter, Mrs. A. P. Schussler, of Baltimore; two sons, Robert L. and Wilson J. Van Dyke, of Baltimore; and a brother, Earl Van Dyke, of Richmond, Va.

ITALIAN CROWN PRINCE IN GERMAN ACCIDENT

BERLIN, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Crown Prince Humbert of Italy, his wife and sister, Princess Philip of Tesse, traveling incognito in a taxi-cab from Berlin to Potsdam, were involved in an accident in which no one was hurt, it was learned today.

Their driver crashed into a motorcycle and sidecar while the three royal visitors were en route to Potsdam to see the sights. The motorcycle was smashed.

Dog and Pony Show on Way

Here are shown some of the dog and pony actors in Gentry's dog and pony show, which will be seen here four days, beginning next Monday. Mr. Gentry, who retired 15 years ago, returns with the show. The first performances on Monday and Tuesday will probably be shown at Ponce de Leon and Penn avenues and the others at Park and Peters streets. Kapitan, movie star and son of Rin Tin Tin, will be one of the attractions.

ROOSEVELT FAVOR CLAIMED BY M'KEE

LaGuardia Says Statement Is Admission of Weakness by Rival.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Joseph V. McKee today held a group of old-guard republicans, headed by Ogden L. Mills, responsible for "injection of the name of President Roosevelt into New York's bitter mayoral campaign."

While Fiorello H. LaGuardia, fusion nominee, called McKee's statement that "a vote for McKee is a vote for Roosevelt" a "confession of weakness," the independent democrat said:

"Mr. Roosevelt was brought into the campaign when republican leaders, Mills; former Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson; Nicholas Murray Butler and others, came in and made support of LaGuardia a means for attempting to break down President Roosevelt's leadership."

"You can be sure of one thing," he smiled, "on Wednesday morning after the election, if I am defeated, you'll see interviews in the morning papers from the old-guard republicans saying, 'He, he, Roosevelt was licked in his first test.'"

Asserting McKee's statement was a confession he "cannot win on his own merits," LaGuardia said that national affairs had no place in a campaign designed to end Tammany Hall's grip on the city's government.

"A vote for Mr. McKee in 1933 is simply a vote for political machine government," said LaGuardia. "In view of President Roosevelt's repeated statement that he is taking no part in city or local campaigns, Mr. McKee's presumptuous statement must be embarrassing to the president."

LaGuardia said that McKee's sponsors "have realized the hopelessness of their campaign," and "in despair are making a desperate effort to becloud the real issue."

As the two candidates fought over use of the president's name in the campaign, it was said again at the White House that Mr. Roosevelt was not taking any notice of any local election, and that he did not have the time to do so.

Prisoner Kills Self With Guard's Pistol

WILMINGTON, Del., Oct. 25.—(AP) Julio Pacillo, 28, who was charged with critically wounding a girl and then slashing his own throat, killed himself in a hospital today with the pistol of the policeman who was guarding him.

Hospital authorities said that the policeman left the weapon on a bureau a few feet from Pacillo's bed and went to breakfast. Pacillo, who was strapped to the bed, wiggled loose and reached the pistol.

Trade Pact Likely To Follow U.S. Recognition of U.S.S.R.

Soviet Is Great Consumer of Manufactured Goods and America Will Share This Market.

(The following deals with soviet-American trade—the last of a series in connection with the forthcoming recognition discussions between President Roosevelt and Foreign Affairs Commissioner Litvinoff, of Russia.)

BY R. H. HIPPELHEUSER.
NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—(AP)—A United States senator, recently returned from Russia, told of seeing 75 or so foreign ships in the Leningrad harbor—and not a one flying the American flag.

This exemplifies the principal hindrance to soviet-American commerce: the absence of a trade treaty. Recognition of the U. S. S. R. by the United States would undoubtedly be followed quickly by enactment of such a treaty. This would eliminate the excessive duties and port charges that now make direct shipping between soviet and American ports well-nigh impossible; it would facilitate commerce by the re-establishment of consular services in both countries; it would, in all probability, remove drastic restrictions now placed against the importing of some soviet commodities.

Heavy Consumer.
Russia's value in commerce, particularly as it affects the United States, is that she is a heavy consumer of manufactured goods.

The bulk of the American-Russian trade has been in this field. This trade reached its peak in 1929 when America sold $115,000,000 in goods to the soviet union. The next year, our exports totaled approximately $108,000,000; in 1932, only $12,948,000; and for the first eight months of this year, about $5,500,000.

Always, America's trade with the soviet has shown an exceedingly heavy balance in favor of this nation.

This trade has progressed, until recent months, without any aid from the federal government. In fact, the state and commerce departments have frequently warned American businessmen and industrialists that trade with the soviet would be at their own risk.

Need Credits.
The soviet needs long-term credits to buy abroad.

And the drop in their American purchases has been due, in large part, to the fact that easier credits were obtainable from foreign nations. There was another factor for the recent decrease: the soviet union recently indicated that renewed heavy trade with America would be dependent on the establishment of regular diplomatic relations.

Foreign powers have gone far in seeking the soviet trade. Italy, Great Britain, Germany, Austria and other nations have extended government guarantees on soviet sales. In Italy, this approximates 75 per cent. France recently opened negotiations looking toward such a guarantee.

These are not loans on credits direct to the soviet—but to the exporters dealing with them.

The London Times, last March, said that the British government had guaranteed some 12,000,000 pounds on soviet sales—starting in 1929; and that Russia had repaid, promptly, up to 5,000,000 pounds.

Germany has benefited most from soviet trade, although the friction between the nazi regime and Moscow in recent months has somewhat slashed this intercourse. Early in 1933, the soviet were due to pay the German government some 300,000,000 gold marks. An extension was obtained on this—after, it was reported, the soviet had obtained sufficient options on "blocked" marks held in other countries to pay the debt.

All international trade of the soviet union is conducted through the people's commissariat for foreign trade. Its representative in America is the Amtorg Trading Corporation, in New York, founded in 1924.

Amtorg acceptances, given to those who sell to the soviet, are not discountable in American banks. Consequently, this precludes many smaller businesses—unable to carry the paper—from participating in the soviet trade. Recognition undoubtedly would also be followed by some remedy for this.

Chase National.
Most of Russia's obligations to American firms are paid off through the Chase National bank. The American-Russian Chamber of Commerce, an organization of American firms engaged in soviet trade, stands sponsor for the statement that the soviet have never defaulted on a single one of these obligations.

There have been numerous charges that certain soviet imports in America are the product of indentured labor. While these charges ultimately have been knocked out in the courts, the shipments have oftentimes been delayed. The re-establishment of consular services would eliminate most of these difficulties, allowing certification at the point of origin. Such charges have been directed mainly against lumber imports—which consist for the most part of spruce—in competition with large Canadian interests.

The soviet union exports to the United States large quantities of manganese, chrome ore, furs and asbestos. Since the United States is a consumer, and not a producer, of these products, there is little commercial friction between the two nations.

Stentless Seed.
Wheat is the outstanding exception. And there is a strong indication that the near future will see a settlement of the disruption of the London wheat control parity, caused by the soviet walking out after being refused an increase in their export quota of 4,000,000 bushels to approximately twice that amount.

The first break in the federal attitude toward soviet commerce came with the recent approximately $4,500,000 loan from the R. F. C. to cotton exporters for soviet sales. The negotiations progressed toward a much larger loan from the R. F. C. for the Russian purchase of additional cotton and other commodities.

With recognition apparently in the offing, it is likely that one of two things beneficially to Russian trade will result: either a government guarantee as in other nations; or direct credits from the R. F. C. for the purchase of agricultural and industrial commodities.

Those interested in soviet-American trade, however, have pointed out frequently that easier credit for such trade, and increased sales, is not going to be any cure-all for ills of commodity surpluses. Albeit, it seems certain that well over $100,000,000 in orders will be placed within a few months' time.

Promote. Repayments.

2D WARD VOTERS FAIL TO MAKE BOND

Appearing voluntarily in the office of Solicitor-General John A. Boykin early Wednesday morning, Mrs. W. M. Carmichael, 1151 Oxford road, requested that her bond of $300 set by the grand jury Tuesday in connection with a probe into illegal registering and voting in the second ward primary of September 20, to be extended. Her request was granted and the sheriff's office said late Wednesday that neither Mrs. Carmichael, her husband, nor P. Donovan, indicted with her, had made bond.

Meanwhile, the special election fraud committee continued to press charges of illegal voting and that such procedure had enabled Howard McCutcheon to defeat Warren Leak for council from that ward.

CONSTABLE IS SHOT IN TENNESSEE CHURCH

ELIZABETHTON, Tenn., Oct. 25.—(AP)—Shot in the back as he stood singing in front of a church pulpit, Constable John Arnett was in a critical condition at a hospital here today. The shooting occurred last night near Roan Mountain, 18 miles from here. Arnett, song leader at a revival being held at a small Methodist church, was fired on through the church window. Sheriff J. M. Moreland arrested Howard Arnett, third cousin of the officer, in connection with the shooting.

"GREEN PASTURES" BOX OFFICE SALE TO START TODAY

The box office sale of seats for the performance of "Green Pastures," the Pulitzer prize winning play to be presented by the original company at the Erlanger theater all next week, opens this morning at 10 o'clock. Remarkably low prices for such an important attraction and so expensive a production, are in force. There will be six night performances next week with Wednesday and Saturday matinees and all seats for each performance are now available at the theater.

There has already been a considerable sale by mail and it is expected that Atlanta, which has been reading of this unique play for several years, will flock to the Erlanger in numbers to tax the capacity of that house.

Taken from the book of "Old Man Adam and His Chillin," the play by Marc Connelly depicts the idea of the Bible stories and of Heaven held by the average negro. There are more than 100 in the cast and the stage settings require a crew of more than 30 stage hands to operate. Three full-size box cars are used to transport the scenes and effects.

THOUSANDS SEND MARIE DRESSLER BIRTHDAY CHEER

Some striking messages are to be found in the Marie Dressler birthday book, which sponsored by The Constitution and Loew's Grand theater, has been placed in the lobby of that house for the signature of all Atlantans.

Many of the thousands who have already signed the book have written brief messages of congratulation and good cheer, as well as appreciation for her splendid work on the screen, to the star. She will be 62 years old on November 9 and the great book will be sent to her home at Hollywood by express, timed to reach there on the morning of the birth anniversary.

The first signature in the book is that of Governor Eugene Talmadge, while many other prominent and distinguished citizens have appended their names to the list. But it is certain that the genial and well beloved Marie will appreciate every signature, no matter how humble its owner, just as much as those of the most famous personages.

There is still plenty of room in the big book and Atlantans are urged to hurry and sign their names before the time comes when the book must be closed and sent to Hollywood.

FREEDOM DENIED ATLANTA PRISONERS

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 25.—(P)—The United States fifth circuit court of appeals today upheld lower court decisions denying freedom on habeas corpus writs to John Rosso and Fred Poffenberger, who are serving terms in the Atlanta penitentiary. Rosso was convicted on narcotic charges and Poffenberger is serving time for mail robbery.

Jobless Holiday Dinners To 'Chicken Surplus'

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—(P)—Thanksgiving and Christmas chicken dinners for the 3,000,000 families of relief rolls may help solve another farm surplus problem.

Gov. Peary's farm experts are considering recommending purchase of 15 chickens by the federal relief administration as a price-lifting move.

It carried out, farm officials estimate the 3,000,000 chicken dinners would take around 30,000,000 pounds of dressed poultry off a market where September storage reached the big figure of 47,000,000 pounds.

Naval Crash Is Laid To 'Mystery Craft'

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 25.—(P)—Explorations of the collision of the cruiser Chicago and the British freighter Silverpalm which badly damaged the fighting ship and resulted in the death of three navy men came from both vessels today while the Chicago was warped into drydock at Mare Island for repairs.

Tales of a mystery ship at the scene of the collision were told by naval officers.

Vice Admiral Harrie Laning and Captain Herbert E. Kays said the Chicago had maneuvered to escape "a large freighter off our starboard side," just before the crash. They said the mysterious ship disappeared in the fog.

HOUSE GROUP TO OPEN NAZI INQUIRY NOV. 14

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—(P)—Representative Dickstein, democrat, New York, announced tonight that a subcommittee of the house immigration committee would begin an investigation November 14 into Nazi propaganda in the United States.

Dickstein, chairman of the immigration committee, also said he had asked the department of labor to investigate the standing of Heinz Spanknebel, reputed Nazi propagandist in New York city, with a view to having him deported.

Baldwin, Explorer, Is Killed by Auto

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—(P)—Evelyn Briggs Baldwin, noted explorer, was killed tonight when he was struck by an automobile while crossing a street. He was 71 years old.

Baldwin, who was one of Peary's companions on the latter's second expedition to Greenland in 1908, was dead upon arrival at a hospital.

He was connected with the United States weather bureau as an observer until last July.

His experience as a meteorologist gave Baldwin his chance to go with Peary into Greenland. Baldwin dreamed for years of reaching the North Pole himself, but his ambition never was realized.

In 1908 he went north with Walter Wallman and then in 1901 was commander of the Baldwin-Ziegler expedition.

Baldwin, who was never married, was born in Springfield, Mo., July 22, 1862.

Sales Tax Collections Gain in Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss., Oct. 25.—(P)—A new record for sales tax collections was established today by the state tax commission as October revenue passed the high figure of $250,794.06 set last November. State officials attributed the record collections to steadily increasing wholesale and retail business in the state.

At the start of business today the total was $250,452.08 and before noon more than $6,000 had been added in new returns, shooting the collection to a new high above $256,000.

A year ago the whole month of October yielded only $230,392.02. This month's yield is already more than $30,000 over the same month a year ago and $90,000 above last month.

ICKES DECLARES WAR ON OIL 'CHISELERS'

CHICAGO, Oct. 25.—(P)—Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, administrator of the oil industry's NRA code, promised the oil men today that "cheating and chiseling" would be stopped.

"The administration means business," Secretary Ickes told 1,000 leaders of the industry, in a speech before the American Petroleum Institute's convention.

Unless the government's production orders, setting the amount each state can produce, were carried out, said Secretary Ickes, he would invoke the drastic powers given him by the oil code. The high price in the code book is government licensing. The secretary did not specifically refer to this.

MISSISSIPPI GOVERNOR LEAVES WIFE'S BEDSIDE

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 25.—(P)—Governor Martin Sennett Connor, of Mississippi, who has been at the bedside of his wife here for several days, returned to Jackson, Miss., this morning by automobile, following an announcement at the Baptist hospital that Mrs. Connor would be removed from the hospital to a local hotel.

POLICE RADIO SYSTEM FOR ST. PETERSBURG

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Oct. 25.—(P)—The third police radio system in Florida is being installed here, and will be in operation within a week, Chief R. H. Noel announced today.

Five radio-equipped cruising cars will patrol the city's 58 square miles of area.

POLITICAL LEADER OF CANADA PASSES

VANCOUVER, B. C., Oct. 25.—(P)—W. J. Bowser, former premier of British Columbia, died suddenly at his hotel here today after a heart attack.

During recent months Mr. Bowser had been waging a strenuous political campaign as head of the independent non-partisan candidates contesting the British Columbia general elections.

COLOMBIA AND PERU SEEK PEACE IN RIO

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 25.—(P)—Representatives of Colombia and Peru began a conference today looking to a settlement of the Leticia warfare, confident that the long-standing dispute between the two nations could be ended satisfactorily.

Legion May Pick Montreal.

A strong likelihood that the American Legion will hold its 1935 convention in Montreal was admitted in an interview by Commander General Louis A. Johnson, highest ranking officer in the Legion, Johnson said that Montreal will be suggested as the 1935 rendezvous and added that he believed its adoption probable.

Canada's Fish Week Set.

Canada's "fish week" will be held from October 30 to November 4, it was decided at the eighteenth annual meeting of the Canadian Fisheries Association in Montreal. During the week the association will launch a Dominion-wide publicity campaign to make Canadians "eat more fish."

Hull May Leave U. S. Before Litvinoff Lands

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—(P)—With even the highest officials joining in the guessing, there appeared strong question here today whether Secretary Hull would be able to shake hands with the holder of his corresponding office in the soviet union, Maxim Litvinoff, commissar for foreign affairs.

The consensus appeared to lean rather strongly toward the view that Hull would be embarked upon his good-will tour to South America before Litvinoff landed to discuss recognition with President Roosevelt.

Subject always to last-minute alterations, the best informed opinion was that Hull would sail from New York at noon on Saturday, November 4, and that Litvinoff would not land "until around the sixth."

MURRAY EMPLOYS FORCE TO SEIZE SOLDIERS' HOME

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 25.—(P)—By executive order Governor William H. Murray today seized the Union Soldiers' Home here in defiance of a district court injunction prohibiting interference with the institution, closed since the governor refused to approve a $28,000 appropriation for its operation.

Trustees of the home, who won control of the property in a court fight with Murray last summer, conferred immediately with attorneys to plan counter action.

The governor called out Adjutant General Charles F. Barrett, of the national guard, to enforce his executive order after Mrs. G. B. McGinley, former matron at the home, refused to give P. B. Bostic, superintendent of University hospital, the keys to the building.

When Bostic returned accompanied by General Barrett, Mrs. McGinley relinquished the keys.

The governor plans to convert the home building into an annex of University hospital, a state institution.

A. P. MANAGING EDITORS MEET AT FRENCH LICK

FRENCH LICK, Ind., Oct. 25.—(P)—More than one hundred managing editors of Associated Press newspapers in various parts of the United States were gathering here tonight for a two-day conference on news problems which opens Thursday.

Among the early arrivals were Oliver Kuhn, of the Washington Star, general chairman; Roy A. Roberts, of the Kansas City Star, and Walter M. Harrison, of the Oklahoma City Oklahoman. Preliminary committee meetings were held tonight.

In an apartment house, six centuries old, in Arizona, the burial place of a Hopi child of the period has been traced.

One never can tell

Some folks won't try anything new. Others are quick to make the experiment. Nothing risked, nothing gained.

But there is no risk in buying a ton or so of coal. Even if it is not an improvement over the old, it is at least usable.

If you are not thoroughly satisfied with the brand of coal you are now burning... try CHIEF, an excellent all-purpose domestic fuel.

Equally satisfactory for furnace, heater, grate and cook stove; no foreign matter to form clinkers. Chief is all pure coal. You'll like it.

Today's price: Nut size, $6.75; Lump size, $7.00. Fifty cents per ton more if charged.

Increasing Automobile Accidents Show Need of Insurance Policy

"Former Georgia girl killed in car crash."
"Auto injuries fatal to Atlantan."
"Accidents fatal to ten in south."
"Seven children injured in school bus crash."
"Senator hurt when autos collide."
"Atlantan and bride hurt in auto crash."
"Fall under car fatal to East Point woman."
Just a story of the headlines copied from three days' issues of The Atlanta Constitution in September.

The North American Accident Insurance Company, of Chicago, Ill. This company, during the last several years, has paid to Constitution subscribers and members of their families over $100,000.

The insurance is offered to subscribers and immediate dependent members of a subscriber's family between the ages of 15 and 69 on the one subscription going into the home at the small registration fee of 20 cents with application and 10 cents per month thereafter in addition to the subscription price, or $1 each per policy per year in advance, to subscribers who live in Atlanta; and to subscribers outside Atlanta and suburbs the rate is $1 per year per policy in addition to the subscription price.

The policy The Constitution offers you provides for payment of sums ranging downward from $10,000 for travel, $1,000 for auto and pedestrian deaths resulting from certain specific accidents, heavy sums for permanent

Mrs. Roosevelt Visits Ex-Wife of Elliot

ITHAN, Pa., Oct. 25.—(AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wife of the president, today visited Mrs. Elizabeth Bonner Roosevelt, former wife of Elliott Roosevelt, and her 11-month-old son.

Mrs. Roosevelt, who drove here from Washington, was late in arriving because she became lost on the roads near Philadelphia. She expected to leave for New York after spending a few hours with her grandson and his mother.

injuries, and $10 weekly indemnity for total disability resulting from accidents set forth in the policy, which is at the rate of $43.33 per month. All this for the small fee, as stated above—just about 2 1/2 cents a week, and it is offered to old and new subscribers alike.

In sending application for insurance, the applicant must state name in full, give age and occupation, and if beneficiary is desired the full Christian name of beneficiary must be given and relationship of same to the insured.

MORTGAGE LIQUIDATION SHOWS GAIN IN COUNTY

Title Retention Contracts on Increase, Figures in Clerk Simmons' Office Reveal.

One of the best barometers of business showed a decided jump upward in Fulton county Wednesday when figures released by the office of J. W. Simmons, clerk of superior court, showed that title retention contracts are on the increase and that mortgages and title contracts are being paid off more rapidly.

The figures showed that the value of contracts filed in September and October was 25 per cent greater than the amount of the preceding 60 days. Mr. Simmons said there also had been an increase in the number of mortgage loans and major leases filed during the last 60 days and that title contracts are now being filed at a rate approximately double the rate for the period ending September 30. He said the figures indicated a returning confidence of the people.

The largest increase in title contracts this year is in the business of the Atlanta Gas Light Company, Mr. Simmons said, which has conducted a newspaper advertising campaign for the sale of hot water tanks, gas heaters and other appliances. In reality mortgages and loans, he filed in the year ending September 30, totaled $16,365,360, while loans and mortgages paid in the same period were valued at $12,252,296.

MRS. ABIGAIL WITCHER PASSES AT AVONDALE

Resident of Atlanta for 23 Years Well Known in Business Circles.

Mrs. Abigail Hodge Witcher, of 17 Dartmouth avenue, Avondale Estates, died Wednesday morning at her residence. She had been a resident of Atlanta for 23 years.

Mrs. Witcher had been connected with the Southeastern Express Company for the last 10 years and was well known in business circles. She held an executive position with the Southern Bell Telephone Company for many years prior to her connection with the Southeastern Express Company.

A native of Springfield, Ill., where her family were pioneer citizens, Mrs. Witcher was active in church work, being a member of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Atlanta, and a member of the Mother Church of Boston.

She is survived by her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Hodge, with whom she resided; a daughter, Mrs. H. McCoy Van Deventer, whose husband is connected with the advertising department of The Constitution; two sisters, Mrs. J. T. Padlock, of Clinton, Iowa, and Mrs. E. J. Campbell, of Chicago; and two grandchildren, Jane and McCoy Van Deventer, of Avondale Estates.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by Brandon-Bond-Condong Company.

Official Is Blamed In Penitentiary Break

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Governor Paul V. McNutt disclosed today that trustees of the Michigan City penitentiary in their report on the investigation of the prison break of September 26 recommended the dismissal of H. C. Lauder, deputy warden. The governor said the recommendation of the trustees would be followed.

The report also recommended the dismissal of Albert Evans, second assistant deputy, who was marched across the prison yard from the shirt factory to the main office by the band of 10 convicts who fought their way out of the institution with smuggled weapons.

ATLANTA, GA., OCT. 26, 1933.

OUT OF THE MUD IN A YEAR.

One of the most unusual demonstrations ever made on the capitol grounds was that of yesterday in which more than 1,000 citizens of that part of north Georgia traversed by the highway route No. 9 assembled to present their grievance to Governor Eugene Talmadge and to urge his aid in the completion of the paving of this route.

From the governor the vast throng went to the highway department, receiving the gratifying assurance that the incomplete part of this route would be paved within the next year.

This route passes through Union, Lumpkin, Dawson, Forsyth and Fulton counties. It is a part of a highway of more than a thousand miles in length—reaching all the way from Erie, Pa., through Pittsburgh to St. Petersburg, Fla. Every mile of the route is paved, with the exception of this short link in Forsyth and Dawson counties and a small part in Lumpkin county. Fulton county has already completed the paving to the Forsyth county line.

The people of this section have no railroad facilities and are dependent upon highway traffic to carry their produce to the markets of Georgia, and to take back from other parts of the state the things they cannot get at home. On account of the lack of paving on this short link, traffic to Atlanta over this route is mud-bound for a large part of the year, working a hardship not only for those living on the route but depriving other parts of the state of an exchange of commodities with one of the best sections of Georgia.

The strange thing about this unpaved link is that it cannot become the beneficiary of the federal fund allotment. It is graded, and crushed rocks have already been laid along the link to be paved. The federal highway bureau requires that the rock necessary for the paving shall be bought and transported to the very places which have already been supplied. With the state, however, no such foolish rule exists.

Within the next year the state, from its highway income, can easily complete this paving, and Chairman Mangham's assurance to this representative delegation that the work will be done within a year is sufficient guarantee that within the next year the people of this section will be out of the mud.

GOOD ADVICE TO GIRLS.

Barnard College girls listened to sane advice from Dean Virginia C. Gildersleeve when she addressed them recently upon the subject of their college lives. She advised them to become actors, and not spectators in college life; to keep themselves in first-rate physical condition; to cultivate good manners; to cultivate speaking voices, and to write legibly.

In the opinion of Dean Gildersleeve, in order to get what college has to give, girls must give their best to college work. Going to college fits students to meet the future, and enables them to find pleasure in recreation and work.

Exercise, the right sort of food, and sleep are necessary for the functioning of the mind and brain. Therefore, when students are in good physical condition, the brain performs its duties, and troubles fade away like magic.

Dean Gildersleeve commended good manners to add to the attractiveness of life, and pronounced the possessing of good manners as real assets in any career or line of work.

Pleasant voices express culture, refinement and education, and she warned students to regard the way they speak and the quality of their voices. Her parting injunction was to cultivate handwriting of some caliber and distinction.

"College," said Dean Gildersleeve, "makes no pretense of giving technical training, but it does facilitate and fit students for life, in that it enables them to find pleasure in work or play."

This is timely advice free from flowery and meaningless language.

MISSOURI PONDERS CONTROL.

The liquor control system recommended for use in Missouri by the advisory commission on liquor control legislation of that state is praiseworthy in its simplicity and in the care which was evidently used by its framers in seeking to prevent the abuses of former days.

Succinctly the plan proposed that hard liquor and heavy wines be sold in original packages by licensed dealers, under a bi-partisan board of control; that bona fide clubs, restaurants and hotels be permitted to serve liquors, and that light wines and beer be sold as beverages.

This plan follows closely, although it allows more latitude in the handling of liquors, the Connecticut plan. It is similar to the Canadian dispensary plan, modified to permit the licensing of private dealers under strict control, in order that the possible evils of political control of dispensaries may be eliminated.

Even in St. Louis, one of the warring wet cities of the country in pre-prohibition days, the plan has been favorably received, an attitude which is reflected by the St. Louis Post-Dispatch in the following comment:

"The advisory commission was admirably constituted, and its report reflects the excellence of its personnel. We cannot abate the eighteenth amendment without substituting something better. The people want temperance. The men and women on the governor's commission have assumed that Missouri does not want the saloon. There is every justification for this belief. The feeling against the saloon is general, particularly the brewery-owned saloon, one of the prime causes of national prohibition. Moreover, there is a realization in the states of the responsibility assumed by the nation in repealing the eighteenth amendment. This obligation rests heavily upon all legislatures. Some of the states will like to try the state dispensary plan. If so, there would be opportunity for comparison between that plan and the one suggested for Missouri. We are disposed to regard the Missouri suggestion as far better."

The members of every state legislature should give serious consideration to the problems which are certain to arise in every state, whether or not state dry laws exist, with the repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Significant of these problems is the situation which will be faced in Georgia if, as is declared probable, the Augusta municipal government licenses the sale of liquor and wines, as it did that of beer, despite the state dry statute.

Other communities would be sure to quickly take similar action and between these wet spots, the bootleggers and the moonshiners, Georgia's bone-dry law would become a joke.

New conditions are ahead and the sane and reasonable leaders of both wets and dries should counsel together as to the best way they can be met. Unless this is done, the danger will exist that the extremists of both sides will so muddy the situation that the result will be an aggravation of the objectionable conditions which have existed under national prohibition.

In a hundred million years scientists say people will not be eating with teeth. We wonder who will be furnishing the radio programs instead of toothpaste manufacturers?

It would be impossible for Rip Van Winkle to sleep in peace for any length of time now. The airplanes overhead would wake him up.

A Missouri woman has a 103-year-old cake. Maybe she thinks you can't eat your cake and have it, too.

Maybe the United States wouldn't repeal the eighteenth amendment if Canada and Mexico could vote on it.

Insult says Americans are not good sports. Maybe he means they are poor losers.

Beauticians are demanding a minimum wage of $25. Who said beauty was only skin deep?

Utopia must be the place where you can secure an automobile by saving soap wrappers.

The new order of things is all right as long as it will bring orders.

Maybe Hitler figured it was too slow a League for Germany.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PASSEN

Soviets in the Stratosphere.

That was a fine scientific victory, a victory of peace, the soviets won the other day when their specially constructed balloon beat Professor Piccard's phenomenal rise into the stratosphere. In some circles this achievement is looked upon with suspicion. It is argued by experts that the stratosphere is eminently suitable for the launching of aerial torpedoes and the scattering of poison gases, which when descending to earth, will spread out in such a fashion that a huge superforce will be affected and cause the death of countless of human beings.

Of course, the soviets did not experiment along this line at all, no more than Professor Piccard. They were out, or rather up, for the purpose of gathering scientific data, too complicated for my unscientific brain to grasp. What interested me was the message which the aviators sent back from on high. They witnessed, namely: "We can see the earth quite well!"

That was encouraging news. But really did they need to go up all that way to see the earth? It is quite plain from where I am. Now if they had told us: "We can see the man in the moon quite clearly and he seems to sport side whiskers, that would have been a discovery of importance—it only for the reason that it might result in us getting rid of some barbers—to go and shave him."

The Year 2033.

What will be the aspect of our civilization, a hundred years hence? A symposium in a recent number of the "Bookman" tackles the question, and the conclusions come to are not cheerful. Some of the contributors, Mr. Ivor Brown and Mr. J. C. Cronin, for instance, preface their conjectures with a grave doubt whether civilization will survive for a century at all. Mr. Cronin regards the present generation with its lust for speed and sensation, as living in a mad hatter's castle which is probably doomed; and Mr. Brown thinks it is a big assumption that the world will not have blown itself to pieces by 2033 in another war to end war.

Even those who are not flatly pessimistic have little hope to offer. Mr. Hugh Walpole has so poor an opinion of our current fiction that he is sure no novelist living in 1933 will be generally read a century after, though in the wider field of literature Shaw, Wells, Bennett, Galworthy, and Kipling "will be read as curiosities," and Yeats and Bridges "for their beauty." As to the English language, Mr. Stephen Spender thinks it just possible that composition in it may survive, but merely in the shape of a dead tongue, in the hands of writers probably by Chinese students; and Mr. T. F. Powys rounds off with decision the gloom of the men of letters by asserting that in a hundred years there will be no literary or scientific literature. A mob of machine-drivers will rule."

The politicians apparently have not been consulted, or else they are discreetly silent.

Health Talks

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY

AS MEDICINE BEER IS RATHER FLAT.

I claim this 3.2 per cent beer is intoxicating. My husband claims it is not. He has never drunk beer nor any other kind of liquor. I am 34 years old, weigh only 95 pounds and have a leaky heart valve. The least fright or shock of any kind sets my heart pounding and makes me short of breath. My family and friends all drink a good deal of beer and are all overweight. They claim my husband and myself should drink it. They say it is as good as tonic and would help me gain more weight. They also claim it is not intoxicating. How do you think it would act on my heart? My husband is a very hard worker and he also is a little overweight. If you think beer would be good for us, that is, if it is not intoxicating. (Mrs. M. L. E.)

The question whether beer is intoxicating is not susceptible of a definite answer. Depends on who is drinking it, how much he drinks, and what sort of regard as intoxication. There is no legal or generally accepted definition of intoxication, so far as I can learn. Therefore, it is a matter of individual opinion. In my opinion beer is intoxicating. I regard any one as intoxicated when I can detect the odor of alcohol on his breath. That is fairly good evidence, I think. The individual has consumed more alcohol than he can oxidize or burn and utilize as food or fuel.

Another sign of intoxication, in my judgment, is the way people who are under the influence of alcohol insist that it is good for all and sundry, that it is "tonic," "strengthening," nourishing, warming, cooling, cheering, comforting or what you please.

According to a chemical analysis of beer made in the pre-war time when beer was not restricted as to alcoholic content, a good grade of beer has the following nutritive value:

Water, 90 per cent; alcohol, 3.75 per cent; carbohydrate (sugar), 5 per cent; nitrogenous matter (protein), 0.5 per cent; and mineral matter, 0.20 per cent. If we assume all the alcohol in such beer is actually oxidized and utilized as food or fuel in the body, the total calories in the alcohol alone would amount to 130 in the pint of beer, which added to the calories from the sugar and protein in the beer would give a grand total of about two-thirds of a calorie per pint of beer.

Now that beer and wine are legal beverages I see no objection to any adult drinking them. But the efforts of beer and wine bibbers to browbeat every one else into doing the same are tiresome. Why can't they behave themselves and refrain from making comments or offering advice or otherwise calling attention to the members of the party who are eating, drinking or otherwise not choosing to indulge? When they've had a little too much beer or wine must they play the role of the baby who is so delighted to compel a less sophisticated companion to do as he or she does?

I assure this correspondent and her husband that beer can do good for either of them. If they surrender now and begin drinking it just because their friends insist on it, their friends will only laugh at them for being so easily influenced.

News Behind the News

By Paul Mallon.

BUSINESS WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—The Roosevelt industrial recovery program has been far more successful fundamentally than the public generally gives the president credit for.

Unprejudiced figures prove it. They are contained in the monthly fool-proof statistics first devised by Mr. Hoover to show where we stand and whither we are drifting. All officials use them as the best business barometer. This month they show slow, sure progress in righting the economic ship on an even keel. Industrial production and factory employment are only 5 points apart. Pay rolls still are lagging about 20 per cent behind, but improvement is noted.

SAD SIDE. Aside from pay rolls, the figures show that the big worry now is sales. Department store volume has been sliding since August. The figures show a drop from 77 to 66. They are based on dollar sales. When you consider that prices have increased in the same period, possibly as much as 17 per cent, you will see that the new purchasing power must be flowing down a rathole.

The "buy now" campaign may help that, but Mr. Roosevelt's tricks with the dollar will help it more.

There is nothing which will start buying like the promise of still higher prices. Mr. Roosevelt has promised they will be up about 30 per cent before he will stabilize. At least that is the logical figure to be deduced from his statements.

He says he wants a 1926 price level. That is 30 per cent higher than the level now. Whether he can accomplish it is another thing.

TABLE You can figure out your present standing for yourself from the following table. The seasonal element has been eliminated from it. It is adjusted for seasonal variations.

The 100 basis for each figure is the average of 1923 to 1925.

Months	Production	Factory Employment	Freight	Dept. Store Sales	Export	Import	Pay Rolls

SLIPPING. You may note another disturbing element in the table. That is the fact there was no fall rise. Everything has dipped downward except employment and pay rolls. These two factors are saved by the NRA.

You farmers and merchants may be angry at the Blue Eagle but you cannot get around the fact that while industrial production went down, employment and wages went up.

These things are bound to increase labor purchasing power before long, or else all our economists are crazy. When that happens both the farmer and the merchant will normally sell more goods for consumption at a better price.

CONFUSION. The failure of fall business may be attributed at least in part to money uncertainty and a bad public psychology. Mr. Roosevelt delayed too long the announcement of a money policy. He kept businessmen and manufacturers on the anxious seat through September and most of October. Also in the rush to get ahead of the codes, production was stimulated so much that manufacturers had a lot of finished goods on hand.

Possibly for the same reason of confused uncertainty, public buying has not been maintained. The psychological reaction to the NRA has been something in the nature of an incipient buyers' strike. People began to doubt the Roosevelt promise of still higher prices later.

The Sunday night radio speech may help to clear up that situation.

PUBLIC WORKS. The table given above leaves out the two unpleasant subjects in the administration program. One is the farm scheme, the condition of which is no secret. The other is public works, which they are still trying to keep as secret.

Splendid figures are given out, showing how much has been allotted for building. These figures total somewhere around two billion dollars.

Nothing is said about how much is being actually spent. In the month of September, the administration actually let the contracts for less public works than the Hoover administration did without a building program last September. That also was true of August.

MOSTLY ROADS. The total of all contracts let for building in September was $123,000,000. Of that amount $57,000,000 was public works. A year ago in the same states (the figures do not include the Pacific coast) the Hoover administration let contracts for $64,000,000 of public works. Incidentally, half of the public works money spent this September went for roads and not for building construction.

The adjusted seasonal index on that subject registered 28 for September as compared with 24 in August, 21 in July and 14 in March. Last September the index stood at 30.

If it were not for the extravagant claims being made for the public works administration, this point would not be very important. The two billions have been allotted. They will be spent eventually.

Also there are inner signs that the public works crowd has been cutting down on legitimate caution during the last two weeks. It is believed to be actually pumping out contracts in an unusually strong effort to get the money out. It is assumed ordinary protective precautions still prevent the projects on which they are working strictly confidential. Engineers on a particular project are not supposed to talk about it to their fellow engineers.

Old Toys Bore the Child That Has Learned To Expect a New One Daily

By Robert Quillen

Yesterday I asked a barber how large an income would be required to gratify all of his desires. He made swift mental calculation and answered: "Three thousand a year would buy everything I want."

A bachelor physician who had charge of a hospital in France answered even more modestly. "Two hundred a month," said he, "would satisfy me."

Others as truthful might require half a million dollars or more, depending altogether on the tastes and desires absorbed from their environment and training. But in no case would the income insure happiness.

Jack Dempsey said in his ghost-written autobiography: "Money is important only when you haven't got it."

What expresses the whole philosophy of money, with this single exception: that one income seems no larger than another when you get used to it.

When people say that money doesn't bring happiness, they are using the wrong word. Money does bring happiness, instant and heart-filling to those who suffer from want of money.

But it doesn't maintain happiness.

The explanation is not found in any fault of money itself, but in a deep-rooted peculiarity of human nature.

We take for granted the thing that is usual. Sunshine, green grass and trees, liberty and good health are accepted without gratitude because we are accustomed to them.

So it is with any given income. If we have $2,000 a year, we think $5,000 would make us happy. But when we have become accustomed to $5,000, it seems ordinary and insufficient. And though $25,000 or all the money there is the first year we have it, this also loses its magic soon and no longer is a factor in making us happy or unhappy.

The money that brings temporary happiness is not a specified sum, but more. As the drinker must consume larger and larger quantities to get the same kick, so those who hope to find happiness in money must somehow win a larger income as soon as they become accustomed to the present one.

There you have one explanation of our national unrest. By inheritance and practice we are climbers, forever hoping to win happiness by making more money, and our own nature dooms us to continual and inevitable disappointment.

Marriage can't satisfy a vanity that finds joy only in making new conquests.

Central highway across the island republic by examining James H. Wiggins, of New York, whose construction company was an unsuccessful bidder for the job.

Letter Revealed. The voluntary yielding by Wiggins of his for-life annuity was made public by the banking official through Pecora, who announced the following letter from Wiggins to the board, dated October 24:

"At the time of the agreement to pay me annual compensation of $100,000, it was believed to be in the interests of the bank. As the agreement has been criticized, I beg to request that it be terminated."

Wiggins declined further comment as Pecora handed the letter to newspapermen. Winthrop W. Aldrich, who succeeded the elderly Wiggins as head of the bank last January, would say nothing about the action.

Chairman Fletcher, democrat, Florida, of the committee, who had been before the committee that the banker was paid as much as $250,000 a year while in charge of the institution, told newspapermen:

"I regard it as a very appropriate more on the part of Mr. Wiggins."

Several other senators, declining to comment publicly, said privately they considered the action a more justification for their inquiry into banking and stock market practices.

Pecora developed in the questioning to Morgan that $300,000 in serial certificates for this inquiry had been held by Chase bank and associates were paid off before $200,000,000 held by the public, although the public's holdings bore earlier maturity dates.

The committee's counsel then brought out that a prospectus in the public offering of $400,000,000 in long-term Cuban bonds in 1930 for refunding the serial or short-term paper, were not shown that Cuba's treasury had a $7,000,000 deficit in the preceding year.

The loans were made originally, Pecora told the committee, for financing Cuba's public works program. The committee counsel asserted there was no check by the bank to determine whether the money was spent "fraudulently or not."

Special Funds.

He presented evidence designed to show that although a statement by the bank to American investors indicated the obligations were to be met from special funds set aside in the Cuban treasury, the money was not segregated.

Morgan contended that a special account was entered on Cuba's financial ledgers, but agreed the money was commingled with other funds in the treasury, explaining that his lawyers had advised him that under Cuban law, legally, if an account was earmarked, it was not.

Time after time, Pecora and Morgan argued over the latter's response to questions, particularly because of Morgan's often-interposed statement that the public had been paid. Pecora replied that "we will get to that later and show how the public was paid."

Reading from a memorandum by C. B. Anderson, second vice president of Chase Securities Corporation, a bank affiliate, in October, 1929, Pecora turned to the decision of bankers to refund the short-term notes.

At that time they were aware of a "precarious financial situation" in Cuba, Pecora said, quoting a moment later from memorandum from the bank's files to the effect that the banks had $300,000,000 of the short-term notes in their portfolios and could sell them on the market then.

"Having learned about the financial condition in Cuba, they apparently were thinking about unloading the other $300,000,000 on the public," Pecora said. "Do you think they could have sold these to the public if they had known what the bank knew?"

Morgan, replying in a voice so low that it was inaudible at the press table, was quoted by the official reporter as replying:

"I think so. I have not seen anything in the record that would make that impossible."

"Do you think the public is that gullible?" shot back Pecora.

"I won't respond to that, Mr. Pecora."

Some time later, Pecora presented evidence and testimony that the bankers were repaid for the short-term obligations they held. He said the money paid for the $400,000,

DECLINE IS NOTED IN EMPLOYMENT

Wages, However, Continue To Hold to August and September Levels.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Increased factory employment between mid-August and mid-September, with larger total wage earnings, was reported today by the federal reserve board, with preliminary reports for more recent weeks indicating some decrease in employment but a continuation of about the same volume of earnings.

"During September and the first half of October, industrial activity declined, as it had in August, following the rapid expansion of the spring and early summer," the board said. "Factory employment and pay rolls increased further between the middle of August and the middle of September."

"Industrial production, as measured by the board's seasonally adjusted index, declined from 91 per cent of the 1923-1925 average in August to 84 per cent in September. Activity decreased in most lines of industry, and particularly in those in which output had increased rapidly in earlier months.

"Production of steel, lumber, cement, bituminous coal and petroleum declined considerably and automobile output was reduced.

"Deliveries of silk to mills were small in September, while consumption of cotton and wool, although reduced during the month, was nevertheless larger than in other recent years at this season. Meat packing plants were more active partly because of processing of pigs under the government's emergency marketing program; and output of flour was larger than the exceptionally small volume produced in August.

"In the first half of October further declines in output of automobiles, bituminous coal and petroleum were reported. Steel mill activity after increasing in the first half of October, receded in the third week."

the national championship and their lodging taken care of at a good hotel during their stay in Cincinnati, December 4 to 8.

This coming national championship is going to be probably the fastest event ever staged by the American Bridge league. The annual summer tournament at Asbury always draws many stars. But these experts are generally from the eastern section of the country. At Cincinnati at the winter session of the league, there will be the cream of the western players.

Ed Nix, the capable director of the coming tournament at the Hotel Grady hotel, is known to have plenty of ability in conducting a tournament plus the nerve to enforce penalties and decide justly on any disputed play. Five national titles are down for decision at the Cincinnati tournament. These are the open pair, the mixed pair, the auction pair, the open team-of-four and the women's team-of-four championships. Unlike at Asbury, the team-of-four championship will be decided at the final round of play. At Asbury it was accumulative scoring with the knockout system in force after the elimination rounds.

Unimproved Link of State Mountain highway No. 9. The black line shows the part of this highway between Atlanta and the North Carolina line, which already is paved. The double line indicates the only part of the highway between Erie, Pa., and Tallahassee, Fla., that is still unpaved.

Chairman J. J. Mangham, of the highway board, assured the huge delegation from counties along the route that the unpaved link will be completed within a year.

questions that arise. In the coming tournament, the rules of duplicate bridge will be enforced to the letter. If they are broken, heavy penalties will be inflicted. If they are persisted in being broken, the offenders will be disqualified from further play.

Some of the more important rules which will be enforced are the following:

No player shall move from his seat at one table until the next move is called.

No conversation concerning hands or play will be allowed.

No undue delay in play will be allowed. This does not mean that players will be rushed. Far from it. The importance of the tournament makes it imperative that all players have plenty of time to think of their bids and plays. Ample time will be given for this. But the unnecessary habit of rehearsing played hands and the endless discussion of how hands should, or should not, have been played will not be tolerated. This is what causes most delays in tournaments.

Mr. Nix will be in complete charge of the tournament. His decision on all matters will be final. He will have two able assistants on the floor to help in the moving of boards and the general supervision of the movements and play.

Entries will be received up until 6 o'clock Friday afternoon, but it is hoped that all intending to enter will do so as soon as possible. The low Mr. Nix time to arrange the sections and number of boards for the qualifying rounds. Remember there are three qualifying rounds, Friday evening, Saturday afternoon and Sunday evening. The 16 pairs having the highest scores will then play 120 boards at a yet unannounced date in November for the right to go to Cincinnati. The price for the three qualifying rounds is $2 per player.

$1,055,237 MORE GOES INTO PUBLIC BUILDING

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—(AP)—The public works administration today allotted $1,055,237 for 23 new federal projects which officials said would provide 7,040 man months of work.

"Nearly 15 years ago the old highway board promised to complete the paving of Route No. 9," Mr. Vaughan said. "That promise is still unfulfilled. The people of north Georgia are looking to you, Governor Talmadge, to see that it is done."

The chairman then called upon P. D. Rush, president of the Dougherty Chamber of Commerce and one of the state's leading good roads boosters.

Mr. Rush revealed that some years ago the people of Lumpkin county voted $700,000 in bonds and turned the proceeds over to the old highway board in exchange for a pledge that the road would be completed.

"We are still waiting for that road, governor," he said. "We are here today to ask you to redeem the pledge made by the old highway board. The people along Route 9 need that road worse than anything else in the world."

"Treated Like Step-Child." A. B. Tolleson, of Cumming, speaking for Forsyth county, said that the old highway board "has treated us like a red-headed step-child."

"If we are going to get this road paved it will be through Governor Talmadge and the present highway board," he said. "We have faith in the governor and the board."

Mrs. R. H. Howard, editor of the Dawson County Advertiser, spoke in behalf of the people of her city and urged the immediate paving of the road.

Mrs. R. H. Baker, 84-year-old Lumpkin county woman, read a poem dedicated to completion of the road.

J. W. Lott, of Americus, president of U. S. Route 19 Association, of which State Route No. 9 is a part, urged completion of the paving in order that the entire route which runs from Erie, Pa., to St. Petersburg, Fla., might be paved.

"The 34 unpaved miles along Route 9 are all that remain unpaved between Erie and St. Petersburg," he said.

Howell Urges Completion. Mr. Howell said that he had a deep personal interest in the highway and also in the people which the road serves.

"My father was born on the road, and my great-grandfather settled near it 113 years ago," the editor of The Constitution said. "I have a great interest in the highway and in the people it serves for they are my people."

Mr. Howell said that when leaders of the motorcade asked him to join in presenting their appeal to the governor they did it on the assumption that he had influence over the chief executive.

"This is not true," Mr. Howell said. "No one has any influence with the governor. The only thing that influences him is his sense of duty and his wish to do the right thing."

"I was in Washington a short time ago," he said, "and was asked by the president to lunch with him. The governor's name came up in conversation. The president said he certainly was a go-getter and seemed to be able to get what he wanted. He gets things done—but he gets a little wild once in a while, doesn't he? to which I told the president, 'yes, he gets a little wild once in a while, just like you do, in the effort to do the right thing, and it generally turns out that way with both of you.'"

MURIEL MCCORMICK FIGHTS TRUST CHANGE

Elder Rockefeller's Amendment of Terms of Fund Opposed.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Mrs. Muriel McCormick Hubbard, of Midletown, Conn., charged in a supreme court action filed today that her grandfather, John D. Rockefeller Sr., had no legal right to change the terms of a trust fund established for her mother, the late Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, of Chicago.

Under terms of the trust fund after the change was made, Mrs. Hubbard asserted, the late Mrs. McCormick could not bequeath the fund to her children outright. Mrs. Hubbard's action was in answer to a suit brought by the Chase National bank, fund trustee, against the Chicago Title & Trust Co., executor of her mother's estate, to obtain judicial determination of the rights of Mrs. McCormick's children.

Mrs. Hubbard claimed four-sevenths of the trust, which she said at present is composed of 355,671 shares of the capital stock of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, having a value of $25 a share and a cash value of $30.72 a share.

The trust, established July 3, 1917, increased through stock dividends and division of shares from 12,900 shares of Standard Oil Company of Indiana stock.

Under the original agreement, Mrs. Hubbard contended, Rockefeller gave his daughter the right to dispose of the trust in her will so that her principal might be divided among her children and charities in outright gifts.

Mrs. Hubbard asked the court to void an arrangement made by the senior Rockefeller with Mrs. McCormick a few years after establishment of the trust whereby only the income from the trust was to be divided among the children, following Mrs. McCormick's death.

Other children of Mrs. McCormick are Fowling McCormick and Mathilde McCormick Oser.

PAVED HIGHWAY SEEN TO NEEL'S GAP

stitution, Congressman Robert Ramo, Representative William B. Hartsfield, of Fulton county, and other leaders, started at Neel's camp and came down through the mountain country, adding members and enthusiasm at each town through which it passed.

Lumpkin county probably had the largest representation in the group, but Forsyth county and the other counties along the route made a splendid showing—the several delegations consisting of more than a thousand citizens living along the highway.

As soon as the group reached the Atlanta city limits it was met by a squad of motorcycle policemen and Adjutant General Lindley W. Camp and escorted to the Washington street plaza of the capitol, where it was welcomed by the chief executive.

The long procession was accompanied by the Hill Billy band, a string orchestra, which made music along the route and furnished the group with some of his favorite tunes as they were shaking hands with his many friends on the plaza.

Governor Is Given Tray. The governor was presented a beautiful silver tray on which was etched route No. 9 (with its unpaved links shown in red). The presentation was made by Miss Rebecca Ottwell, daughter of Mayor Ottwell, of Cumming.

Mr. Vaughan, who acted as general chairman, spoke first. He pointed out to the governor that the route traverses five counties in which there are no railroads and that the people along the route depend entirely on the highways for their transportation and to bring their products to the Atlanta market.

"Nearly 15 years ago the old highway board promised to complete the paving of Route No. 9," Mr. Vaughan said. "That promise is still unfulfilled. The people of north Georgia are looking to you, Governor Talmadge, to see that it is done."

Song and Poem Extol Talmadge, Praise His $3 Tag and Ask Highway

A song, dedicated to Governor Eugene Talmadge, telling the story of his successful fight for a $3 auto tag in Georgia, was sung to the governor and members of the Route 9 motorcade Wednesday at the state capitol by three girl students of the Dawsonville High school.

The song was written by Dee Abernathy and is to the tune of the old favorite, "Casey Jones." The three girls, Misses Lois Bannister, Katie Harris and Mary Nell Wheeler, sang it to the mandolin accompaniment of Albert Whitman, in the satisfaction of the big crowd on the capitol plaza. The song is titled "Three-Dollar Tags."

The governor was so pleased that he called the quartet of young people into his office, where they sang to him in private.

The words of the song follow:

Eugene Talmadge is a friend of the poor;
He wouldn't let Senate kix him out
Said he was a friend to the farmer in his rags,
He would give to have them "three-dollar tags."

CHORUS.
Old farmer friend, crank up your lis-tle
Saturday afternoon, put your apples in a bag,
That he was greatly pleased to see them and that he wanted them to come and see him often.

Another feature of the motorcade's visit to the capitol was the reading of a poem by Mrs. R. H. Baker, 84 years old, widow of the well-known Lumpkin county legislator, Mrs. Baker composed the poem herself and was warmly applauded as she read it to the governor.

The first letter of each line of the poem spell "PAVING NUMBER NINE."

The poem follows:

Pave Route Nine,
And give us relief, for in vain each year have we implored.
Eugene, now you take a hand.
No scenic beauty
Under the sun can with Number 9 compare.
Many travelers are ready to swear
Better days are just ahead;
Eugene will pave the way,
Rejoice and be exceedingly glad.

Number nine when paved will lead into the Eldorado of North Georgia,
Now then we'll all exclaim,
Eugene has given us relief.

The crowd then moved over to the highway department where Chairman Mangham was awaiting it and where he informed the group of the board's plan for early action looking toward completion of the road.

be started within 30 days, with between 400 and 500 people given employment within 60 days. Jobs will be created for more than 100 as soon as the contract is signed, he added.

Approval of Bridges Seen. Only last week Governor Talmadge, State Attorney-General Yeomans and Chairman Howell held extended conference with administration officials in Washington over the prison project and returned to Atlanta with assurance that this and several toll bridges would be approved for early treatment. No final action has yet been taken on the bridge projects, but these are expected to be provided for in due course.

In announcing the project, public works officials pointed out that it marks the first instance where the government board has adopted the leasing system. It is expected therefore to initiate a new policy which will be followed in providing for other projects in Georgia and other states having constitutional limitations to borrowing power.

Details of the financing method to be adopted are yet to be settled. When the final contract is drawn up and signed, however, Chairman Howell said he expected to see it contain a rate of interest of not more than 4 per cent, with annual sinking fund payments of less than $100,000.

U. S. Could Repossess Project. Public works officials in explaining the leasing system, said that if for any reason Georgia is unable to fulfill its agreement the United States could repossess the building and adapt them to federal usage.

The prison will include dormitories and warehouse buildings, power plant, water and sewage disposal systems, kitchen, laundry, farm buildings and dairy equipment, all built with a view of accommodating between 3,000 and 4,000 prisoners. Governor Talmadge pointed out during his recent visit here. He revealed also that it is the plan of the state ultimately to remove all of its prisoners there, leaving present facilities at Milledgeville for other state activities.

HOLLIDAY, M'GILL

Dr. Gosnell will speak on "Executive Government," and Professor Reed on "Constructive Economy and Local Government Reform."

Friday's program will include, at the 9:30 a. m. session, a series of talks on administrative reorganization in the south, with Dean W. C. Jackson, of the University of North Carolina, presiding, and a series on problems of municipal government in the south, with Robert Rankin, of Duke University, as chairman.

B. B. Kendrick, of the Woman's College of North Carolina, will speak on "The Status of Research in the Social Sciences in the South," at a luncheon at 12 o'clock noon Friday.

Discussion in the session at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon will revolve around governmental aspects of social planning under the Roosevelt administration, possible action of the supreme court on the NIRA, the Tennessee Valley Authority and the Muscle Shoals development.

The meetings will come to a conclusion Saturday following morning session in which W. T. Whitman, of Duke University, will speak on "Interstate Rendition: Some Recent Developments," and section meetings are held to discuss country finance and county consolidation in the south.

Officers of the association include, in addition to Dr. Gosnell, the following: Frank R. Prescott, University of Chattanooga, vice president; Dr. Ruth L. Higgins, secretary; Dr. Pearce, treasurer. The local committee on arrangements includes: Dr. Gosnell, chairman; Glenn Rainey, Miss Florance Smith, Mose L. Harvey, Philip Davidson and Dr. Holliday.

GOVERNOR HERRING CALLS
EXECUTIVES' CONFERENCE

DES MOINES, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Governor Herring, of Iowa, tonight summoned nine midwestern colleagues to conference Monday to prescribe for agriculture the economic ills, while the Farmers' National Holiday Association strike continued with activity apparent in only three states—Iowa, Minnesota and Wisconsin.

Milo Reno, leader of the strike movement, said he would attend the governors' conference and support it "100 per cent." Governor Herring said the meeting was not called because of the strike but to consider all problems of agriculture.

The conference originally was suggested by holiday association leaders who wished to confine discussion to an NRA code for agriculture to guarantee cost of production for farm products and to an embargo on farm products by all midwestern states.

The Iowa executive first to proclaim a farm mortgage foreclosure moratorium last winter, expressed sympathy for the farmers' demand of higher agricultural prices, but has contended that a strike was not a desirable method for enforcing that demand.

The governor said that any farm leader desiring to attend would be given a hearing. President Roosevelt was invited to send a delegate, preferably Henry Morgenthau Jr., governor of the farm credit administration.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Mayor John P. O'Brien tonight notified office of German societies planning a celebration next Sunday that he would not permit the meeting to be held.

The action followed protests that the celebration was arranged to spread Nazi propaganda.

A few hours after a public hearing at which objectors and proponents testified, the mayor announced his decision in a letter to Dr. William Popeke, chairman of the committee from the United German Societies arranging the celebration.

"I shall not permit any property controlled by the city," wrote the mayor, "to be used for a meeting which would result in disorder, in sowing dissension between the various elements of this cosmopolitan community and in permitting alien agitators to transfer to this soil the discussion of questions which have already in Germany resulted in discord, disorder and death."

Patient Is Sought.

Police Wednesday were seeking Freeman Campbell, negro, following his escape from Grady hospital. Campbell was arrested with S. C. Evans, negro, in a robbery investigation. Taken to Grady after he reported that he had been injured by a fellow prisoner, Campbell leaped from the operating table and escaped through a rear door, police said.

There was some picketing in central Wisconsin and western Iowa, and several creameries and cheese factories were closed in the Badger State.

Reno said he would go to Chicago tonight in his efforts to spread the strike to every agricultural state.

Counsel for the stockholders contended Gormley had not made the assessment on May 23, as his books showed, and this will be one of the questions decided by the jury. The possibility that the cash assets of the bank have been undervalued also will be questioned.

BUICK OWNERS SAVE AND PLAY SAFE

Thousands of owners of Buicks discovered last year that the best anti-freeze on the market was also the cheapest in all winter cost. One filling of Eveready Prestone stayed on the job right through the cold months. It didn't boil away. And it prevented rust and clogging in the cooling system.

This year, these same Buick owners are cheering because the price of Eveready Prestone is down to $2.95 a gallon

FLORIDA, L. S. U. FACE REAL FOES THIS SATURDAY

Goals Uncrossed, 'Gators Meet Vols and Tigers Play Vandy.

By Dillon Graham,

Associated Press Sports Writer.

Florida and Louisiana State, the only southeastern conference football teams whose goal lines remain uncrossed, run into dangerous foes Saturday in Tennessee and Vanderbilt.

Florida, hurt by the loss of one player and an injury to another, likely will face the strongest team Tennessee has been able to muster since early October.

The 'Gators were dealt a severe blow in the death of Halfback Bobby Treadwell in an automobile accident Monday and in a knee injury to Jack Henderson, the midline halfback and sparkplug, in the game with North Carolina. Henderson spent several days in an infirmary but will be taken to Knoxville.

With Captain Maples returning to center and Toby Palmer turned at fullback again, the Volunteers will have virtually their full power at hand and Coach Bob Neyland's cohorts worry Florida will not duplicate the victories won by Duke and Alabama. Despite its recent losses, Tennessee has one of the south's best clubs and some believe it will be too powerful for the young Florida team.

Vanderbilt, tied by Mississippi State in its opening conference game last Saturday, also will carry more punch against Louisiana State in L. S. U.'s debut. Rand Dixon, the star sophomore runner and kicker who was hurt a fortnight ago, returns to the lineup and his presence should add to the Commodore's chances.

One thing Coach Frank Thomas will have in his favor Saturday is that his Alabama players are more familiar with the Notre Dame style of play than are Jimmy Crowley's Alabama Rams. This is the third year Thomas has taught Rockne stuff to the Crimson while Crowley is in his first season at Pompano.

Despite the excellent material Fordham has and the ease with which it has won over early foes it is not likely the Rams will have as smooth execution of formations as will Alabama. And Alabama will be quite a bit stronger than any team the Rams have engaged.

HARRIDGE SAYS BROWNS TO STAY

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 25.—(AP)—No likelihood of the removal of the St. Louis American league baseball club is seen by William Harridge, president of the circuit.

In St. Louis to attend the funeral of Phil de Catey, Ball, owner of the club, whose death muddled affairs of the Browns, Harridge indicated belief that Ball had provided for the management of the team in his will. The will will not be probated for several days.

Even before Ball's death, last Sunday, recurring and often-rendered asserted the franchise would be moved from St. Louis. Several Canadian cities have been suggested as a new home for the club.

"I see no likelihood of the Browns being taken away from St. Louis," Harridge explained. "Such a move would require unanimous consent of all the league club owners, including that of the owners of the club involved."

Florida Weakened For Hard Test

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Oct. 25.—(AP)—Twenty-nine players tonight were nominated by Coach Dutch Stanley to start tomorrow for Knoxville, Tenn., where the University of Florida faces Saturday its toughest assignment of the 1933 season to date—the Volunteers, who laced them last year, 33 to 12.

Charlie Fleming, second-string center, was lost for the balance of the season as a severe shoulder injury sustained in yesterday's scrimmage was this afternoon placed in a cast. Trainer R. G. Manchester was called on for overtime work as the squad reported a host of minor injuries. Jack Henderson, star halfback, will not make the trip.

"Unfortunately, we face Tennessee in the worst physical condition of the year," Coach Stanley said tonight. "But the boys have the spirit. They are going to Knoxville to give the very best exhibition that is in them."

Pan Blows His Pipes on the Acropolis as Jim Londos Wins

It is too bad that Homer was not present in Athens, Greece, Sunday afternoon to smite his blooming lyre and bring forth a modern Iliad or Odyssey.

Because the story goes that as the shadows of night crept across the Acropolis, throwing darkness about the Parthenon and the Temple of Victory, a guide came hastening down the hill, breathless with the story that the old Gods were stalking the hill again.

He said that he saw, as plain as anything, Zeus come down from Olympus, with Apollo and Athena walking with him.

And that the Great God Pan came capering behind them, playing madly on his pipes. He heard this, he said, very plainly. And he saw Hermes and Hebe and Aphrodite all walking along with the rest of the Gods.

And he was scared, and little wonder. And he wanted to know why.

And then up spoke Mayor Mercouris, of the city of Athens.

"You poor sap," he said, speaking in the modern Greek, "did you not know that Christopher Theophilus, known to the trade as Jim Londos, world's champion wrestler, has this afternoon in the city of Athens pinned the shoulders of Cola Coriwani, the Russian champion, and that more than 100,000 Greeks saw it done? It is no wonder that the Gods are out again and walking and that Pan is playing on his pipes."

And so the guide went back to the Acropolis to wait for a fresh crop of sucker tourists. He wasn't afraid any more. So, Chris Theophilus had done it, heh? Good old Chris. He'd done very well for a youngster who had left Athens for America to learn the house-plastering trade.

And so he had. Jim Londos, who is the Greek God come to life in so far as physical perfection is concerned, quit plastering houses years and years ago. Since then he has been packing people into houses to see him wrestle.

He knows the ten classical poses. He can out-act any of the actors who used to parade in the dramas of Theopis and Aeschylus.

Henry Weber, the local producer of wrestling dramas at the city auditorium, received a cablegram from the sports editor of the Acropolis in Athens, saying that 110,000 paid cash customers saw the great little Greek in action.

A home-town boy who made good. A graduate of the wrestling classes of Athens. And champion of the world.

I guess Pan must have been piping, with a high, reedy skirl to his pipes. "There'll be a hot time in the old town tonight." And I guess there was.

THE N. Y. U. GAME.

There will be a great football game at Athens Saturday with the New York University Violets as opponents for the University of Georgia team. They will be drawing a better crowd than they would draw in New York and so the visit will not be without its compensations.

The Athens game offers a great spectacle for the football fan. The stadium is a beautiful one and a smaller city, which is packed for the big game, also packs more of a punch.

I recall that when Dr. S. V. Sanford began building the stadium at Athens there was some criticism because it was said that the stadium would be very empty and very lonely, being so far away from the centers of population. But the stadium has been filled more often than any other stadium in Dixie across the same stretch of years. And it will be very likely filled on Saturday.

GEORGIA TO WIN.

The Georgia eleven has an excellent chance to win the football game. But a great deal depends on the back-ups. A six-man line is always vulnerable and unless the two men backing up immediately behind the line turn in sterling performances, then there will be trouble. Especially with a heavy, power team such as the Violets have.

But I think the Bulldogs will outscore them, being faster and more alert. And playing on what is sacred football soil because of the repulse of the Yale team in 1929. This was somewhat equivalent to the home guard turning out and administering a beating to the regular troops. Because the sophomores of 1929, who had lost to Oglethorpe, were not highly regarded.

The Bulldogs will have the ball more on Saturday and they should win. And Buck Chapman should advance along the road to national recognition as a great offensive and defensive fullback, which he is.

HURRY UP YOST.

It appears that Hurry Up Yost, the Michigan athletic director and for more than 30 years coach of the Wolverines at Ann Arbor, was correct in his estimate of the 1933 eleven which Saturday defeated Ohio State, 13 to 0, before 93,800 people.

Mr. Yost said, early in the fall, "Unless the backfield fails to show up some Saturday afternoon, I think we should win just about all our games."

I will never forget Hurry Up Yost. He is the sort of a fellow one doesn't forget. He used to winter in Nashville, Tenn.-O.See. He had a passion, in those years, which were during the first World War, as Lawrence Stallings termed it in that devastating and disturbing book of war pictures, for working out the deployment of machine guns along the line of football plays.

One afternoon he cornered and proved, in a couple of hours which left me groggy, that machine guns should be advanced against the enemy through football plays; that is to say, by sending a gun out this way and then tossing another at them on a reverse.

One of the newspaper acquaintances made the mistake, one afternoon, of stopping "Hurry Up" Yost while he was on his way to his automobile with the night's dinner in paper sacks. His wife was waiting.

The newspaper man asked him about the defense for a certain play that Casey, of Harvard, was using that year. And right then and there, slap on the sidewalk, Yost put down potatoes for the line. A bottle of milk for the fullback. A loaf of bread for the halfback, and some grapefruit for the second half and quarter.

And he showed him the defense while a crowd gathered and gaped.

He's one of the great figures of the game, "Hurry Up" Yost. And to hear him through an evening telling of Willie Weston and all the great stars he had at Michigan is quite a fine evening.

WINOOKA EAST IN FIRE-HORSE RACE AT LAUREL

Mate Beats "Wonder Horse" in His First Race in America.

By Robert L. Thompson.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 25.—(AP)—Winooka, Australian son of Windbag, today ran a dismal last in his first test against Class A American horses.

Odorous favorite when the five entries paraded to the post, the reputed sprint champion of Australia finished nine and a half lengths behind Mate, Albert C. Bowwick's brilliant five-year-old ridden to victory by Raymond "Sonny" Workman.

Mrs. S. H. Fairbanks' Gold Step took second money, with Lee Rosenberg's Kerry Patch third. The Jersey stable's Character was two lengths out of the money but still five long lengths ahead of the much pre-arranged horse from down under.

DISAPPOINTING.

Around 13,000 track fans—a week day record for the present Laurel season—had come to see Winooka live up to the advance notices from his American tour manager, Rufe Naylor, who only last night failed to match his horse in a test race against Equipoise, American champion. They were a sadly disappointed crowd.

In the first place, neither of the four horses who kicked dirt into the Australian's face had a reputation as a dash artist and the six-furlong challenge race was arranged specially to suit the alien's taste. On top of that, Mate's time of 1:12 4-5 was well above the track record of 1:11 3-5. Workman, a careful, steady, heady race to take the $3,500 purse and the honor of puncturing the Naylor balloon. After the start the five ran head to head with Character, on the inside, having the slight advantage. Mate was on the outside. Winooka in the middle.

SHOWS SIGNS.

Turning out of the far stretch Winooka showed the first signs of being out of class as he dropped back into last place as Mate moved up. Workman went to the rail at the quarter post and snatched the lead as the horses straightened out for the front post.

Character dropped back but Gold Step held gamely on as the line stretched out toward the finish. Mate, however, continued to gain until the end.

Edgar Britt, who rode the Australian, was the first to put his horse up toward the finish. Mate, however, some disgruntled betters began to jeer, he unsaddled his mount and trudged slowly to the scales.

EVANS TO BOSS INDIANS AGAIN

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 25.—(AP) Setting at rest reports that the Cleveland Indians would have a new boss next year, Billy Evans today signed a new contract for one year as general manager of the Cleveland Baseball Company.

Terms of the contract were not announced, but unconfirmed reports said Evans probably will receive about $60,000 a year, plus a bonus of $100,000 if he pays him under his old contract.

After Evans had rejected President Alva Bradley's unofficial suggestion of a heavy cut in his contract several days ago, reports became current that he was considering other baseball offers or might resume writing for syndicates and magazines.

Evans, general manager of the Indians in 1928, and since then has engineered the deals that have brought the club from seventh place in an annual station in the first division.

MERCER KICKER JOINS INJURED

MACON, Ga., Oct. 25.—Things grew a little gloomier today for Mercer University football players when Tom Porter, sophomore fullback, who does the kicking for the Bears, was unable to do any punting Saturday.

Porter, who has been out since Saturday last, was injured as a result of a sprained toe, received in the Georgia game here Friday. Though Porter will be used as a running back, Hal Allen, the halfback who stole the show in the final half against the Bulldogs, hasn't kicked a ball in a game this year, will do the booting.

ROBBY RETURNS, SHIFTS ELEVEN FOR SATURDAY

Craven To Start at End; Adams Nominated for Guard Position.

By Jack Troy.

Coach Harry Robertson got astride his two big dogs—they are of the great Dane variety—yesterday and they led him out to Oglethorpe, where he saw his Petrels practice for the first time this week. And the Erskine game, Saturday, is practically here.

A heart attack convinced Robertson out for two days, but on the third day he doffed his baby blue pajamas and waved adieu to a temporary sick bed. He thanked his nurse—Mrs. Robertson—for services rendered, rolled up his sleeves and went back to work.

"I have been practically out of touch with things," Robby remarked as he saw Young Pickard, star sophomore end, running around but unable to scrimmage because of an injured shoulder.

CRAVEN TO START.

"I didn't know Pickard was injured. It seems he was hurt in the Stetson game but kept it to himself. He won't start against Erskine Saturday. Reed Craven will be in there instead."

Willie Bell Robinson has an injured wrist but it won't prevent his starting at tackle. However, Coach Robertson is a free ball. He wants to practice with a very long injury list.

Wade and Harrison, backs, and Shouse, regular center, are definitely out. Wade again injured his knee in the Stetson game. Harrison hasn't played since the first game of the season when he suffered a broken ankle. Shouse broke a hand in the Chattanooga game.

Leslie, star sophomore wingback, has a wrenched arm, but the injury will not prevent his starting.

TWO CHANGES.

Robertson plans two changes in the line. Craven will start at end instead of the injured Pickard, and Adams will be used at guard in place of Chandler.

McNeely, of course, will continue at center, with Freeman at end, Robinson and Darracott at tackles, and Herriott at a guard.

The backfield will start with Eddie Anderson at quarterback, Leslie and Harry Wren at halfbacks, and Metrick at fullback. B. Clark, Hoy Farmer and Phil Hildreth will see service in the backfield.

Saturday's kickoff is at 2 o'clock at Horner's field. Special practice has been announced for students. Georgia Tech is playing at Chapel Hill.

LEADING STARS ENTER SOUTHERN

Leading shooters, numbering almost 60, are already registered for the annual southern trapshooting championship to be held Friday and Saturday at the Capitol Gun Club on Bankhead.

The visiting list is headed by R. C. Coffey, of Prairie City, Iowa, president of the Northern American Trapshooters Association. Another executive to be here is John Collins, of Dayton, O., manager of the association.

Shooters are to be here from Tennessee, Alabama, Florida, Kentucky, Mississippi, Ohio, Indiana, and other states, to compete with Georgia's best. Leaders entered to date include: T. K. Lee, Dan Glenn, Ira Sellers, Ned Adams and O. L. Gail, of Birmingham; Walton Hill, of Montgomery; Dr. W. L. Stroup, of Corinth, Miss.; C. B. Cote, of Nashville; John Kreis, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Chilton, Ned Lewis and son, John, and Bob Campbell Jr., of Knoxville; Ed Luyben, Nashville; Dr. E. W. Falls, Louisville; R. C. and B. L. Jenkins, Orleans, Ind.; O. C. Powell, of Washington Court-house, Ohio; Bull Rape, Chattanooga; Tom Dean, Neal Wade and Reuben Carlson, Jacksonville; Mr. and Mrs. E. Bishop, Bradenton; Mrs. Walter Andrews, Daytona Beach; R. I. Potter, Eustis; J. Ross Kibben, Orlando; J. B. Royall, Tallahassee; Dr. Johnson, Shallock, Fla.

Atlanta and Georgia shooters include: Hubber Alford, Radium Springs; W. W. Stoddard and John McCluskey, of Savannah; Frank Skinner, Waynesboro; J. P. Pulling, McDonough; Homer Freeman, Mr. and Mrs. Donald McClain, Benson Freeman, Harold McKenzie, Sam Cassels, Mrs. Dillard Jacobs, Larry Grant, Jake Orr, Charley Twain and son, Jack Twain, all of Atlanta.

The professional field will be headed by Walter Huff, of Macon; Arthur Cusaden, Tampa; Dan Glenn, J. W. Hightower, Bob Norris, Buck Hatcher and Will Evans.

That the coming trapshoot event will be one of the best in history.

Horses Sponged At Empire City

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—(AP)—The practice of sponging race horses, which created a furore here recently in the case of Sweeping Light, has cropped up again at the Empire City track. The stewards disclosed today that Playing On, owned by Mrs. S. H. Fairbanks, and Orley had been sponged prior to running in the third race at Empire City last Saturday.

Both horses were quoted at high prices in the betting. Playing On finished a close second in the race and Orley was fourth.

Coach Alex 'Pioneer' In Fumble Rule Fight

Way Back in 1928 Tech Coach Urged Change To Simplify and Help Game.

By Ralph McGill.

It was in 1928. The Pullmans were rattling along on the road to the Rose Bowl. And a visiting fireman from another town, was riding with the Georgia Tech team on the road to the west coast and a national title.

At the time I was engaged in putting the reticent Mr. William Alexander through the verbal hoop, asking him to sit up and answer questions.

The new fumble rule, which is under fire this morning in an excellent interview with Lou Little, the big little man at Columbia, was just then being considered.

"What," asked this reporter, "do you think of the new fumble rule about the ball being dead on recovery?"

The man's answer was so startling that it has stuck with me ever since, with a growing realization that the man was absolutely correct.

"They should cut out all rules about fumbled punts," said Coach Alexander. "Every punt that is a free ball. This would necessitate them dropping 21 men back to cover the field, but it would make a great game out of it."

SIMPLIFY RULES.

"If they want the rules simplified this will do it. Any ball on the field is a fumble. That isn't difficult to understand."

"And if they want to speed up the game let that rule apply to passes. Any dropped ball is a free ball. That would make a game out of it and remove all the stalling and all the safety angles which are now considered."

That was, my friends, about December 21, when the team was rattling out of New Orleans. I recall I filed a story about it at Del Rio, Texas.

And now comes Lou Little with the same sort of plea. And I think he is correct. There isn't any reason why one shouldn't be able to take advantage of an opponent's errors. If the opposing team is an amateur as to the football there isn't any reason why the opponent shouldn't run with it if he can.

GIVE 'EM A BREAK.

The dumb guards, of which I am one, and the stupid quarterback and perhaps even the morose centers, would also get a break. Now and then they might grab up a fumble and get top for a touchdown. Under the present rule they are chained, compelled to waste their sweetness on the desert air of bad rule making.

Speaking as a dumb guard, I suppose you are all familiar with the story. There isn't anything dumber than a dumb guard in football—except a smart quarterback.

There was, for instance, Fatty Warren, of Auburn, who picked up a Georgia Tech fumble and galloped to a touchdown. This was in 1919. It adds a great deal to the game, does the fumble and the chances of a sudden victory.

It would make for alertness, would this change in the rules. And for more exciting football. It might help out one of those rainy days when the offense of both teams is helpless in the mud.

And it was W. A. Alexander who advanced the idea first, back in 1928. Let every ball on the ground or bounding on the ground, be a free ball.

Georgia Alumni To Meet Today

NEW BACKFIELD SET-UP LIKELY FOR SATURDAY

Galloway, Roberts Take Turns at Quarter in New Lineup.

By Ralph McGill.

As Georgia Tech's football squad went through the longest offensive scrimmage of the season Wednesday afternoon, it became apparent that a new backfield was probably getting the call against North Carolina Saturday afternoon at Chapel Hill.

Chick Galloway was back at quarter, alternating with Shorty Roberts, the halfback as reserve. And Billy Street, who had been used all Tuesday afternoon at fullback, again got in for some brief work at that position Wednesday.

The plan is to give Jack Phillips some rest and to toss Street in there for what

Georgia Expected To Reach Peak in N. Y. U. Game

MARIST MEETS NORTH FULTON THIS AFTERNOON

Boys' High Plays Friday and Tech High on Saturday.

Marist College and North Fulton High will start the week's parade of prep football games at 7:35 o'clock tonight at Ponce de Leon park. The game was originally slated for Friday afternoon.

An afternoon game between Fulton High and the Boys' High reserves will be played at 3 o'clock this afternoon at Piedmont park. Fulton had an open date on its schedule this week and the Purple reserves were more than anxious for a scrimmage with some outside team which was within their own class and weight.

Coach Louis Van Houten has made unusual progress since taking over the reins at Marist College and his 1933 team is far improved over those of recent years. He started the season with a scoreless tie against G. M. A. and since that time has beaten R. E. Lee at Thomaston, and Gainesville at Gainesville, in addition to holding Russell High to a scoreless tie. Only one touchdown has been scored against Marist this year.

North Fulton was admitted to the North Georgia Interscholastic Conference last year and this makes the first football appearance against Marist.

Boys' High will go through the final practice of the week in preparation for Friday night's game with Baylor Military Academy, of Chattanooga, at Ponce de Leon park.

Boys' High offense was given a big boost Wednesday when Rudy Atkinson, the star quarterback, returned to the fold after a week's absence. He scrimmaged Wednesday, and will likely start against Baylor.

Former Notre Dame Star.

1—What is a shift?
2—May a center, guard or tackle shift to the backfield?
3—Must all players on offensive team be stationary when ball is put in play?
4—Quarterback of O team, who is more than one-foot but less than one-yard back of the line of scrimmage, sneaks through line, and, catching pass, runs for touchdown. Ruling?
5—End of O team receives 20-yard pass from halfback, then passes backward to a teammate, who runs 40 yards to cross goal line. Ruling?
NOTE—O denotes offensive.

Frank Carideo, Missouri Coach.

1—When after the ball is ready for play the players have taken their positions it is a shift if two or more of the players of the team in possession of the ball change their position simultaneously before the ball is put in play.

2—Yes, but he must be at least five yards back of his line of scrimmage at the time the ball is put in play, unless he is permanently shifted into the backfield.

3—One player may be in motion toward his own goal line.

4—Loss of ball to opponents at spot of preceding down.

EMORY SENIORS WIN CLOSE GAME

A blocked try for extra point late in the fourth quarter gave the Sophomores a 7-6 decision over the Seniors.

Emory's seniors broke through to rush Cris Conyer's kick and save the game and the leadership of the Emory league for the seniors.

After being held scoreless the entire first half, the Seniors pushed over a touchdown in the third quarter. Turman ran back a punt, 11 yards, to the Sophomore 22-yard line. A pass, Turman to Cannon, netted 12 yards. Maddox made six at left guard and Turman went around left end for the score on a quarterback sneak. Turman's drop-kick for the extra point was good.

The Sophomores scored late in the fourth quarter after recovering a fumble on the Senior 5-yard line. Belcher went over right tackle for the touchdown. The try for extra point failed.

The Sophomores had carried the ball from their own 40-yard line to the Senior five, where they lost it on downs. A Senior fumble on the first play was just the break that the Sophomores needed.

Belcher Conyer and Sled were outstanding for the Sophomores. Turman and Maddox played best for the Seniors.

Cagle and Kelly Release Players

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—(UP)—Red Cagle and Shipwreck Kelly, co-owners of the Brooklyn Dodgers' professional football team, announced tonight that Hugh Red, former Nebraska guard; Leo Raskowski, Ohio State tackle; and John Lyons, Tulsa end, were given their unconditional release. These releases were made necessary by a National league rule which limits each club's squad to 22 men before the fourth game which for Brooklyn will be with the Chicago Cardinals at Ebbets field Sunday afternoon.

ALABAMA GAME TO DETERMINE RAMS' FUTURE

New York Is Hopeful Fordham Will Have National Title Claim.

By Stuart Cameron.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—(UP)—Jimmy Crowley's bruising Fordham University eleven this week begins a campaign which may bring New York its first legitimate claim to a national football championship.

Never in football history has New York had a team which rated more than eastern supremacy.

The Fordham schedule this year is of the type which, if completed without defeat or tie, entitles the team to serious consideration. Starting with Alabama, on Saturday, the Fordham Rams play three schools which are as formidable as may be found on any schedule.

For example, while Alabama, for years a major power in southern football, proved its 1933 class last week in turning back Tennessee.

THEN ST. MARY'S.

One week after Alabama, comes St. Mary's, which, if it isn't tops on the coast, isn't more than a touchdown or so removed. The N. Y. U. team, which held Colgate's power squad to a single touchdown, is next on the Ram list, and then comes Oregon State, the team which astounded the football world last week by tying Southern California's supposedly invincible Trojans.

Even if Fordham should complete this heavy assignment with a record unmarred, the Ram would not have a clear claim on the title unless several other teams fall by the wayside.

For example, not even the most partisan New York sports writer would place Fordham above Michigan if the Wolverine came through its back-breaking record unscathed.

The same is true of Georgia, Duke, Southern California and a couple of others, and this is so despite Georgia's one-point win over Mercer and Southern California's tie with Oregon State.

TURNING POINT?

It is possible that Saturday's game here with Alabama will prove the turning point in Fordham's 1933 football career. For while Alabama may not be as "hot" as Oregon State, it is well to remember that southern teams have a distinct habit of playing over their heads when they show in New York.

Further, Fordham, new to the Notre Dame system, needs a few more weeks of polish. The team has the power—almost power to spare—but it needs to learn the time to give it the finesse a Rockne attack needs.

RAYMOND WINS MILLIONS WON

By Frank H. King.

NEW MARKET, Eng., Oct. 25.—(P)—Groans of disappointment from thousands of throats, including his majesty King George, went up over New Market's result this afternoon as Sir Abe Bailey's Raymond, a rank outsider, paying 35 to 1, won the historic Cambridgehire.

Two lengths back trailed Sir Ernest Tate's Denegh, another long shot, with Sir Tom Phipps' lightly weighted Stalky third and the king's colt, Limgilth, out of the money in fourth place.

Holders of the winning sweepstake tickets the world over, totaling an estimate of eight and one-half million dollars, were joyful, but here on New Market's Heath where Stuart Kings used to frolic, it was a sad and dreary day. Not only did Limgilth, favorite at 5 to 1, fail his high jump, adding to the discomfort of the crowd. The king, disregarding the advice of his physicians, and accompanied by Queen Mary, sat in the royal box bundled in a heavy overcoat, while the queen was wrapped in a long coat of deep purple with a high fur collar.

His majesty watched the race intently through glasses. As the field of 26 flashed past the royal box and the cry, "The king loses," rose over the health, the British royal let his glasses fall on their strap. He smiled at the queen as she patted his hand affectionately.

It was umbrella and overcoat weather with a drizzling rain, driven by a high wind, adding to the discomfort of the crowd. GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES

By ALEX. J. MORRISON

Central Press Association.

IN PLAYING OUT OF TALL GRASS HAVE CLUB-FACE LAID BACK.

Alex Morrison says: Many players make the mistake of addressing the ball in a rough lie with a closed clubface.

Any kind of a rough lie only means that much more resistance for the clubbed to cut through when hitting the ball.

When the clubface is turned forward or in the position known as closed, it's almost impossible to make a good shot. The closed face only adds to the resistance already offered by the lie.

The next time you must play out of long grass you can demonstrate to your own satisfaction the advantages of leaving the clubface open as you address the ball.

Just lay it back and make your regular swing.

VIOLETS LEAVE THIS MORNING

By George Shiebler.

(N. Y. U. Bureau of Information.)

The New York University football squad consisting of 35 players, accompanied by coaches, managers, trainers and a party of faculty members, will leave for Athens, Ga., this morning at 9:30 o'clock for the Georgia game on Saturday in Sanford stadium.

This will be the fifth game between New York University and Georgia in a series which began in 1920. Each team has defeated the other twice in four games played to date. N. Y. U. won last year by a score of 13 to 7.

Chancellor and Mrs. Harry Woodburn Chase will head a group of faculty members and officials accompanying the team south.

The team will travel via the Seaboard Air Line Railway and will arrive in Athens Friday morning at 6:10 o'clock. The N. Y. U. party will start back on Saturday night at 10:15 o'clock and will arrive in New York on Sunday morning at 7:35 o'clock.

Captain Harry Temple, injured, is not making the trip.

Those in the party are: Coach—Willie Laidlaw, Sol Fuchs, Nathan Grossman, Leon Smeltzer, Louis Dalwin, Nathan Machlowitz, Jack Begelman, Charles Siegel, Edward Stine, Clifton Givialis and Arthur Mifflin.

Ends—Eldon Dungey, Joseph Leff, Maynard White, Peter Bobrowsky, George Hardy, Irwin Klein and John Abbot.

Tackles—Orrin Herli, Abraham Scheuer, Peter Zarembo, Emilio DeBenedictis, Allen Wals and Perry Geffen.

Guards—John Kohler, Victor Barber, Caesar Benvenuto, Harold Boggs, Joseph Milanesi and Clifford Skidmore.

Centers—Basilio Marchi, John Bills, John Joynt and Val Connolly.

Coaches—Howard G. Cann, John J. Weichner and Albert Dimmock.

Managers—Varsity manager, Edward M. McNally. Assistant managers, Carl Rolfsen, Ernest Schlieben and Sidney Cohen.

Trainers—John Williams, William Culbreath and Sidney Moret.

Faculty members and officials accompanying the team are Chancellor and Mrs. Harry Woodburn Chase, Professor Philip O. Badger, assistant to the chancellor and chairman of the board of athletic control, and Mrs. Badger; Dr. John Musser and Theodore A. Distler, of the board of athletic control; Graduate Manager Albert B. Nixon, Dr. Michael M. Tetelman, physician, and Francis P. Wall, director of intramural athletics.

Vols Look Better For Gator Game

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 25.—(P) Major Bob Neyland revamped the Tennessee line today as he shoved the Vols through a spirited scrimmage in preparation for the Florida game Saturday.

Captain Maples, who has been on the injured list since the Duke game, was back at center, Woodrow Nealham and Gordon Smith were handling the guard positions for the regulars. Ralph Hatley was at one of the tackles and Joe Dougherty remained at the other post.

The Vol backs were running with more power and deception today than at any time this year. Remembering Florida's dazzling passing attack last year, Neyland laid a special stress against aerial assaults.

Carnera To Fight Annually in Rome

ROME, Oct. 25.—(UP)—As long as he is world's champion Primo Carnera will defend his title once a year in the Rome stadium, with the proceeds going to charity. It was announced today by Louis Soreli, the champion's manager.

Soreli said he had arranged for the yearly bouts with the fascist party.

Ring Cards

LAKEWOOD HEIGHTS. In the main clash at Lakewood Heights card Thursday night, George Remick will meet Sully Martin best two out of three title. This is the first time these two men have met.

The semi-final match will bring together the fighting Sergeant Harry Nixon and Dutch Green, from Washington, D. C. The opening match will be between Bob Anderson of Decatur, and Red Dugan, Marietta.

MERCER BATTE BOOSTS MORALE OF BULLDOGS

Captain Batchelor Likely To Start at End Saturday.

By Jimmy Jones.

ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 25.—The Georgia football team likely to turn in its best performance of the season against New York University Saturday, for the simple reason that it is a wiser and a better team now than it was two weeks ago.

This is not only a self-evident fact to one watching the Bulldogs in practice, but is the personal opinion of Coach Harry J. Hays, who is the inspiring influence in getting the team up to the peak of performance that is necessary Saturday to keep its record of four wins and no losses free from blemish.

Coach Mehre, himself, is setting the example in humility that is necessary to clear the mind of the pitfalls that lurk in such a schedule as theirs. Harry was a prophet in disguise before the game with Mercer, warning of a possible pitfall there. But when the boys listened respectfully enough, they were naturally inclined to take Coach Mehre's words and the game a trifle lightly.

For example, when the big bad wolf, too, thought the boys, remembering what they did to North Carolina State's Wolfpack.

They were afraid of the big bad bear, who couldn't be as bad as the big bad wolf. So they went down to Macon to take the Bears over the jumps. That, they took Coach Mehre over the jumps.

HAS TWO ATTACKS.

"I see in the papers where Harry Robertson had a heart attack; well, I had a couple of them last Friday at Mercer," Coach Hays said. "And they took me over the jumps when they got their second touchdown."

Harry thinks the boys learned a lesson in that 13-12 escape. Anyway, he must realize now that they can't take any of them too seriously nowadays, in view of what happened over the country last Saturday.

For example, the type of reverberation of the giants crashing all around.

The Bulldogs are more attentive while passing this week. They are more attentive to Coach Mehre's storm warnings. And they are working hard for N. Y. U., realizing that it will be a hard football game.

Coach Hays is using an illustration or so to put over his idea. Having failed to key them up with oratory, he turned cartoonist for a moment.

This was done through a magazine, last Sunday, depicting a picture showing two Grecian gladiators in fierce combat. One of the gladiators was down on one knee, apparently all washed up. The other was groggy, too, but still on his feet. But the referee, ironically enough, was giving a hand to the gladiator who was halfway to the canvas, indicating the winner.

LOOKS WISE.

Somehow the drawing, with the word "Mercer" sketched in ink underneath the gladiator who was still on his feet, made the Bulldogs' position in the gymnasium, where the Bulldogs dress for practice. They saw it when they came down Monday.

Mrs. Oscar Palmour Speaks Tonight On Music Division Radio Program

Mrs. Oscar Palmour, president of the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs, will speak on the educational broadcast of the music division of the fine arts department this evening at 6 o'clock on the program given monthly over WSB in the Biltmore hotel in the interest of better music under the direction of Miss Nana Tucker, music chairman of the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs.

Mrs. Palmour's talk will precede the program which will be in the form of a two-act play by Miss Eda Bartholomew and C. W. Dickmann. Her talk will be woven around the fact that the federation stands for good music and the featuring of better programs.

A program by such well-known educators will meet with keen appreciation by the wide audience that the monthly educational broadcasts of the Atlanta Federation of Clubs is attracting.

In increasing numbers, evidenced by the growing response not only in Georgia but in other southern states, Miss Bartholomew and Mr. Dickmann, known throughout the south as master organists as well as concert pianists, are of the faculty of Agnes Scott College, Mr. Dickmann being the head of the music department. Miss Bartholomew a teacher of organ and piano. Miss Bartholomew is also organist of St. Mark's Methodist church. Mr. Dickmann has the distinction of being a fellow of the American Guild of Organists, and his compositions both for organ and piano have attracted considerable note.

The program will include: Two movements—"Largo" and "Vivace"—from the suite for two pianos, opus 7, by Hugo Reinhold; "Menuet and Gavotte," opus 66, by Camille Saint-Saens; and "Gavotte and Menuet," from the suite, in C minor, opus 200, by Joachim Raff.

Miss Davis Weds Oroville D. Hall

RUTLEDGE, Ga., Oct. 25.—The marriage of Miss Ruby Davis to Oroville D. Hall, of Hawkinsville, was solemnized today at high noon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James J. Davis. Rev. J. J. Copeland, pastor of the Methodist church, performed the ceremony in the presence of the immediate families and a few close friends. A program of nuptial music was rendered by Mrs. Emory Davis, of Rutledge.

Fall flowers in artistic arrangement were used throughout the home and in the living room, where the rites were read, the bride and bridegroom stood before an altar formed of yellow and white chrysanthemums, ferns and foliage plants.

The bride was attired in a smart costume of brown wool with red fur trimmings. Her hat and accessories were in matching shades of brown and she wore a shoulder bouquet of bronze orchids and valley lilies.

Following the ceremony, the guests were entertained at a breakfast. Mrs. Roy L. Dial, of Albany; Mrs. Frank Hall, and Mrs. Day Davis assisted in entertaining.

The bride and bridegroom left by motor for Chicago, where they will attend the Century of Progress exposition and upon their return they will be at home in Hawkinsville.

Parties Announced To Honor Debutantes

Parties planned to honor members of Atlanta's debutante class will continue to assume first rank in the social calendar for the season, with luncheons, teas, dinners and dances announced each day.

Burchard has planned a luncheon to be given Monday, November 6, at the Piedmont Driving Club in compliment to her niece, Miss Malibelle Dickey, fete debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Dickey.

Miss Dickey will share honors with Miss Maxine Land, debutante daughter of Judge and Mrs. Max Land, at the party at which Mrs. Lyman Johnson will be hostess on Thursday, November 9, at her home on Peachtree road.

Mrs. Marie Bennett Hays will be hostess at a tea November 19, complimenting Miss Ruth Wight, the guests to include a group of the debutante class. Mrs. DeWitt King will compliment Miss Judy King at a tea November 15 at her home on Springdale road.

Miss Laura McGinty entertained at tea Wednesday at her home on Palisades road in compliment to Miss Lundy Sharp, Miss Florence Bryan and Miss Mary Bryan, a trio of debutantes of the season.

Miss McGinty was assisted in entertaining by her mother, Mrs. Stewart McGinty. Mrs. Shepard Bryan served coffee and Mrs. Lewis Sharp presided at the punch bowl.

Miss Hanger Fetes Miss Barbara Ransom.

Mrs. Teresa Hanger will be hostess at a buffet luncheon today at her home on Lafayette drive as a compliment to Miss Barbara Ransom, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Ransom. The hostess, who was a member of the past season's Debutante Club, will be assisted in entertaining by her mother, Mrs. Herbert Hanger.

Invited to meet the honor guests will be Misses Betty Gage, Suzanne Memminger, Mimi Fleming, Lundy Sharpe, Caroline Kinner, Harriet Lee, Isabel Couper, Betty Cole, Judy King, Mary Bryan and Florence Bryan.

Phi Mu Chapter.

MRS. H. W. BEERS.

Mrs. H. W. Beers was elected president of the Young Matrons' Circle of Tallulah Falls school for the ensuing year at the annual fall meeting held yesterday morning at the Druid Hills Golf Club. Elected to serve with Mrs. Beers were: Mrs. Preston S. Arkwright, honorary president; J. H. Hines, Glenville Giddings, G. Arthur Howell and Lon Groves, vice presidents; F. S. Gouge, Jr., recording secretary; John K. Ottley Jr., corresponding secretary; H. Irving Schewepe, treasurer, and Francis C. Hill, Paul Seydel, Charles Loridans, Thomas H. Danis, Fred Cockrell, William McDougald, R. J. Thiesen and Rufus Dorsey, directors.

Mrs. Clarence Haverly, chairman of the nominating committee, composed of Mesdames Arthur S. Bird, Lawrence Willet, George W. McCarty and Ben F. Parker, submitted the report, which was unanimously accepted.

A feature of the meeting, presided over by the president, Mrs. William Akers, was the report of the treasurer, Mrs. H. Irving Schewepe, in which she stated a grand total of $7,844.88 from dues, earnings and scholarships had been given to the Tallulah Falls school through the Young Matrons' Circle for the year 1932-33.

The year's activities sketched in brief reports made by the chairmen of committees and showed splendid progress. Those making reports were Mesdames Eugene Harrington, Duncan, personal gifts; Harrison Hines, equipment; Charles T. Pottinger, clothing; Daniel M. Byrd, books; Kenyon Zahner, garden; William McDougald, dental; Herbert Reynolds, crafts; C. Howard Candler Jr., membership; H. B. Oliver, scrapbook; and Harry Rogers, publicity.

Mrs. Eugene Harrington, chairman of the 1933 spring horse show sponsored by the circle, reported $992 netted from that undertaking.

Walter Candler, who was in charge of the 1932 junior horse show, announced $440 received from that occasion.

Mrs. M. M. Beers, scholarship chairman, reported $2,560 donated for that purpose. The following monetary gifts were reported: Mrs. H. M. Beers, $100; W. E. Chapin, $50; Mrs. William F. Pearson, of Washington, D. C., $25; Mrs. Ben F. Parker, $5; Mrs. Frank M. Berry. Report was made of a scholarship given by DeWitt King to be known as the Beaulah McCollum King scholarship as a compliment to Mrs. King, who is a member of the circle and of the scholarship committee.

Mrs. John K. Ottley, president of the board of trustees of the Tallulah Falls school, told the members that their enthusiastically expressed wish and one of Mrs. Akers' chief objectives for the year at the school to be completed was almost a reality, as the pump is being installed this week. Mrs. Ottley also stated that within 10 days the Albert Sheldon workshop for boys will be completed. The Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs presented a gavel made of cedarwood in the workshop to the circle in appreciation of its service to the school. In the absence of Mrs. J. W. Gholston, of Comer, state president of the federation, who is in south Georgia attending district meetings, the gavel was presented in her behalf by Mrs. Howard McCall, parliamentarian of the state group.

Two interesting recent gifts to the school were announced, including that of an X-ray machine from Lindsey Hopkins and that of 124 new sweaters from Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Fletcher. Mrs. Fletcher is an active member of the Young Matrons' Circle.

Miss Yolande Gwin, president of the Young Girls' Circle of Tallulah Falls school, was introduced and asked the patronage and assistance of the circle for the series of three polo games which her group will sponsor at Fort McPherson on October 29, November 5 and 12. Admission will be by car, each car being $1, regardless of how many passengers. The Young Matrons' Circle voted to co-operate with the Young Girls' Circle in this undertaking. The latter group will receive an excellent percentage.

Mrs. Akers expressed a desire at the beginning of her term of office last year that every committee chairman and every member visit the Tallulah school during the year. It was announced that 19 committee chairmen have visited Tallulah with their committees. "Practically the entire membership has been at the school during the year," said Mrs. Akers.

Miss Mildred Lanier, a graduate of the Tallulah Falls school in the class of 1932 and now an instructor there in weaving and sewing, brought three students, Ruby Beck and Carmel Nixon, of the ninth grade, and Dorothy Hill, of the sixth grade, to the meeting for an exhibition of handicraft. Miss Lanier was weaving on a small tapestry loom and the students were making hand-woven towels in one corner of the ballroom during the meeting. Misses Beck and Hills made brief talks, expressing appreciation of the circle for their continued assistance.

Plans for the junior horse show, which the circle will sponsor on Saturday, November 4, at the Biltmore Riding school on Roxboro road, were announced. Mrs. Walter Candler, general chairman of the show, introduced her co-chairmen, Mesdames Charles LaRoux, Westervelt Terhune and Clarence Haverly, and also Mrs. A. S. Wheeler, who with Dr. Wheeler, will direct the show. It was stated that all young riders in the city not over 18 years of age are eligible to enter.

Mrs. Akers, retiring president, was presented a hooked rug as a tribute of affection from the children of the school. Miss Mildred Lanier making the presentation to Mrs. Akers expressed appreciation for the gift, as well as for the splendid co-operation received from each member of the circle during her term of office.

Mrs. Akers has been an outstanding leader and through her untiring efforts and enthusiasm she has inspired the Young Matrons' Circle of Tallulah Falls school to constant endeavor and excellent accomplishments.

Round of Parties Is Planned Feting Miss Smith, Fiance

Miss Mary Bullock Smith and her fiance, Walter Clifford Hendrix Jr., are being honored at a series of parties preceding their marriage, which will be an interesting event of next month. Miss Lamar Lowe entertains at a bridge-tee at the Atlanta Woman's Club tomorrow honoring Miss Smith.

Her guests will include Misses Julia McClelland, Katherine Johnson, Frances Smith, Betsy Smith, Mary Broughton, Mesdames Charles M. Brawner, Hubert Bradley and Kenneth Maner.

Mrs. Homer Groves Smith will be hostess at a bridge-tee at her home on Bolling road Tuesday, October 28. Mrs. Eugene T. Johnson entertains at a luncheon and bridge party November 1 at her home on Piedmont road.

Mrs. and Mrs. Charles M. Brawner entertain Wednesday evening, November 11 at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Hendrix.

Mr. and Mrs. Hendrix will be hosts at a buffet supper following the wedding rehearsal Tuesday evening, November 14. Mrs. Clifford H. Groupe will also serve Smith.

bridge-tee at her home on Piedmont road, and Miss Evelyn Bird and Charles Bird will entertain at a bridge supper at their home on Sheridan drive, the dates to be announced later. A number of other parties have already been announced for this popular couple and others are being planned.

of the most enthusiastic and effective workers for Tallulah Falls school. During the past year she served as chairman of the scholarship committee and during the previous year as chairman of the equipment committee.

She is head of the biology department and is the donor of the Nancy Mathews Akers perpetual scholarship of $2,000 as a memorial to her grandmother, Mrs. Nancy Mathews Akers.

Members re-elected as their honorary president Mrs. Preston S. Arkwright, who was the inspiration for the forming of this circle and has served as honorary president from its beginning in February, 1927.

From the Young Matrons' Circle for Tallulah Falls school will go to Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, when she presides at the national meeting of Humanity Crusaders in New York on October 30, the assurance of the unwavering support of this strong group of 300 young Atlanta women for the Crusader program of support for the institution of school and home and the preservation of which is a necessity for the life and progress of our nation.

A strong resolution to this effect was passed at the annual meeting of the Tallulah Circle on Wednesday, at the Druid Hills Club, following a moving talk from Mrs. Preston S. Arkwright, the honorary president of the circle, who is the member from Georgia of the Crusaders, of which Mrs. Roosevelt is chairman.

The circle pledged redoubled effort to carry forward the work for education and life building of their great school at Tallulah Falls, known as "The Light in the Mountains"—and also to throw their full strength into the work for the Atlanta Community Chest in all its phases.

After the business meeting, a barbeque was served at the home of the new officers and new members of the circle. Mrs. Glenville Giddings, chairman of hospitality, and Mrs. Lon Groves, chairman of entertainment, with their committees, assisted in the entertainment.

Among out-of-town guests at the meeting were Mrs. A. O. Nunnally, president of the Griffin Woman's Club; Mrs. Homer Gossett and Mrs. George Niles, also of Griffin; Mrs. A. E. Carpenter, of Warm Springs; Mrs. Edward L. King, of Fort McPherson; Mrs. William Doty, of Minneapolis; Mrs. Malcolm Kaysaugh, of California; Mrs. Eugene Finckhura, of Kansas; and Mrs. Donald Carmichael, of Minneapolis.

The associate stewards of the church will be the spicers for the attractions.

Social News of Varied Interest

Little Betty Marlene Cooper was entertained Wednesday afternoon at a Halloween birthday party given by her mother, Mrs. E. W. Cooper, 1473 Hartford avenue, S. W., celebrating her second birthday. The following young guests were present, accompanied by their mothers: Frances Agnew, Jane White, Jane Cantrell, Gloria Bradford, Jerry Lee Mauldin, Shirley Glass, Marjorie Jo Hunt, of Cedartown, Ga.; Johnny Thurman, W. G. Cooper III, Bobby Lester, Bobby Pennington, Thomas Stallworth, and Pat Stiles. Other guests present were Mesdames Eunice McElveen, W. Garland Cooper, Morgan McElveen, and Edna Blue, of Montgomery, Ala., great-grand-aunt of the young guest.

The Atlanta Shorter Club met Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Henry McGhee with Mesdames Dudley Mize, J. L. Estes and S. Dan Smith as co-hostesses. Miss Mary Mae Dougal, who is head of the biology department at Agnes Scott, read an interesting paper, "As Others See Us."

Important business matters were discussed and the date for the southwest alumnae luncheon was set for November 18 at 12 o'clock, at the Biltmore hotel. At the conclusion of the meeting tea was served by the hostesses.

Those present were Mesdames Dean S. Paden, Goodrum Norris, Cecil Moseley, Harold Cooledge, T. M. Forbes, James Skelton, Howard Towley, Henry McGhee, Curtis Dixon, Joe Estes, George W. Tingle, S. Dan Smith, A. W. Van Hoose, Julian W. Tindall, Edwin Irvin, Malcolm M. Sims, Nelson Martin, Dudley Mize, Athos Menonni, William W. Woods, Harry Callaway.

Mrs. W. P. Sewel, 1102 Springdale road, was hostess at an informal tea given to mothers of the senior class of the Druid Hills High school Tuesday, Mrs. H. S. Canfield, Mrs. George Coats and Mrs. Hugh Bowden, other grade mothers of the class, assisted Mrs. Sewel in entertaining. This was the first of a series of teas to be given by the grade mothers of the high school, under the direction of Mrs. C. H. Crawford, chairman of the grade mothers.

Atlanta chapter of Senior Hadassah met Monday at the Jewish Progressive Club, with Mrs. J. J. Hoffman, presiding in the absence of the president, Mrs. Herbert Taylor. This month's major activity centers in the annual ball, which will be held at the Shrine Mosque and of which Mrs. S. A. Goldberg is chairman. A feature of the ball will be a cabaret. Mrs. Harry Mattell, sewing chairman of the north side, announced that the patterns are ready for distribution. The articles to be sewed on will be little suits for boys of one to six years. The southern regional president, Mrs. S. E. Levy, announced that a lecture on Palestine and recent developments will be given by Mrs. Louis Weiner, of Chattanooga, Tenn., who has just returned from abroad. All the Jewish women's clubs are invited to attend this lecture, by one of the south's outstanding leaders in Zionist work.

The speaker was Rabbi Harry Epstein, who delivered a stirring address on the far-reaching influence of the present Hadassah convention at Chicago. A social hour followed the meeting, with refreshments served by the medical organization of Palestine, sponsored by Jewish women of the United States. Hospitals in the large cities of the world are being helped by the group of women, which admit all humanity, regardless of creed or race.

Infant welfare stations are erected throughout the land, giving hygienic information in the care of children as well as pre-natal aid to mothers, with the result that a great decline in infant mortality has taken place. Hadassah also serves well-balanced meals to under-privileged children. This year's demands are greater than ever, due to the number of refugees from Germany, who are given aid and help placed in business and occupations.

Mrs. J. C. Malone gave a splendid talk on P. E. A. work at a recent meeting of Buckeye Woman's Club at the home of the president, Mrs. F. W. Schanck, in Morningside. Mrs. W. Earl Quillian and Mrs. Viola Allen were co-hostesses. Mrs. E. M. Heiberg was appointed chairman of nominating committee, composed of Mrs. R. S. King, Mrs. E. F. McIlwain and Mrs. S. H. McGuire. An all-day sewing will be held on Tuesday, October 31, at the home of Mrs. J. G. Englehart, 751 Parkway drive, N. E., at the result that members may bring additional garments for needlework.

On November 28 club members and families will have a social evening with dinner at Taverna room.

Mrs. W. C. Eady entertained at a bridge-luncheon recently at her home at East Lake. Autumn flowers featured the decorations. Mrs. Barney Barrett won top score prize, and Miss Billie Eady, traveler's prize. The guests included Miss Billie Eady, Mesdames Barney Barrett, R. E. Ewing, Charles Rife, J. R. Grant, L. Kelley, J. E. Paul, H. G. McGhee, R. L. Pagett, D. G. Byram and H. L. Kent.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

BY CAROLINE CHATFIELD
Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

A young woman correspondent writes to ask how she may make people who now dislike her, like her. It can be done, if one is willing to pay the price. Wasn't it Charles Lamb who said that he never disliked anyone he really knew, no matter what his preconceived prejudices might have been? We have all had experiences of the truth of his contention. A closer acquaintance with a person we have disliked almost invariably results in a change of the attitude. The very quality of mind or heart with which we have quarreled in the acquaintance often appears in a totally different light when we inspect it at close quarters. It is not infrequently happens that we come to approve in the friend the trait that we have condemned in the acquaintance.

But to form a closer acquaintance with the person that dislikes you is a real task and requires diplomacy. There are not many people in this world that can resist those that offer them approval and commendation any more than they can resist the rays of the sun. A word of approbation spoken, a compliment paid, sympathy shown at the time you have a masterful grip upon a frail human being. Turn the situation around if you wish to see it in a clear light. Consideration any more than you can be antagonistic in your attitude to some individual and had that one say a word to you that made you think, after all, you are not so different from him after all. Haven't you disliked someone and had that one do you a kindness that made you feel positively friendly toward him? I think so.

Consciously, or unconsciously, we all desire a smooth passage through this life. There is only one way to get it: it is to have pleasant relations with the other travelers whom we meet and whom we pass. No matter how much money and power we possess, no matter how much magnetism there is in our personality, no matter how much wit and humor we have, if we are not friendly to the kindly, friendly approach to people they do not like us. They may fear us, they may recognize and give us credit for our personable qualities.

The whole secret of getting on with people in this world lies in giving them what they want. If you keep your wits about you, if you are able to determine what that is, we all go about striking our keynote, unconsciously, perhaps, but loud enough for others to detect it. A person's conversation is like a symphonic composition. There is a theme, a melodic line that underlies all that is said and done. If you listen carefully you will find it sometimes clear, sometimes very faint, sometimes modified to fit the occasion, sometimes lost in variation, but always there, reminding us what that person has in mind, what he wants of life. You don't have to supply the whole demand. You simply have to contribute your share to it. Sometimes that share is only sympathy and understanding, sometimes it is affection, sometimes it is approbation, sometimes it is a word of praise to some other for a contribution each of us should, in turn, make one.

NANCY PAGE

Pam Lacey Is Going To Be "Dog-Gone" Pleased

BY FLORENCE LA GANKE.

Into the gift box at Nancy Page's home went a scarf for a young girl. Later this would be wrapped and sent over to the Lacey home. For Nancy had Pam Lacey in mind when she made it.

Nancy chose a fine cashmere or soft wool for the scarf. She knitted it with skill. She might have used silk but she found that silk felt so cold when it touched the skin on a winter's day that the scarf was left unworn. However, she knew one person who could not stand wool next to her skin. For her Nancy chose a silk lining. She made the scarf 40 inches long and 8 inches wide. The scarf might be left unlined, but it hangs better when lined. Then, too, the lining hides the stitches which is used to apply the Scotty onto the end of the scarf.

It is a matter of choice as to whether the dog is applied to both ends of the scarf or at only one.

Nancy has drawn two sizes of the dog. They are given in working size on the direction leaflet which you may obtain by following the directions at the end of this article. If you use felt for the applique you do not allow any extra material for turning under the edges.

If you use silk or other materials that may not be felted, you cut the pattern a little larger on all sides and then turn the raw edges under. Baste these in place before appliquing. If you press the edges under after basting the piece will lie flatter.

You may applique the dog by using buttonhole or blanket stitch. In this case you do not need to turn edges under.

The scarf may be made of wide silk ribbon. Nancy cut one end straight across but the other, which is a matter of choice.

Detailed instructions for making scarf may be obtained by sending 2 cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Nancy Page in care of The Atlanta Constitution.

Mrs. Connors Fetes Miss Betsy Weyman.

Mrs. George Connors, of Birmingham, Ala., entertained at a buffet supper last evening as a compliment to Miss Betsy Weyman, a popular member of the season's Debutante Club. This affair was held at the home of Mrs. George Weyman and Mrs. John Grant Jr., at their home on Chatham road.

The hostess was assisted in entertaining the guests, who included members of the Debutante Club and their escorts, by Mrs. S. T. Weyman, Mrs. George Weyman and Mrs. John Grant Jr., at their home on Chatham road.

Inman Park Club.

The Inman Park Students' Club meets Friday morning, October 27, at 10:30 o'clock with Mrs. L. P. P. the president, at 516 Church street, in Decatur.

Home Park P. T. A.

Home Park P. T. A. will sponsor a Halloween carnival on the school grounds Friday afternoon, October 27, from 2 to 5 o'clock. Parties, candy pulling, a stage show, and other types of entertainment will be offered.

Luncheon at Sterchi's.

Women's Auxiliary, Georgia Baptist hospital, will serve luncheon at Sterchi's, Whitehall street, Thursday and Friday, October 26 and 27, from 12 to 2 o'clock. Turkey, luncheon, with dessert, will be 35 cents a plate.

Oakhurst Carnival.

Oakhurst P. T. A. will sponsor a Halloween carnival in the school auditorium Friday, October 27, at 7 o'clock. The grade representatives will be in charge of ice cream, cakes, winner stand, sugar art, fancy dressed dolls, and a fishpond. Ghosts will walk and a pep show will afford amusement for all attending. Admission is 10 cents. Members of the school community are invited, especially the daddies.

BURNS CAUSE DEATH OF 2-YEAR-OLD CHILD

Burns received 10 days ago caused the death Wednesday morning of Katherine Christopher, two years of age, of near Duluth. The child's clothing caught fire from an open grate and severely burned her arm. She was brought to an Atlanta hospital. Complications resulting from the burned arm caused her death, according to hospital doctors. The body was taken to Duluth for funeral services and interment.

Sacred Heart Alumnae To Sponsor Carnival.

The Sacred Heart alumnae will sponsor a Halloween party Thursday afternoon at the Sacred Heart school. Miss Patricia Collins is general chairman of the party.

Interesting features of the carnival will be the fishpond, the fortune teller and a grab bag. A grand march will be held in which all children appearing in costumes will be invited to participate.

A variety of sandwiches, soft drinks, home-made cakes, candy and chocolate milk will be served at noon, and all former graduates and friends of the school are invited to spend their luncheon hour at the carnival.

Culbertson on Contract

BY ELY CULBERTSON.

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

The Opening bid of one notrump is unquestionably the most undesirable call that may be made and yet it is an essential bid in Contract. Hands containing about 3 honor-tricks divided in three suits, justifying an Opening bid of one notrump, are vulnerable, but when vulnerable an Opening notrump bid discloses a hand with a minimum of 4 honor-tricks, accurately to your viewpoint, a vulnerable or not vulnerable, an Opening notrump bid implies that the hand contains no biddable suit and strongly infers that it does not even have a shaded biddable suit which could be shown in preference. This explains why the Opening notrump bid is considered the weakest opening call. The very fact that a notrump bid has been made implies in itself unfavorable distribution—that is, the probability that great difficulty will be experienced in developing long cards as trick winners. The bid should be used rarely. For instance, with a 4-4-4-1 distribution, a non-biddable four-card minor suit headed by Ace-Ten, King-Ten or Queen-Knave should be shown in preference to one notrump. Equally, when vulnerable, with an honor holding sufficient to justify an Opening suit bid, but less than the 4 honor-tricks necessary to justify the notrump Opening, a shaded suit should be bid in preference.

Holding

Spades—A 6 5 4

Diamonds—K Q 5 4

Clubs—K J 3 2

bid one diamond, when not vulnerable, in preference to one notrump, although the hand measures up in honor strength to the minimum requirements for a non-vulnerable notrump bid. If vulnerable, however, the hand should be passed. With such hands as:

Spades—A Q 6

Diamonds—K 10 9 8

bid one diamond if vulnerable, because the hand is too strong to be passed; one notrump, which is ventured if not vulnerable.

In other days, before the modern theory of cards had been developed, a notrump bid was considered the strongest Opening bid in Auction and in its predecessor, the game of Bridge Whist. However, with the development of modern principles of bidding and play applied to the newer and more exacting game of Contract, players quickly learned that notrump bids on hands which offered a possible suit declaration were losing ventures and invited tremendous penalties at the Bridge table, whether vulnerable or not, whenever the maker of such a bid was confronted with a trickless Dummy.

The basic objection to the Opening notrump bid is that, in the first place, it fails to give information as to one of the most important features of any hand—namely, its distribution. A second objection is that any responsive partner may make to an Opening bid of notrump is already at the range of two, which may quite conceivably be far too high.

However, undesirable as Opening notrump bids undoubtedly are, there are hands which do not offer a reasonable alternative bid, and those with the necessary honor strength must be opened with a bid of one notrump. It therefore clearly follows that an Opening bid of one notrump generally denotes a biddable suit in the hand and that such a bid merely shows fair strength distributed 4-3-

3-3 or 4-4-3-2. Examples of sound Opening one-notrump bids, not vulnerable, are:

♠ A K 3 ♠ K 10 3
♥ Q J 5 ♥ J 10 7 6

♠ A 5 4 ♠ K Q 7
♥ A 10 9 ♥ 10 9 8 3

♠ K J ♠ K 9 5 3
♥ A K 4 ♥ J 10 9 8

♠ A 6 4 ♠ A 9 8
♥ A 8 7 ♥ J 9 7 2

Opening bids of one notrump, vulnerable, must include a minimum of 4 honor-tricks in order to safeguard the partnership against the perils of unfavorable distribution. Holdings such as:

Spades—A K 7

Diamonds—K 10 7 4

Clubs—K 10 7 4

or similar hands, containing not even a shaded biddable suit, may be opened with a bid of one notrump because the honor-trick strength is too great to pass, and partner's distribution may supplement the honor content of the Opening hand.

BARGAIN IN LOVE

BY JANE DIXON

WHAT WAS GONE BEFORE

Henry Hume, Sue Santry's New York employer, goes to Paris on business and takes her along to help his secretary, Mathilda Fetherstone. Held closely to their work, Sue and Mathilda are in the brilliant French capital two months but see nothing of it, and Sue is in a rebellious mood when they leave for home. She falls asleep in her deck chair the first evening on the liner Toulon and when she awakes the ship is being tossed in a heavy storm. As she makes a dash for shelter, the ship pitches and she is going over the rail when Jeffrey Randall grasps her ankle, which is badly wounded. Though he saved her life, Sue is distrustful of this young man. In Jeffrey's presence, Mrs. Hume confronts Sue and accuses her of being with her husband in Paris. Jeffrey assures Sue he does not believe the woman's accusations and that evening, on the moonlit deck, asks her to marry him. He does not even take her hand as he tells her that in seven days he will be 27 years old and if he is not married then, he knows the Randall fortune under the will of his bachelor uncle, Griswold (Grizzly) Randall, now go on with the story.

"Suppose they won't believe I'm Mrs. Randall," Sue, breathless again at thought of the ordeal, "Suppose they demand proof?"

Jeffrey laughed. "You're a great little supposer," he said. "Bea and Cyril gauche enough, the lord knows, but not quite that bad. People don't go about producing marriage certificates on demand. By the time they verify any suspicions they might have, there'll be nothing to verify. We'll produce the papers to the proper authority—the executor—and that will be the exit for Bea and Sil."

"I've got it!" Mathilda almost choked over the excitement of her idea. "You can be married here on this ship. Sea captains have the right to perform marriages. I've read about them."

"Matty!" Sue, exclaiming. The world was a swirl. A swirl of sea and sky and ship. With Mathilda and Jeffrey blurred against its mad-dancing revolution. "I couldn't. I haven't."

"Don't tell me you haven't anything to wear. It's no time to hold out for bride's veils and orange blossoms. Mathilda said, adopting her best managerial manner.

Jeffrey interposed: "I'd thought of asking the captain to marry us. He's a friend we could trust. Like all seafaring men, he has a gift for silence. I'm afraid it won't do. The legality of such a marriage is subject to attack. I'm sure Bea and Sil would find any chink in a legal wall. It must be a marriage impervious to attack. A regular 'until death do us part' ceremony."

Sue starting. Sacrilege. Sacred words being moulded into a phrase for legal challenge. She must steady herself. When one made a bargain with Satan or Midas or the great god Opportunity, one paid the price. No whimpers.

"Until death do us part," she said, "for divorce."

"This young world moves too fast for me," Mathilda sighed. "Here you are, talking about divorce before even you are married."

"I'll help you catch up," Jeffrey said, lightly. "We've been going so fast we haven't considered the divorce. It will be arranged. No trouble. As soon as feasible I'll have myself called to Mexico where the estate has some oil interests. I won't come back, at least not until Sue can get a decree. My lawyer will take care of the settlement."

Sue, forcing a smile. The world stopped whirling. It stood still, then rocked rather sickeningly.

"You haven't asked me," she said, "what price I ask for my services."

"Price never occurred to me," Jeffrey said. "It's something one can't repay. You ought to be protected, though. Sue, you're risking a lot without even a scrap of paper to show for the risk. We could sign a contract."

Mathilda flounced out her skirt, took a hitch in her black patent leather belt. Obviously, she was disgusted by the trend of the party.

"My advice to you is to make a gentleman and lady's agreement," she said. "Two nice young people who like each other and who might fall in love if there wasn't all this palaver about estates, ought to be able to get together and find some real happiness. You've got enough between you without a written contract."

Eleven o'clock. Sue, sitting up in bed, staring wide-eyed into space, became conscious of voices. Outside the cabin door. Women's voices. Low at first, then one of them, sharp soprano, rising to a higher scale.

"I came to see this girl, Sue Santry, and I'm seeing her. I have business with her."

"I take care of Miss Santry's business. Only she is no longer Miss Santry. She is Mrs. Jeffrey Randall."

"She poses as Mrs. Randall. I'm reporting her conduct to the captain. This ship is supposed to preserve some sort of respectability. Low at first, then one of them, sharp soprano, rising to a higher scale."

"I'm sure the ship is eminently respectable. Report to the captain, by all means."

That was Mathilda. The other woman must be—yes—Mrs. Hume. If Mrs. Hume went to the captain there might be an investigation. Sue leaped out of bed. She would have to stop Mrs. Hume.

"Don't you think you're being a little bit foolish?" The sharp soprano went plianissimo. "I know you, Miss Fetherstone. You're a very sane and efficient woman. You manage my husband's offices. You are his trusted employee. You wouldn't want to lose that position, would you?"

"I was your husband's employee. I hope I shall always be trustworthy. My resignation is being forwarded to Mr. Hume. I am not the confidential secretary of Mrs. Jeffrey Randall."

Pregnant pause. Then: "Oh, so the stenographer is taking on airs—and a secretary."

"Not at all. A stenographer has enough sense to know high hats won't fit typewriters. I'm waiting a lot of time, we ought to do better with Mrs. Hume. Mrs. Randall's left word with the steward that Mrs. Randall is not to be disturbed until 10 tomorrow morning. If you'll excuse me, I'll be getting in."

Sue standing behind the cabin door as Mathilda opened it and then closed it again.

"Matty, what did she want? Why was she down here, at this hour?"

"She wanted you," Mathilda wound a scarf from her neck. "Hours mean nothing to felices like her. It's a good thing I happened along. She was all set to bang on our door and you would have been enough of a babe in the wood to answer."

"But, Matty, if I talked with her, if I explained to her about Mr. Hume—that he is not interested in me except as a part of the machinery that carries on his business, it might save her a lot of unhappiness."

"Never mind saving her. Look out for yourself. Jeffrey said he'd take care of Mrs. Hume. Let him do it. Responsibility will be good for him."

One more day. The Toulon would dock tomorrow at noon. A few hours for Sue Santry, free and twenty-one. Then—a party to play. Sue Santry, playing the part of a happy bride meeting her husband's high-placed relatives. An unwelcome, a hated interloper. Trying to smile down their criticism, their suspicion, to ward off their barbs of hatred.

The play shifts. Sue Santry, repudiating her marriage vows in a dingy City Hall office, pledging herself to a stranger. Hocus-pocus willy nilly—and she is Sue Randall. Still twenty-one, but not free. Sacrilege. Making sacred things cheap and tawdry. Should she go on? There was time even now, to withdraw from the cast. There would be no play, of course. If she withdrew. But no play at all might be better for her. For Jeff than this dangerous farce. She would find Jeff and tell him she could not. They must not go on. But how could she fail Jeff? He had been so kind, so gentle, kinder than anyone—except her father. She must not fail Jeff—and she must take care of Tommy, dear Tommy. De—well, anyhow, good kind Jeff. The play must go on.

"We're rounding the curve for the home stretch," Jeffrey said, throwing himself into Mathilda's deckchair. His smile had not lost its quizzical uplilt. If Sue had not known he was interested in her, she would have been a material and entirely mercenary end, she would have sworn his eyes, searching her face, were possessive.

"In the words of the classics," she said, "it won't be long now."

"For one, shall not let loose loud cheers," Jeffrey contemplated. "If it were not for our bargain, Sue, the fact I'm going to be married by for a time at least. I'd try to bribe the captain to miss port altogether and go on sailing to some uncharted destination on the other side of the earth."

Sue, thinking: "He's trying to be gallant. He doesn't want me to feel too much like a catch-penny panderer. I'll relieve him. I'll convince him I'm too hard-boiled to be sensitive."

"All very well for you," she said. "But you forget the poor husband-snatcher. I wouldn't want to be bottled up indefinitely with a wronged wife."

Sue's heart contracting painfully. The light was gone from Jeffrey's eyes. He was like a small boy who came to his mother for a caress, and had his ears boxed instead.

"Has that woman been heckling you again?" Jeffrey's brows lowered.

"Oh no. You're whoof, whoofs concerned her, for the moment. She's scarcely one to stay. I'll concentrate, though, with those ingraving lips and gimlet eyes."

"I'm counting on it. What's her husband like? Adorned in Wall Street, Romeo adrift in Broadway? Seems to think he's quite a gem, hiring detectives and accusing innocent bystanders on the other side of the earth."

Sue's heart warming. Why try to bait anyone as regular as Jeffrey? "Henry Hume?" Sue visualizing her employer. "He's the customary business type—medium height, inclined to bulge in spots, slightly bald, age indefinite, anywhere between 40 and 60, talks staccato and believes 40 and 60, self absolutely. An exacting man but a fair one."

"He sounds reasonable enough. Probably knows nothing about this racket his wife expects to put over."

"I doubt that he does."

Sunlight

Let the sun shine on you. It brings you health. It kills germs. For children, it is a preventive of rickets. Have a sun porch in your house if possible. In any event, have at least one sunny room. Remember that direct sunlight, to which you should become gradually accustomed, is better than sunlight strained through ordinary window glass.

Carefully conducted vision surveys show that a large percentage of all children between the ages of six and sixteen have defective eyes.

Helpful Suggestions for the Care and Attention for BabyAt 6 A. M.

See that the baby and crib are dry.
Nurse the baby.
Put the baby into crib, where he will have a comfortable morning sleep.
Prepare toilet tray for the day.
Get everything ready for baby's bath.
Household duties.

At 9 A. M.

Train baby to regular bowel habits.
Give baby's bath. (Allow 45 minutes for this.)
Take up baby, air bed. Put mattress outdoors if possible.
Sit down and give baby sterile water to drink.
Bathe, dress and nurse the baby.
Make baby's bed. (Lay baby on mother's bed while making his bed.)
Put baby into his bed. Know that he is warm and that his clothes are pulled down straight. Cover carefully and let him sleep.
See that the room is well ventilated and that the light is not shining in the baby's eyes. If possible, let him sleep out-of-doors. See that the cap strings are not too tight.
Empty water out of tub, wash and dry tub in the sun.
Put toilet tray in order.
Wash diapers and flannels.
Follow the definite schedule for nursing and for giving water to the baby, as ordered by the doctor.
Each time before nursing, baby and bed should be made dry.
After each nursing, put baby back into his bed or carriage and allow him to sleep.

At 5 P. M.

Prepare for the night.
Wash baby's face, hands and genitals and rub his back.
Change baby's clothes, including shirt and band. The baby's night clothes should consist of band, shirt, diaper and night gown.

BABY'S TOILET TRAY

The toilet tray should contain the following things:

1. Boiled water, fresh every morning, in a tightly corked bottle. This is the baby's drinking water supply for the day.
2. A jar of boiled water, fresh every day, for cleansing the mother's nipples before and after nursing the baby.
3. A jar of large cotton swabs for cleansing the mother's nipples.
4. A jar of small cotton swabs for cleansing the baby's ears and nose. Caution: These swabs should be removed from the tooth picks before using.
5. A jar for rubber nipples.
6. A nursing bottle.
7. A jar containing albolene or any mineral oil for cleansing baby's nose, ears, buttocks and genitals. (Mineral oils are better than olive oil because they do not deteriorate.)
8. A jar containing a supply of cotton balls for applying the oil.
9. A cake of castile soap on a soap dish.
10. A cake of soap to serve as a cushion for the safety pins.
11. A day's supply of paper bags for waste.

How to Sterilize Rubber Nipples.

- (a) First wash the nipples clean.
- (b) Put water to boil into a clean kettle.
- (c) Drop the nipples into the boiling water. Cover the kettle and let them boil from three to five minutes.
- (d) Keep the sterile nipples in a dry, sterile jar.

Note.—When placing the nipple on the nursing bottle, take care not to touch the part that goes into the baby's mouth.

Give Your Heart a Chance; Ten Rules for Good Health

Heart disease is frequently preventable. What should one do to keep the heart healthy?

1. Go to a doctor every year for a health examination, and follow his advice. This suggestion applies to children as well as adults. After a serious illness, have the doctor give your heart a thorough examination. Then return to active life as carefully and slowly as possible so that your heart will have plenty of time to rest from the strain.

2. Look after infested teeth or tonsils.
3. Go to the dentist regularly.
4. Keep your weight near the average for a person of your age, sex and height.
5. Have a well-balanced diet and do not overeat.
6. Be careful in the use of headache medicines—consult your physician.
7. Consult your doctor about the use of tobacco and stimulants.
8. Live a well-rounded life. Exercise regularly but stop before you are overtired.
9. If you have children, consult a doctor whenever one of them complains of even mild leg ache or pains in the joints.
10. Watch your child after he has had one of the "children diseases" or any serious illness.

Testing Eyesight

Place the test page beside a good light, preferably an electric light which is shaded from the eye. Arrange the light so that there will be no shadow on the type. For reading type No. 1 stand off fifteen feet. Cover one eye with a card or piece of dark paper. Spell out the letters one by one using each eye separately. With normal sight you should be able to read these letters correctly. You may find that one eye is not as good as the other, or that one eye is doing the work of both. This simple test will give you an idea of your eyesight for distance.

Measles Is Dangerous Disease; Very Contagious in Early Period

Measles is a dangerous and very contagious disease. The first signs of measles are sneezing, running at the nose and a slight cough. The eyes look red and watery and the light hurts them.

It is during this early period that others are most liable to catch the disease. The child may appear to have only a cold. But the mother who sends her child to school or allows him to play in the street at this time is helping to spread the disease to other children.

In the beginning there is little fever. In a day or two the skin becomes hot, the tongue becomes covered by a furry coating, and the throat grows very red. About the fourth day, red spots begin to appear on the forehead and face and soon spread down over the entire body. The spots collect in large red blotches and usually itch.

1. As soon as your child shows the first signs of measles, if he sneezes and coughs and if his eyes are watery, keep the child out of school—indoors in bed in a light, airy room—and away from other children.
2. Call the doctor without delay. He will give your child the proper treatment.
3. Protect the child's eyes from direct bright lights or glare.
4. Be sure to follow your doctor's directions for keeping your child's eyes, ears, mouth and nostrils perfectly clean. The discharge from your child's nose and throat and ears should be carefully gathered in clean rags and burned. Measles can easily be caught through the disease germs the sick person spreads by talking or coughing. For this reason only the doctor and the person who is nursing the patient should enter the sick room. As soon as the rash fades, the skin will begin to peel. This peeling may last from several days to a few weeks. Although children are more likely to catch the disease, adults, too, sometimes develop measles. In adult cases, the disease is even more serious.

5. Do not let the child get up until the doctor says it is safe, and take him to the doctor again in a few months, to make certain there are no bad after-effects.

THE CONQUEST OF TYPHOID FEVER

WHAT IS TYPHOID FEVER?

Typhoid fever is a preventable disease that can and should be stamped out. Each year about 56,000 persons in the United States and Canada have typhoid fever, and about 5,600 die of it. The average duration of sickness from it is eight weeks.

To Prevent Typhoid.

First—Be sure that you use pure water, pasteurized milk or milk from hygienic dairies, and clean food that is protected from flies.

Second—Be vaccinated against typhoid fever and have all members of your family vaccinated.

Third—All persons having the disease or suspected of having it should be reported at once to the local health board.

Fourth—Waste matter from persons having typhoid fever should be mixed immediately with chlorinated lime or carbolic acid to kill the typhoid germ.

GUILTY PARENTS

have much to answer for in children's bad laxative habits

THEY think they are doing well by their children . . . these parents. They give them good food, good clothes, a good education. They are satisfied with themselves . . . because nobody has pointed out the wrong habits their children are already developing in the direction of constipation and its treatment.

Do your children's thinking for them—for a time at least, until they are on the right road! Tell them about the different kinds of laxatives and the dangers of some of them.

Tell them about Feen-a-mint. How it works the way your doctor would have it work if he compounded it himself. Thorough, of course. Gentle—and safe—because it's made in the one form that compels thorough chewing. And it's just plain common sense the way chewing insures even, natural distribution. It's the way you eat your food. Check up with your doctor or druggist. They'll tell you why Feen-a-mint is the universal laxative for grown-ups and children. Get a package of this delicious, mint-flavored chewing gum laxative today. You'll never go back to the old-fashioned laxatives.

Whooping-Cough A Dangerous Disease to Children and Grown-ups; How to Know It and to Treat Sufferers From It.

Whooping-cough is very dangerous to children and sometimes fatal to grown-ups. More than twice as many people die from it as from scarlet fever. It is especially serious for infants.

The mother whose children have had whooping-cough does not need to be reminded of its symptoms. She can remember her child running to her gasping for breath, catching hold of her skirt for support and finally breaking into that painful rasping cough.

Starts With a Cold.

Whooping-cough starts with a slight cold, running at the nose, fever, and a dry cough. The eyes are blood-shot.

After a week the cough gets worse and the child coughs many times in succession. He becomes pale and draws in his breath with a sharp, scraping sound. This is the "whoop." In some cases this is not always present.

In mild cases, the child will have four or five coughing fits a day; in severe cases, many more than that.

Call the Doctor.

If your child shows the first signs of whooping-cough, call the doctor, and follow his directions absolutely.

The child frequently vomits because of the hard coughing. Give him foods that are easily digested. When he loses his meal, an egg, well beaten in milk with a little sugar and vanilla, can be given.

As a result of the vomiting, many children lose weight and become very weak. In this condition they easily get pneumonia, or even tuberculosis, and other serious diseases. Whooping-cough may also cause heart strain, and the child should be carefully examined by the doctor before he is allowed to return to school and play.

Carelessness Spreads Disease.

The disease is spread mainly by coughing. It is very catching and is infectious in the earliest stages. All matter that comes from the mouth and nose while the child is sick should be received in a piece of clean old linen or rags, and burned. It is largely through carelessness in coughing and in the disposal of nose and throat discharges that the disease is spread. Keep separate cups, glasses, plates and spoons for the child while he is sick.

See that the child gets plenty of fresh air. Keep the room well aired night and day. Unless it is raining, take him out every day, on the roof, in the yard, or into the park.

Keep the Child Away From Others.

Even after the "whoop" has stopped, he can give the disease to others. Wait until the doctor says he is well.

Have the doctor make sure there are no bad after-effects.

Poisons and Their Antidotes

Following treatments for poisons are recommended by Col. Charles Lynch, Medical Corps, U. S. Army, taken from the Red Cross First Aid Manual:

CORROSIVE POISONS

Strong Acids, Sulphuric, Hydrochloric, Nitric, also Strong Alkalis, such as Caustic Soda, Lime and Potash.

Symptoms—Burn and stain the lips and mouth; burning pains in throat and stomach; straining and vomiting, perhaps suffocation; always shock.

Antidotes—For Acids give baking soda, magnesia, lime water or soap-suds. For Alkalis give vinegar, lemon juice. Also in both poisons give large doses of olive oil, milk, eggs, or flour and water, to dilute and soothe the parts, and then an emetic.

IRRITANT POISONS

Bichloride Tablets, Paris Green, Sugar of Lead, Arsenic Phosphorous, Poisonous Plants, Cyanide of Potash.

Symptoms—These do not stain. Metallic taste in mouth; burning in throat and stomach; vomiting and purging.

Antidotes—Dilute and soothe with large quantities of salad oil, milk, eggs, soap-suds, starch or flour water. Then give an emetic like salt water or mustard and water. Then stimulants like strong coffee or tea, or spirits of ammonia. (No oil in Phosphorous Poisoning).

NERVE POISONS

Opium, Morphine, Paregoric, etc.

Symptoms—Produce deep sleep; pupils of eyes small; insensibility; face flushed.

Antidotes—Give emetic if poison is just taken. Keep awake by strong coffee; slapping with wet towels; walking the victim supported on each side, and Artificial Respiration.

STRYCHNINE (the most common), Belladonna, Prussic Acid, Etc.

Symptoms—Convulsions, twitching, delirium and suffocation.

Antidotes—Give an emetic at once, or tickle the back of the throat with the finger till vomiting is produced; artificial respiration if breathing stops; stimulants; get the doctor at once.

Poliomyelitis and What To Do

While there is much that is still unknown about infantile paralysis, this advice may help you protect your child from this dreaded disease and particularly from the paralysis which often follows it.

Infantile paralysis is a communicable disease. It occurs most often in the summer months and early fall, commonly among children. In the beginning it resembles many other contagious diseases. A child that has been well becomes restless or drowsy. He is feverish, irritable and doesn't want to be moved. He is apt to vomit once or twice and may complain of headache or pain in the back, or in the back of the neck. He is likely to be constipated, but may have diarrhea. More significant are a sore, stiff neck and spine and pains in the back, arms and legs. Many of these symptoms are not unlike those in the common upsets to which children are subject, but the most serious sign is the stiffness of the spine and neck, the child being unable to bend them forward.

Sometimes these early symptoms may be very mild and yet within from 24 to 72 hours the child may be unable to move an arm or a leg. Again he may be unmistakably sick with the first stages of this disease, but develop little or no paralysis. Sometimes a child may have so mild a case that the attack is scarcely noticed, and yet he may spread the contagion to other children. Even a doctor who is a nerve or child specialist often has to perform a slight operation (known as lumbar puncture) to be sure that his diagnosis is correct.

Why It Is Important to Call the Doctor Early.

If your child has fever, vomiting and marked restlessness, put him to bed and promptly call your family doctor. Even though your doctor is one of the best, he may wish to have the advice of a specialist to supplement his own judgment. The child may not have infantile paralysis, but if he has, prompt action on your part may spare him months and even years of helplessness. The doctor may be able to prevent the crippling after-effects, which are the worst features of this disease, if he is called in before the arms or legs begin to be weak and paralyzed. He will also give advice about the position of the patient and how to care for and move him, which may have much to do with the prevention of deformity or crippling. It is very important to get a doctor's advice at the earliest possible moment.

A serum is now available in certain communities, made from the blood of healthy individuals who have had this disease and have entirely recovered. This "convalescent serum" is believed by some who have used it to prevent paralysis and death in a considerable percentage of cases, but if it is given, it must be administered before the paralysis set in, to do any good. Not all patients should be given the serum. The doctor or the specialist can tell whether or not your child should have it. His advice at the outset may save much suffering later.

ONE-MINUTE SERMON ON EYE-SIGHT

In the interest of the conservation of vision, it is well to remember a few preventive measures. The eyes open and close 30,000 times a day. Rest them frequently.

Never read more than two hours at a sitting.

Place the light so that it falls over the left shoulder.

A book should be held from 14 to 16 inches from the face.

Avoid cheap glasses.

Remember that ill health or incompetency is often a sign of defective sight. Avoid it.

Remember that the eyes of your child obtain for him his education, his enjoyment, and, later, his livelihood.

A periodical examination of the eyes by a competent optometrist is recommended and, where there are defects, the eyes should be equipped with proper lenses.

If the eye-sight of your child is normal, the optometrist will tell you so. If glasses are required he will fit them correctly.

Did you know that there are more than 54 quadrillion (54,672,465,803,673,600) possible combinations of lens powers which may be made for eye-glass lenses?

Did you know that placed edge to edge that number of lenses would pave a road a mile and a half wide from the earth to the moon?

Did you know that one side of a person's face always differs from its other side?

Did you know that a finished eye-glass lens is worth more than its weight in silver—because out of a pot of 600 pounds of glass only 50 pounds of finished lenses are obtained?

GOOD EYES SHOULD BE RELIEVED OF STRAIN

The vision of the school child is of utmost importance, for health and happiness are affected by minor irritations in larger measure than is usually realized. The wrong slant of light on the work, reflections from ill-fitting shades, windows or objects which reflect light, may lead to unsuspected difficulties. The eye is a long-suffering organ of the body. It will often stand, apparently without complaint, more abuse, perhaps, than any other part, but that does not mean it is not registering its unhappiness. Any one of a number of ills, having no apparent connection with the eyes, may be the result. Nausea, headache, indigestion, malnutrition and nervous disorders may have their origin in, or be contributed to, by eyestrain. Frequently if a child is backward in school, or if he does not stand or sit straight, it may be that his eyes are causing the trouble. To see well when reading he may have it sit in a crooked position. This position may make the chest smaller, and prevent the lungs from expanding properly.

Children should be watched closely for signs of beginning eye trouble.

The best lighting system is that nearest to ordinary daylight. The light should be evenly distributed through the room. The method of indirect lighting, by which the light is thrown to the ceiling and reflected throughout the room, is ordinarily the best.

Whatever method of lighting is used, whether in the home, office, factory or shop, we should see that our eyes are under as little strain as possible.

How To Make a Bed With the Patient In It

1. Place a chair at foot of the bed.
2. Remove the pillows.
3. Fold the spread.
4. Strip the bed, keeping patient covered with blanket.
5. Loosen sheets from mattress on all sides of bed.
6. Draw or roll patient to one side of bed.
7. Fold draw sheet, rubber and lower sheet (each separately) close to patient's back.
8. Put on clean sheet and place evenly; fold one-half of sheet up to center and place this under the roll of soiled sheets.
9. Put on the rubber, fold in the same manner as the sheet.
10. Put on a draw sheet.
11. Make top corner.
12. Pull sheet and make lower corner.
13. Tuck in sheet alongside of mattress.
14. Tuck in rubber sheet alongside of mattress.
15. Tuck in draw sheet alongside of mattress.
16. Roll or draw patient on to clean side of bed, keeping him well covered. Draw out soiled linen.
17. Arrange the sheet on opposite side of bed, making corners secure and drawing sheet tightly at center and tucking in well under mattress. Pull draw sheet until free from wrinkles and tuck in securely. Arrange pillow under head.
18. Put on top sheet and blankets, tucking them in well at foot of bed. Draw up from under the bed clothes the blanket which has been used to protect the patient.

Best Remedy for Cough Is Easily Mixed at Home

No Cooking! No Work! Real Saving!

You'll never know how quickly a stubborn cough can be conquered, until you try this famous recipe. It is used in more homes than any other cough remedy, because it gives more prompt, positive relief. It's no trouble at all to mix and costs but a trifle. Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. Syrup is easily made with 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. This gives you four times as much cough medicine for your money, and it's a purer, better remedy. It never spoils, and tastes fine.

Instantly you feel its penetrating effect. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm, clears the air passages, and soothes and heals the inflamed membranes. This three-fold action explains why it brings such quick relief in severe coughs.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, used for generations for its healing effect on throat membranes. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Perhaps one of the most famous group of eating places in the southeast are the Pig'n Whistle and Peacock Alley and Brass Rail. More than 5,000 persons are served daily by these restaurants.

Five years ago the Pig'n Whistle was opened in Atlanta by H. T. Hagan, who attributes the growth and success of the restaurant to the fact that only the best of everything in the food line is purchased for preparation. Mr. Hagan says, "Our foods are prepared by expert chefs and under supervision of men who have been in the restaurant business for many years."

He further states, "Only by buying and preparing such great volumes of food is it possible for us to serve such high quality foods at prices as low as we do." Newest of his locations is Brass Rail No. 3, located at Marietta and Forsyth streets, which remains open all night.

How To Prevent Pneumonia, Winter Colds and Influenza

Colds, influenza and pneumonia, which are more or less distinct conditions, may be caused or made worse by the same things, and may be prevented in the same ways.

1. Stay away from people with colds. Especially during flu epidemics, it is wiser to stay at home than unnecessarily to be part of a crowd in poorly ventilated rooms or meeting places.

2. Keep your body built up by eating nourishing food (not overeating sweets), sleeping eight hours, if possible, exercising outdoors in the sunshine every day and drinking at least six glasses of water daily.

3. Train your skin to stand changes in temperature by frequent bathing. Bathing each morning with water cool enough to give a healthy glow after the rubdown is good for hardening the skin. If cold water is too much of a shock at first, the temperature can be lowered a little each day.

4. Wear sensible clothing. Wear enough clothes to be comfortable. In this day of overheated houses, offices and shops, it is better to put on extra wraps when going outdoors than to wear heavy underwear all the time. Winter shoes should have thick soles and rubbers should be worn on rainy days. Wear wool stockings in winter.

5. Breathe through your nose. Air is filtered as it passes along the nasal passages on its way to the lungs. The mouth-breather takes dust and germs directly into his throat. See a doctor if you have trouble in breathing through your nose.

6. Have diseased tonsils, adenoids or bad teeth removed.

7. Wash your hands often, always before eating. Brush your teeth at least twice a day.

8. Live and work in well-ventilated rooms. It is better for the thermometer to read 68 degrees than over 70. Overheated rooms cause more colds than underheated. Windows should be opened at least twice a day, even during the winter, for complete change of air. If there are dust or fumes where you work, wear a mask, if possible—at least sweep out your lungs with fresh air a few moments at your lunch hour or when walking part of the way to and from work.

9. Sleep with open windows in winter and summer. It is not enough that air be cold—it must be fresh.

10. Keep your feet dry. An extra pair of shoes and hose kept at your place of work will add to your health and comfort when you are caught without rubbers. Rubbing the feet briskly with a rough towel will help you keep from taking cold from wet feet.

11. Cool off gradually. If you are perspiring, an electric fan or a cool breeze may start a cold.

12. See a doctor if you keep on taking cold in spite of care of yourself. If you take cold often, if colds hang on, if you have a persistent cough, your health needs watching. The proper treatment of colds will prevent much sickness and many deaths from influenza or pneumonia.

The Medicine Chest

For the Home—In every home there should be certain first-aid materials and medicines, carefully selected, carefully labeled, and kept in a cabinet made for the purpose. This cabinet should be placed well out of the reach of children. Medicines prescribed by a doctor should be kept here and not left standing around the house. When the special need for which they are prescribed is passed, such medicines should be thrown away. The following articles should be kept always on hand:

A Clinical Thermometer—For taking temperature.

First-Aid Dressing—Including sterilized gauze for wound dressings, gauze bandages to hold dressings in place, and a roll of adhesive plaster. A number of individual first-aid dressings will be found very useful. These can be purchased in any drug store.

Alcohol (for rubbing)—Six ounces. Use externally to relieve the pains of sprains, strains, bruises, and to refresh the skin during an illness.

Aromatic Spirits of Ammonia—Two ounces. One-half teaspoonful in some water for faintness.

Boric Acid—Four ounces. Dissolve 2 1-2 teaspoonfuls in a glass of hot water and use as an eye wash.

Carbolated Vaseline—One tube. For external use, in treatment of small burns.

Castor Oil—Eight ounces. Dose—one to two tablespoonfuls.

Oil of Cloves—For toothache.

Tincture of Iodine—3 1-2 per cent or individual ampoules, or mercurochrome solution.

Syrup of Ipecac—Dose, one teaspoonful, followed by a drink of warm water, to cause vomiting.

For Traveling—Small first-aid packets, which can be purchased from many druggists or hospital supply companies, will be found useful and occupy but little space in a traveling bag. These packets should be part of an automobile equipment. On camping trips, the equipment should be more elaborate and contain the necessary remedies for burns, ivy poisoning and snake bites.

For Small Workshops—A metal cabinet containing the following minimum equipment placed in a conspicuous location and under the definite supervision of some member of the organization who has had first-aid training is suggested:

Individual package type sterile dressings.

Individual package type finger dressings, 1 1-2-inch compresses.

Individual package type 3-inch compresses, a few 4 x 6-inch compresses.

Assorted gauze bandages of various widths.

Tourniquet.

Absorbent cotton, package or roll.

Splints of yucca or similar material.

Scissors, pair.

Aromatic spirits of ammonia—ampoules best suited for first aid.

Iodine, individual ampoules, or mercurochrome.

Adhesive tape, safety pins, and any special equipment for particular type of treatment found necessary in certain industries.

Fresh Air

Fresh air is a thing that people need in large quantities from babyhood to old age. Like sunshine, it is an enemy to germs and a friend to good health. One who is outdoors most of the time is much less likely to have colds or "catching" diseases like tuberculosis than one who is shut in.

Fill your lungs full of fresh air whenever you get a chance. Let fresh air into the house, winter and summer. Sleep with the windows open always. Have as much fresh air as possible in your shop or office. Fresh air is free; don't skimp your measure.

Nothing but trouble is gained by waiting until the point is reached at which some school examiner sends the child home for the attention his parents should have given him long before.

What Is Goiter? Its Detection And Prevention

Goiter is one of the oldest diseases known, affecting children and grown-ups, especially girls. But only during the past 20 years have we been getting at the exact cause of this disease and working out practical methods of prevention.

It is more common in certain parts of the country, sometimes called goiter districts. Simple goiter is an enlargement of the thyroid gland, which lies in the front of the neck, and normally is too small to be seen.

We know that this enlargement is due to lack of iodine. There are periods when goiter occurs more frequently, as during the years from 12 to 16, during pregnancy, and also during or following any chronic or severe infection.

The work of the thyroid gland is to keep growth and development at a normal rate, and at these times the amount which the thyroid gland is called upon to do is greatly increased.

How Can We Detect Goiter?

This enlargement of the thyroid gland shows by a swelling in the front of the neck. You may suspect the presence of goiter in yourself or in your children when you can see a lump in the front of the neck which moves up and down on swallowing. Prompt treatment would cure most cases, but all could be prevented.

Why Do We Have Goiter?

The secretion of the thyroid gland is necessary for normal growth and development. The important thing in this secretion is iodine. It has been often proved that if the thyroid has iodine so that it can produce the needed secretion, it will not enlarge; but if there is a lack of iodine in the body, the thyroid enlarges in its effort to secure it. It was also found that only a very small amount of iodine was needed to keep the thyroid supplied. This fact made clear the method of prevention.

Why Check Goiter?

Goiter may injure the mind as well as the body of the boy and girl in school. It slows normal growth, being sometimes found with dwarfism and feeble-mindedness. If allowed to grow, an operation may be necessary or it may lead to cancer of the thyroid, or very serious poisoning and nervous conditions. It is then no longer "simple" goiter, but a grave disease, sometimes causing death.

How Can We Prevent Goiter?

A small amount of iodine once a week through the periods when most needed will prevent goiter. Therefore, in preventing it in the schools in many cities, each child is given, once a week, a chocolate iodine tablet. This is so prepared that it tastes like good chocolate candy, yet contains enough iodine to prevent goiter. In many communities iodized table salt is also being widely used as a general goiter preventive. The simple and efficient method of preventing it before it appears should be known and practiced under the doctor's direction in every home or school in districts where goiter is common. Any one with actual goiter should not start treating it with any form of iodine without the advice of his or her physician.

To Save Yourself From Tuberculosis Follow These Simple Suggestions

Live, work, play, sleep and rest, whenever possible, in the sunshine and open air.

Eat nourishing food and use milk Pasteurized or from tuberculin tested cows.

Avoid overwork, late hours and all excesses which weaken your body.

Keep cheerful.

Go to your doctor for a thorough health examination once a year.

Outdoor life helps prevent tuberculosis.

How to Get Well.

The first three rules of tuberculosis treatment are rest, rest, rest—in bed, until the doctor says otherwise. You cannot keep the long hours of rest and other rules of treatment as well in the home as in the special hospital, called a sanatorium, built to care for people with tuberculosis. You can find out about the tuberculosis hospital nearest your home by asking any public health officer or nurse. Tuberculosis associations in nearly every large city or county, and other health agencies, are glad to guide people with tuberculosis so that they may get proper care.

Some people have recovered by taking the rest cure under the direction of a doctor in their own homes. Freedom from worry is more important than change of climate. Getting well is a long, slow process which depends in part on a peaceful state of mind.

Doctors and nurses and members of the family should try to help the patient get "in tune with the cure." The good effects of weeks of careful nursing and rest can be destroyed by a few minutes of worry and over-exercise.

The earlier tuberculosis is discovered, the easier it is cured. The only cure is to build up the strength of the whole body so that it will kill the tuberculosis germs. This takes months and sometimes years. Rest, fresh air, good food and sunshine are the best cures. Do not be misled by advertised cures of any kind. Consult a doctor before trying any treatment. Rest of body and rest of mind are the main things the average tuberculosis patient needs. Remember—tuberculosis can be cured.

Protecting Others From Tuberculosis. If the patient is being cared for in the home, all sheets, body linen and dishes should be boiled and kept separate from those used by the rest of the family. A person who has tuberculosis should have a room alone with no carpet or rugs on the floor. The windows should be kept open day and night and the room cleaned with a damp cloth.

Gauze which can be destroyed or a paper napkin should always be held before the mouth when coughing or sneezing. Pasteboard sputum cups can be bought, which should be burned after using. The person with tuberculosis who coughs and spits carelessly almost certainly will give the disease to his family, friends or fellow workmen. He owes it to those about him to spit into a container which can be burned.

If there are children or others in the home whose bodies are in a run-down condition so that they are apt to get tuberculosis easily, it is wiser for the future health of the family to send the tuberculosis patient to a sanatorium.

Mothers who have tuberculosis should never nurse their babies. One of the rules for protecting future generations is that a woman should never have children while she has active tuberculosis. It is unfair to children to be brought up in a home where the parents have tuberculosis.

It is unfair for anyone, even the apparently healthy, to spit in a public place. To do so may spread disease.

Many Reasons Given For Lack of Sleep

There are many theories about sleep. No one knows definitely why we sleep. It is apparent that we need profound sleep to get rid of fatigue—producing lactic acid and to encourage dream life. That more people need better sleep is also apparent when we consider that one person out of 250 becomes a mental patient sometime during his or her life.

The present generation probably needs at least better sleep than previous generations. Radio programs, sleep-disturbing night noises from traffic, a greater assortment of time and energy-consuming evening pleasures made possible by electricity, all probably keep us from getting as much sleep as our fathers did. Then the emotional strain of modern high-speed automobile traffic, and the present gnawing apprehension caused by the depression, also conspire to make us need the safety-valve of dreams as never before. Our civilization, in short, has developed so that many of us are unwittingly cheating ourselves of sleep.

Most Flavor in Whole Bean Coffee

By SARAH BLACKWELL.
"Well, now let's go to Betty's and have coffee" was the 10 o'clock suggestion of one of the men in the party after dining and dancing at one of the new open air beer gardens the other night. The beer, the singing waiters and the dinner had been grand but the coffee was terrible and none of the men seemed quite happy about the finish of that meal. It took John to get at the bottom of the situation and invite us all to Betty's, by her leave or no, for Betty does, without fail, serve a perfect cup of coffee every time.

The secret of her success, as she herself will tell you, is a very simple one told in two words, "fresh coffee." "But that I mean coffee that is not only freshly roasted but coffee that is sold in the bean and ground in the store when I buy it so that I know that nature's own seal—the smooth outside skin of the bean, which protects the delicious flavor and aroma of the coffee—has not been broken until I am ready for it," she continued. "Of course to be quite honest I think it would be even better if I ground the coffee myself just before making it but I don't have a coffee grinder and even if I did I wouldn't like the bother and the mess of grinding coffee every time I make it."

And a bright girl she is, that Betty, for science has shown that she is right. Dr. Samuel C. Prescott after three years research in the department of biology and public health of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology says that coffee in the bean retains its flavor longer than in the ground form. Furthermore, he says that it is desirable to grind the coffee beans just before making the coffee if we wish to get all of the available flavor and aroma from the coffee. But like Betty, many of us do not have coffee grinders and if we did we'd hate to add one more last minute job to the preparation of any meal when there are so many other things that we must do.

The next best idea, therefore, seems to be to do just as Betty does—have our coffee ground when we buy it—and then buy only enough for a week at a time so that we'll never have a cup of coffee made more than a week after nature's seal on the coffee bean has been broken.

Exercises to Strengthen the Feet

The feet are for walking. However, with the use of the automobile, and elevators to take the place of stairs, people are walking less and less.

In the olden days it was a mark of aristocracy not to walk; but today it is the man of affairs who takes time to walk. Walking is excellent as a general exercise for the body, but it is especially good for the muscles of the legs and feet.

Unless your feet are badly strained or weakened, walking will probably be the only exercise they will need. But if symptoms of flatfoot or fallen arch have developed, your doctor or specialist may recommend other exercises. Rest, massage, and proper exercise will usually restore the arch to normal.

The following exercises are suited to varying degrees of foot weakness.

ball of the foot, twisting heels inward and trying to grasp the floor with the toes. Do this 20 to 30 times, slowly, morning and evening.

EXERCISE 3. Lifting Arch, barefoot. Stand with feet parallel. From the abnormal position with the feet relaxed and the ankles bending in, tighten up to a straight leg, straight ankle position. This will lift the arch from the floor, and hold it in the normal position. It may not be easy at first to do this exercise without lifting the inner edge of the foot, but the exercise is so helpful that the ability to do it is worth considerable effort. Repeat from 20 to 30 times, morning and evening.

EXERCISE 4. Walking on Toes, barefoot. Not so easy, but wonderful for strengthening the toes. Walk on tiptoe until you find you must drop back on the whole foot.

EXERCISE 5. Grasping with

Be sure to consult an expert, however, before beginning to use them.

EXERCISE 1. Outward Roll. Remove shoes and stockings. Stand with weight on both feet; feet about 6 inches apart. Roll the feet outward 12 to 30 times, so that the weight of the body is supported on the outer edge of the feet. Lift the inner and under parts of the feet clear of the floor at each roll. Do this exercise twice daily.

EXERCISE 2. Rising on Toes, barefoot. Stand with feet parallel; 6 to 8 inches apart. Rise on the Toes, barefoot. Grasp a large marble or a small solid rubber ball with EXERCISE 6. Ankle Bending, barefoot. Sit on a chair, resting your legs on another chair of the same height; your knees stiff; feet and toes stretched out in slightly pigeon-toed position. Then count four, at the same time bending the ankles and bringing the toes toward you as much as possible. You will feel a noticeable pulling of the calf muscles. Do this 50 times, morning and evening. the toes, and take as many steps as possible without dropping it.

Rules for Disinfection

Fill basin outside of door with cold water containing soap.

Put dishes in this water and know that they are covered with cold water. Boil for 15 minutes.

Wash, dry.

Isolate.

II. Disinfection of Soiled Linens.

Handle all soiled linens carefully at arm's length, as they may be soiled with sputum, etc.

Roll in newspaper until ready to boil.

Have ready, outside of patient's door, a pail or boiler partly filled with cold water containing soap or small amount of washing soda.

Put in linen loosely and put on boiler cover.

Boil for 20 minutes.

Wash.

Dry in the sunlight.

III. Disinfection After Illness Is Over.

PATIENT:

Complete bath.

Clean mouth and teeth thoroughly.

Spray nose.

Gargle throat.

Wash hair.

Dress in fresh, uninfected clothes.

ROOM:

Air and sun well.

Wash with hot, soapy water all parts that can be so treated without injury.

Wipe off walls.

Scrub floors.

Wash windows and sashes and clean shades.

Boil and wash bed linen, covers, curtains and dry in the sunlight.

BLANKETS, QUILTS, PILLOWS, MATTRESS:

Expose to direct outdoor sunlight.

GUARDING HEALTH OF SCHOOL CHILDREN

The health status of any community is the aggregate of the health conditions of the individuals who make up the community. Of all the assets of an individual or a community, none is more valuable than health and frequently none is given so little attention.

Health is necessary if one is to enjoy life and each is in a large measure individually responsible for his health. Departments of health are actively enforcing measures which can be applied to the health protection of communities; however, there are many things which cannot be controlled in this manner, and good results are entirely dependent on each person's own acts; he must decide for himself whether or not he is to enjoy good health or poor health; whether or not use will be made of recognized scientific procedures for his own protection and that of the community.

Guarding the health of school children can be accomplished in two ways. One is to do your part in preventing the spread of communicable or catching diseases and in helping to keep children, teachers and all persons employed in the schools well. This can best be done by periodic health examinations and exclusion of all infected persons, and through health education. The second is to do what you can to prevent accidents. Since the child spends a large part of the day in school, special attention should be given to proper cleaning of the school buildings and grounds. All food handlers should be medically examined regularly, and all food, especially milk, should be carefully guarded and properly prepared. Proper facilities should be provided for sanitary toilets, washrooms, safe water supply, proper heating and ventilation. Special attention should be given to fire prevention, safe play grounds and careful supervision of traffic in school districts.

Many children are found with obstructions of the nose and diseased tonsils and discharging ears. These ailments seem so simple that parents often do nothing for them, though told by the doctor what serious results may follow. Rheumatism, malnutrition, underweight, anemia are only a few of the ailments that may be caused by these minor infections. Diseased tonsils may cause heart disease in your child later in life.

A child handicapped with any of these defects cannot help lagging, disliking to play and being "finicky" about his eating. Health officers everywhere are calling attention to the increasing number of deaths due to heart disease.

See that your child is given a medical examination periodically and listen to your doctor and follow his advice. Prevent disease while you can. Neglect of your child's present welfare not only handicaps him now but may mean his future failure in life, while just a little care on your part of his present physical condition will increase his chances for future success.

Water

Drink plenty of water, beginning the day with a glass or two and drinking freely during the day. This is very important, for the body needs plenty of water to help carry off the waste that must be got rid of every day. Further, the water must be pure. If it comes from springs or wells, it may be polluted by drainage. In that event, or when, for any other reason, its purity is doubtful, drinking water should be boiled.

The suitable time to put out a fire is before it amounts to anything. The sensible time to stop eye strain is before it "amounts to anything."

Why Hospitals Use a Liquid Laxative

Hospitals and doctors have always used liquid laxatives. And the public is fast returning to laxatives in liquid form. Do you know the reasons?

The dose of a liquid laxative can be measured. The action can be controlled. It forms no habit; you need not take a "double dose" a day or two later. Nor will a mild liquid laxative irritate the kidneys.

The right liquid laxative brings a perfect movement, and there is no discomfort at the time, or after.

The wrong cathartic may keep you constipated as long as you keep on using it! And the habitual use of irritating salts, or of powerful drugs in the highly concentrated form of pills and tablets may prove injurious.

A week with a properly prepared liquid laxative like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will tell you a lot. A few weeks' time, and your bowels can be "as regular as clockwork." Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is an approved liquid laxative which all druggists keep ready for use. It makes an ideal family laxative; effective for all ages, and may be given the youngest child. The New AGGREGATE INDEMNITY

Non-Cancellable Income CONTRACT

GEARED TO THE TIMES—MEETS A WIDESPREAD NEED—LOWER IN COST

The Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Company announces its new AGGREGATE INDEMNITY Non-Cancellable Income Policy, offering income protection at a price within the reach of the great mass of prospects now unable to purchase life income protection. This new AGGREGATE INDEMNITY policy is renewable to age 60, thus fully protecting the normal income earning period.

Literally, hundreds of thousands of people are sold on the need of Income Protection—but they want it non-cancellable. Now that incomes are again on the increase, many of these people are thinking of protection. But—they are finding that many companies have discontinued disability protection—or that the cost of Life Indemnity Policies is beyond their means. The new AGGREGATE INDEMNITY Policy was designed to meet this vast demand. It offers protection in the amount you desire or need, and it is non-cancellable. It protects the owner throughout the normal income earning period because it is renewable until age 60. Thus, in a nutshell, this new policy is exactly what a large majority of people want; it offers protection now, in a definite amount, for a definite time, on a non-cancellable basis—at low cost.

Think of being able to buy a Pacific Mutual Non-Cancellable Policy for $35. That is the rate for age 35, other ages in proportion. This 1934-model should be GOOD news! Call by or phone.

How Accident Is Likely To "Light Up" Malady Already in the Body

Dr. Clendening Tells How Long-Slumbering Condition May Be Awakened by Circumstances.

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D. been eating. And nearly always all of us have been eating something that somebody considers indigestible.

One of the curious facts about the processes of disease is that a long-slumbering condition may be suddenly awakened by an entirely extraneous circumstance. Accident insurance companies are fully aware of this. A person has an accident more or less trivial, and in the course of a few weeks develops a real disease. Nothing is more natural than that they should ascribe the disease to the accident. The disease did not manifest itself before, it gave no symptoms, the victim was unaware of its presence. Then a sudden jarring, the fall from a street car, a collision in an automobile, and in a few hours, days or weeks the trouble starts. Cause and effect seem well established.

But it is not necessarily true. The late Doctor John B. Murphy, in showing patients with tuberculosis of the bones or joints, always used to emphasize the fact that symptoms began six weeks after an injury or trauma. Of course he did not mean that the tuberculosis itself was developed by the injury; it had been present for some time. But we all have injuries almost daily. If our bones are healthy (and the injury is not too severe) no disease develops. In the case of an existing but slumbering tuberculosis, however, the injury serves as a trigger to set the disease process aflame.

Even such diseases as typhoid fever, pneumonia, tuberculosis of the lungs and (very notably) syphilis, have been ascribed to accidents. All these diseases are due to germs; and a street car accident can't put typhoid germs inside a person; at least it is difficult to see how it could. Unquestionably the germs were present to begin with, and the accident merely set them off.

All this has direct bearing on the subject of the old-fashioned belly ache. It is so easy to calm one's fears by ascribing a pain in the digestive apparatus to "something you ate." But the "no doubt" part of the phrase is by no means a certainty.

Whenever anyone develops "an old-fashioned belly ache," the family diagnostician inquires into what he has

As Edmund Lester Pearson says in describing a particular instance of poisoning with antimony where the outstanding symptom was belly ache: "There is always a rumor about a slice of watermelon which he ate. (People always love to blame watermelons.)" But it just so happens that there was a little trouble beginning in the appendix when that "indigestible" food was eaten and if the real cause of the distress is a full-blown case of acute appendicitis, it is not so safe to invoke the old-fashioned b. a. Especially if the next move is to give the patient a whopping dose of castor oil. Because a cathartic is the worst thing a patient with appendicitis can receive.

The medical profession has long protested about counter prescribing. I am not sure that this is always a bad practice. Economic conditions make such management of trivial ailments inevitable. But the druggist prescriber should learn what is trivial; and when he undertakes to treat the old-fashioned belly ache he is on dangerous ground.

Toy Balloon Brings Help.

Finding a toy balloon, which had floated from London, brought financial help to M. Lepoivre Antoine at Blandain just after his wife had given birth to the ninth Antoine baby. The balloon was one of many released at a fête two days before and floated farther than any other. By the terms of the contest, the finder of the tiny gas bag making the longest trip would receive $5 in dairy products or the equivalent in money. Antoine found it at 3 o'clock in the morning as he was taking home the nurse who had attended his wife.

Flaxseed Poultice

1. Have water boiling in saucepan. (Do not allow water to stop boiling.)
2. Sift in flaxseed slowly, stirring constantly until mixture is of a batter-like consistency.
3. Beat until light and smooth. (You may use an egg beater.)
4. Have piece of old muslin on hot plate.
5. Turn out poultice on this, spread to half-inch thickness, turn in edges of muslin, cover with muslin. Hurry to bedside. The important thing is to keep this poultice hot.

Method of Applying the Flaxseed Poultice:

1. Have ready a binder (old muslin), safety pins, towel, oiled muslin, vaseline and cotton or gauze.
2. Have binder in place.
3. Oil the skin well with vaseline (vaseline on gauze or cotton.)
4. Test temperature of poultice with wrist.
5. Place poultice gradually and lightly until it can be tolerated without burning.
6. Cover with oiled muslin.
7. Cover with towel.
8. Fasten on with binder.
9. Change before poultice becomes cold.
10. After removing poultice, oil area with vaseline and cover with cotton pad.

GENERAL HEALTH OF YOUNGSTERS IN TEENS

Health education can be promoted only by emphasizing all aspects of health — physical, mental, social, moral. The teacher of health should look for normal development of the child from all of these points of view. The ideal of health is not mere freedom from obvious deformities and pathological symptoms. It is realization of the highest physical, mental and spiritual possibilities of the individual. The essentials of good health may be summed up as follows: Diet—Exercise—Rest—Sleep.

The rate of growth during the early teens is rapid, and if additional food is not eaten, the boy or girl may not put on sufficient weight to maintain a feeling of well-being. They sometimes grow all out of proportion, in height, which sometimes makes them self-conscious and unhappy. Weight and height and general physical condition will determine the amount of food required for the individual, no set rules can be applied for all. We speak of bread as the staff of life. This expression describes accurately the place of bread in the American diet. It is the staff on which we lean in maintenance of body temperature and in support of muscular work, it is not the foodstuff on which we depend for growth and upkeep of tissues. A well-balanced and adequate diet always results when the basis of the daily fare consists of the so-called protective foods, milk and dairy products, fruits and green leafy vegetables. Eggs may also be placed in the protective category.

Is Your Child Handicapped?

Does your child's nose run or is it sore? Does the child snuffle? Are the eyes red? Are there fever sores or eczema around the nose and mouth? Does the child seem dull? Does it stand and look at you with open mouth? Does it put its hands to its head as though it had earache? Does it take cold easily? Does the child sleep with its mouth open? Does it snore? If the answer to any of these is Yes, ask the doctor if the child has adenoids or large tonsils.

TONSILS—Tonsils often become diseased and stick out into the throat. Sometimes diseased tonsils do not get any larger but contain little cups filled with pus. Diseased tonsils hold poisonous germs which may cause throat trouble or may be carried to other parts of the body and cause serious sickness.

ADENOIDS—Adenoids look like a little head of cauliflower, colored red. They grow in the back part of the throat where the nose and throat join, and can be seen only by the doctor with a special mirror. They stop up the nose and make the child breathe through its mouth. When the child breathes through the mouth, much dust and many germs get into the body. Adenoids should always be removed.

EARACHE—Earache often means that the child has adenoids. Earache always means that the child is in danger of getting deaf. Also the child is in danger of getting a running ear and there is danger of the disease reaching the brain. A running ear should always be treated by a doctor. It will not get well without good care.

LARGE GLANDS—Often poison gathers in the nose, throat or ears. The glands of the neck try to carry this poison away. This overwork makes the glands enlarge and lumps often form.

OTHER DISEASES—Diseased tonsils and adenoids hold poisonous germs. We said that these germs are frequently carried to other parts of the body and cause sickness. Rheumatism and heart disease often come in this way. These germs also cause stomach, bowel or lung diseases. A child with adenoids and diseased tonsils can get diphtheria, scarlet fever, measles and whooping cough very easily. Such a child may have the disease worse than a child who has had adenoids and diseased tonsils removed.

STUPID CHILDREN—Often children who seem stupid and who do not learn rapidly can be made healthy and normal by the removal of diseased tonsils and adenoids. It is wrong to blame children for backwardness when they cannot hear, see or smell properly or are suffering from pains from diseased tonsils or adenoids.

HAVE THEM REMOVED—Adenoids and diseased tonsils can be removed at any time of the year. Don't wait, thinking they will get better. It is dangerous. The child may lose its hearing if you put it off. Watch carefully for the danger signals—mouth breathing and earache.

Mustard Foot Bath

How to Prepare It: Tie the mustard in a piece of muslin (one-half ounce for each gallon of water) and place in a foot tub of hot water (about 115 degrees F.). Start with water about 105 degrees F. and bring it up to the required temperature of 115 degrees F., just at the moment when you are ready to immerse the patient's feet. Test the temperature with a bath thermometer if there is one. If not, test with the wrist or elbow. Do not rely on your fingers as they are not so sensitive to heat as are the wrist and elbow.

Procedure in Giving a Mustard Foot Bath.

- Place blanket over patient, folding bed clothes back to foot of bed. See that they are well out of the way.
- Protect lower half of bed with rubber, oilcloth, or newspapers, with the upper edge reaching under patient's hips.
- Bring in tub, about one-half full of mustard bath water; place in bed at the foot.
- When everything is ready and before placing patient's feet in the tub, add hot water (from pitcher) bringing temperature of water in tub up to 115 degrees F. Put your own hand in first to make sure that there is no danger of burning the patient, and then place patient's feet in the tub.
- Fold rubber and blanket over the tub and around knees.
- Draw up bed clothes.

A FEW SIMPLE RULES FOR 5 MINUTES PAST 40

It is literally true that "you are as young as you feel." At 5 minutes past 40, when the clock of Life begins to run down, you begin to feel the importance of keeping as much of the vigor and stamina of youth as you can. And at 5 minutes past 40, it is time to stop, look, and listen to warnings Nature has been constantly giving for the past 20 years. It is time to give common sense a chance; to keep the health and vigor that was your capital at the start. Follow these few simple rules:

1. Do everything in moderation.
2. Live an orderly life, if you can.
3. Don't indulge in extreme excitement.
4. Eat what agrees with you; eat a balanced diet; have plenty of roughage in it.
5. Drink plenty of water; a gallon or a gallon and a half daily.
6. Get regularly, the amount of sleep you need.
7. Exercise regularly, daily if possible, and in open air.
8. Play.
9. Refuse to worry.
10. Get at least one free, thorough bowel movement every day.

QUICK! STOP THAT COLD!

Don't let it take root. Take Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine as quickly as you can. It will stop the cold in its tracks because it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and grippy feeling and tones the entire system. 30¢ and 50¢ all druggists.

Resinol Helped My Skin Amazingly

Almost every girl and boy has to pass through the "pimply age," and many complexions are permanently marred at that time by thoughtless neglect or by treatments that are too harsh.

Help nature clear up these pimples by washing the face twice daily with pure Resinol Soap, and applying soothing Resinol Ointment liberally to the sore, pimply spots. See what an improvement a week's use will make.

PURE as the Lilies of Spring

EACH tiny crystal of DIXIE CRYSTALS sugar is the essence of purity. It is concentrated sweetness, so pure that it dissolves almost immediately in either hot or cold liquids. This purity is assured by the use of the best of Cuban raws, and the care that is exercised in each step in refining. DIXIE CRYSTALS is prepared especially for discriminating Southern housewives.

ATLANTA HAS IT'S OWN "MIRACLE MAN"

Hundreds Testify to Instant Relief From Many Ailments

By G. M. ARCHIBALD.

If I had not seen it I would not have believed it and how it's done I'll never know.

In a modest little office in the heart of downtown Atlanta, at 28 Peachtree Arcade, Atlanta's "Miracle Man" performs, not only mysterious, but phenomenal treatments to the afflicted and sick. What kind of a man is this Dr. Barron? Who is he, who has patients come limping in and within five minutes sends them out to run up and down the steps that lead from his office to the street level? What does he do that ride the suffering from pain? Why do those suffering with ailments from Arthritis, Neuritis, Angina Pectoris, Kidney Trouble, Nervous Disorders, Tonsillitis and other ills visit Dr. Barron's Health Clinic go in suffering with pain and in many cases come out quickly relieved?

Every day between 50 and 100 people have visited this man of "Miracles" and an ever-growing number are coming to Atlanta for treatments and adjustments that have spread fame of Dr. Barron throughout the southeastern states. Patients from Florida, sufferers from all parts of Georgia, sick folks from Alabama all bear testimony of instant relief of pain. Many of the treatments given by Dr. Barron are similar to those that brought national and international fame to Dr. Locke in Ontario, and similar also is Dr. Barron's method of payment. He accepts $1 per treatment in payment of relief of pain from patients who are not able financially to pay more.

What kind of man is this who does these things for the afflicted and what is his explanation?

A man approximately six feet tall and weighs 195 to 200 pounds. His hair is white, caused from pain that he endured for years. Pain from which medical attention brought no relief and after he was given up as an incurable he found relief. Within one week after being lifted to a table from a wheel-chair he was walking and free from pain. It was then after determined and permanent relief had been given him that he began the study of what had been done. In the past eight years he has discovered a method to bring relief to those in pain.

If you were to visit his Health Clinic, you would see sufferers of Arthritis and Neuritis go in as though every step were paining them to the utmost and within five minutes you would see them come out with a smile on their face, happy, stomping their feet or waving their arms, proving to themselves that it was actually true. They cannot believe it themselves and after a few motions of the arm and trotting with the feet, they go up the steps, many of them two at a time.

It has only been within the past few months that Dr. Barron discovered an adjustment which relieves most foot troubles. Fallen arches are a simple thing for this man and many testimonials within the past month bear tribute to the miraculous ways in which sufferers of foot trouble have been given instant relief. "He is a wonder," says one man. "It is marvelous," says a woman. "It's phenomenal," say others. They could hardly bear the pain when they walked in, but they came out ready to run. Were it not for the fact that I have experienced relief from agonizing pain and know for myself what this "miracle man" has done, I would not have believed it, but when I talked to Dr. Barron I found that my relief was no more than hundreds of others.

Many of these have written voluntary testimonials to the ability of Dr. Barron.

Suppose we look at a few of them:

October 9, 1933.

Dear Dr. Barron:

I want to express my appreciation to you for your treatments last winter, which have relieved me from a tendency to colds. I have not had one since your last treatments nearly a year ago.

You may use this in any way you see fit.

Atlanta, Ga.

Dear Dr. Barron:

I would like to tell you how much your treatment has meant to me.

I have suffered with bronchial trouble for several years and for the past year with very bad asthmatic attacks. I was unable to get any relief until I started to taking your treatment.

Now, after only two months' treatment, I have improved 100 per cent and feel that in a short time I will be entirely cured.

You may use this letter in any way you wish.

Yours very truly,

R. E. WOODLAND.

To Whom It May Concern:

I, John H. Lewis, of Birmingham, Ala., suffered a nervous breakdown on July 10, 1929, caused by over-exertion and nervous strain due to excitement and loss of sleep. I tried to get relief from two specialists in Birmingham, but they were unable to do very much for me. I came to Fitzgerald, Ga., to see Dr. Barron, and one treatment from him has practically made a new man of me. I sleep well and am not bothered by my nerves any more. I heartily endorse and recommend Dr. Barron to all who suffer from any kind of ailment.

The best of wishes to you, Doctor, and I feel that you are a blessing to mankind.

Yours cordially,

JOHN H. LEWIS.

To Whom It May Concern:

Because of the splendid health I am now enjoying, due entirely to Dr. Barron's treatment, I desire to make this voluntary statement with the hope that others will try Dr. Barron's Health Clinic.

On September 2, 1932, I went to an Atlanta hospital very sick. Dr. — performed the operation. Sixteen days later I came home and in a few days was taken sick again. We called another doctor and he sent me back to the hospital with Phlebitis and soon Arthritis developed in my right limb and foot.

I suffered terribly. They gave me dope every four hours, sometimes it gave relief and again it did not. My knee drew backward and my limb was badly swollen. Dr. — placed it in a cast and at the same time removed bad teeth and tonsils. Fourteen days later the cast was removed and my knee drew back again, bad as before. Then there was a consultation of doctors, who said I would never walk again unless the leaders were clipped to straighten my knee, but I could not think of that just then, thinking of the physical disfigurement, so they sent me home to rest and think it over. I came home and my friends told me of Dr. Barron and his splendid reputation. So I decided before I went back to the hospital I would try him. I went to his office on crutches, my foot swollen so bad I could not wear a shoe, only a bedroom shoe No. 6, my normal size No. 4. Dr. Barron gave me a thorough examination, including an X-ray of my knee. I went every day for two weeks and improved so much that I never thought of going back to the other doctors any more. After five weeks' treatment from Dr. Barron I was walking and after two months I was dismissed from Dr. Barron's Health Clinic a very happy and well woman.

Here's hoping any one with Arthritis will go to Dr. Barron's Health Clinic.

MRS. H. R. HELTON.

P. S.—Dr. Barron may use this letter or any part of it any way he pleases.

October 9, 1933.

To Whom It May Concern:

I wish there was a way to tell the whole world my experience, but since there isn't will just write a letter, hoping there will be many who read it and be lucky enough to fall in the hands of Dr. Barron.

For two years I have been having spells with my heart. And my heart ached all the time. Pains through my left side, and never knew what a night's sleep was. My nerves were in such condition I couldn't stand the radio, people talking to me, or even cars passing on the street.

I had six well-known Medical Doctors, in Atlanta, Tampa, and Miami, Fla. I took treatments in Atlanta all last summer three times a week, electrical treatments for the spine. That quieted my nerves for a time, but was like putting mercuriochrome on a broken arm; as soon as the treatments were stopped I was back where I started. Then I went to Miami, getting worse continually and there I went to bed for good. I had one Doctor who gave me strenuous medicine for a bad heart, not ever being able to determine just what kind of heart trouble, nor the cause. Then I changed to another, I wish I could call his name, as he was attending a patient at the time that had the attention of all Americans. He treated me several months, diagnosed my case as a shocked nervous heart, run-down condition and malnutrition. He prescribed all kinds of medicines, hypodermics, and concentrated foods, amounting to over a dollar a day. I would be pepped up for a time on this, but could only be up a few days out of a month, and was continually losing weight and strength, and the spells would last longer and be more difficult to control. Of course I was getting very blue and discouraged by this time, as I had found nothing or any one that did me any good.

I came back to Atlanta and a girl friend, taking a very sick baby to Dr. Barron and getting good results, called me and asked if I would just give him a trial. I said I would try anything. I wanted to get well so bad, because I am in my twenties, and have a son I would like to raise myself. So I started going to Dr. Barron, the first trip to his office I nearly fell at the elevator trying to walk from the car to his office. Dr. Barron examined me thoroughly and diagnosed my case as Angina Pectoris. He was the first Doctor to tell me I had Angina Pectoris, and the first to give the cause. I went to him every day and from the start I began to have good days, and could be up a little, and in another week or two I was up every day, but still having occasional spells. But they were lighter and my heart would regulate itself without taking anything, and I quit losing weight and began to gain my strength fast. And at the end of the second month I wasn't having any spells, and sleeping all night every night and eating and digesting my food. Now, at the end of the third month I have not a pain anywhere, no spells at all, wake up in the mornings feeling like a kid again, and this week—NRA Day—I cleaned up my house, cooked a lunch, walked twelve blocks, watched the three and one-half hour parade pass, and still felt fine. I am up every day, go when and where I please and have gained seven pounds. My complexion has cleared, tired look gone out of my eyes and I am in perfect health. It is hard even for me to believe that such a short time ago I had given up to die on several occasions when my spells were so bad.

So you can see why I think, and recommend, Dr. Barron and his treatment the greatest in the world.

Sincerely,

MRS. H. JACK SMITH.

To Whom It May Concern:

I have a little boy of three years, who had been healthy up until this past July. One night he started to suffering with the lower part of his stomach; after suffering all night and no relief, we decided to carry him to Dr. Barron, whom we had heard so much about. After one treatment, which is almost unbelievable, the baby came back smiling. We decided to let him take a month's treatment and now he is well and happy.

I want to thank Dr. Barron for the devoted interest and loving care he has given my child. May God grant him every happiness.

MRS. R. S. PRICE.

To Whom It May Concern:

Our little boy, aged two, had been suffering for one year with tonsillitis. He had been treated off and on for one year without any results.

A friend told us of Dr. Barron's Clinic and his treatments. Dr. Barron treated him for two months and I am happy to tell you he is not bothered any more.

Also our little girl had bronchial asthma for two years and Dr. Barron relieved her of this dreadful suffering, after we had given up all hope of her ever being well.

We can never thank Dr. Barron enough for the good health he has restored to our children.

Yours sincerely,

MRS. HOYT C. PHILLIPS,

To Whom It May Concern:

It is with a feeling of gratitude to Dr. Barron and thankfulness that I give this voluntary testimonial.

I have two children, a boy, 12 years old, and a girl, 18. I have never been satisfied with the condition of either of them. The yearly physical examination at school always showed both children to be anaemic and underweight. They both had very poor appetites, eating only about half of what any normal child their age would eat.

Last fall the little boy had a very severe case of acid condition. He was covered with a rash which was very disagreeable. He could eat almost nothing. The treatments, which were changed several times, seemed to do no good.

About this time my husband met Dr. Barron and persuaded me to go to him. I explained the children's condition and my husband told him that he would give almost anything to see our children eat like other boys and girls. They started taking treatments.

The little boy's rash disappeared immediately and he has not had a touch of it since. And the appetites came, too, with a vengeance. They are both gaining and doing well. When they take cold with fever or are upset as children will be at times, a few treatments put them in fine condition in a marvelous short time.

I gladly give this information that other anxious mothers may benefit by my experience.

Yours sincerely,

MRS. A. S. STEWART.

P. S.—Dr. Barron may use this letter or any part of it in any way that he sees fit.

October 18, 1933.

To Whom It May Concern:

Some time ago my feet started to give me trouble. My heels pained me excessively, my arches were weakening and my feet tired easily. This condition made it very fatiguing to go through the routine of my work. I even bought some appliances for relief of this trouble. I was recommended to go to Dr. Barron's Health Clinic, 28 Peachtree Arcade, as they had a method of treating weak feet and fallen arches that got good results.

The first treatment removed all the pain from my feet. I took a few successive treatments and have no more trouble, and have no need for artificial appliances. The treatment brings quick relief from pain and the final results so positive I feel it a great thing for people with weak feet or fallen arches, and endorse it heartily.

Dr. Barron may use this voluntary testimony as he may see it.

Yours very truly,

EDDIE HUGHES.

And with it all, he continues in his modest little office receiving the gratitude and blessings from those whom he brings relief. All of them are spreading his name, which will not doubt reach all parts of the country.

As I have said in the beginning, so shall I say in the end, "How he does it I will never know, and if I did not see it I would not believe it."
